In the provinces, especially the larger ones, the following case frequently occurs:—A proposes B for initiation into his lodge C, the members of lodge C find out that B's character is not such as to warrant them in admitting him amongst them, and he is withdrawn. Bro. A then enlists the assistance of a member of a lodge held in a neighbouring town where B is a perfect stranger, and on the recommendation of A's friend he is admitted.

The only remedy against this evil so far as I can see is that a Central Committee be formed in each province, and that the Secretary of every lodge be required to read a copy of the circular calling such meeting to them. They (the committee) shall compile a weekly report of names proposed, and send tissue copies of same to the adjoining provinces, and different Masonic Halls and meeting rooms in the district, by this means the members of every lodge would be able to ascertain if their rejected candidate was again proposed, and a communication could be sent to the W.M. of the lodge where his name appears.

It may be said, that perchance a brother through some private pique, objects to a candidate being admitted into his lodge, although there may not be the remotest thing against his character. This fact could be communicated to the committee, who could act thereon.

I think some such plan as the above would serve to check, if not prevent the admission of black sheep into our folds.

Perhaps some more able pen than mine will devise a better scheme, or at all events improve upon this one.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

EAST LANCASHIRE.

FATHER FOY ON FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of "The Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the "Hastings Observer" of the 4th November Father Foy defends his addresses. I have extracted the only material portions of it for the information of your readers, which are as follows:

I am, yours fraternally,

A FREEMASON.

I consider that my second lecture was quite a sufficient reply to your other correspondent, signing himself "A Non-Mason," with regard to the relations between the secret societies of England and the Continent. I showed how the whole of the lodges of the Grand Orient of Italy had recently been aggregated to the English lodges. There was one instance of relationship. The case of the assassination of William Morgan in America, in 1826, proved, again, that the deeds of horror connected with Continental secret societies were not unknown in other directions. And the words of the Scotch Protestant Robison, at page 11, introduction to his work on secret societies, deserve equal notice:—"This association for the express purpose of rooting out all religion still exists, still works in secret; and not only several appearances among ourselves show that its emissaries are endeavouring to propagate these detestable doctrines among us, but the association has lodges in Britain, corresponding with the mother lodge at Munich, ever since 1784." One of these societies, of which Lord Stanhope and Dr. Price were leading members, sent the following letter to the French revolutionary National Assembly:—"The society congratulates the National Assembly of France on the Revolution which has taken place in that country. It cannot but earnestly wish for the happy conclusion of so important a Revolution, and, at the same time, express the extreme satisfaction which it feels on reflecting on the glorious example which France has given to the world." (This example contained all the horrors exhibited in France before the month of March, 1790, which were then fully known in England.) "The society resolves unanimously to invite all the people of England to establish societies throughout the kingdom to support the principles of the Revolution." "Accordingly," says Robison, "this was executed, and Jacobin lodges were established in several cities in England, Scotland, and Ireland" (p. 495). I have myself a recollection that the lodge of one of our northern towns sent similar felicitations to the Commune at Paris, in the midst of its worst impieties. And I cannot but notice how the principle of the connection running all through the secret societies is given, in Germany, in the Rite for the admission of a Scotch Ancient or Grand Master:—"Friendship is the sacred bond which unites together all the brethren of our Craft; for however much scattered they may be over the face of the earth, they all compose one only body, because one is their origin, and one is their aim . . . and one the spirit by which they are animated" (Eckert, Die Trage der Staatl. Anerk. p 12, Leipzig, 1825). Lastly, in the address of the Grand Orient of Italy to the Prince of Wales, it is said: "Italian Masonry, therefore, rejoices at this new lustre shed upon our world-wide institution, and sincerely prays that between the two Masonic communities may be drawn ever more closely those fraternal ties," &c.

Your third correspondent, Mr Gant, informs us that though "he has very little knowledge of foreign Freemasonry," he believes that, even as regards that, "there is not one word of truth in my discourse, and it is a wicked and gross libel." I think that he should acquire at least some far more extensive acquaintance with a matter before he pronounces an opinion upon it, with a profession at the same time that he has very little knowledge of it. If he will take the trouble to read the "Monde-Maçonique," the "Globe" the "Freemasons" Journal, the "Chain d'Union," the accredited organs of these associations, he will find that I have stated only what they candidly profess. If he spurns Barruel, Eckert, and Haller, there is a Scotch Protestant, Robison, the President of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, who, though a Freemason, wrote his work to prove that there was a "Secret Association, in Germany, France, &c., for the destruction of all religion, and overturning all the governments of Europe, and that its emissaries were busy among ourselves." If Barruel and Robison are not modern enough for him, Eckert and Haller, who wrote about secret societies in Germany and Switzerland, are certainly contemporaries. If, shutting his eyes to facts, he says that all these distinguished writers are obscure, he cannot say so of Dupanloup, who is one of the most public men in the world, and one of the most brilliant scholars and writers of the present day. And, say what he will, it has been a notorious fact before mankind, this quarter of a century, that the Carbonari, and their chief, Mazzini, suborned assassins; that, as we learn from "Figaro," immediately after the murder of two French generals, and on the eve of the burning of the city, ten thousand Freemasons of the Grand Orient of Paris declared that "the Commune was the modern Temple of Solomon," and that if, in America, since 1826, people have not been allowed to be assassinated under the sentence of tribunals of secret societies, the public feeling there and its indignation were too apparent to permit such crimes. This must have been very deeply impressed on the mind of Lord Beaconsfield when he declared that it was the secret societies, through Serbia, that had declared war against Turkey; that they were so powerful that no statesman could ignore them, and that, at any moment, they could bring about not only assassination, but even a massacre.

Finally, as long as there are fifty thousand Catholics in the British army, ever at the post of danger in defence of their country and their Queen, I need not trouble about the statement of your first correspondent, that "my Church does not inculcate a ready obedience to the laws of our country." They are at least as loyal as he has proved himself to be.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant, JOHN FOY.

To the Editor of the "Hastings Observer."

Sir,—I am unwilling to trespass on your valuable space at this period of the year, but for the information of "A Non-Mason" and others who may take an interest in the subject, I trust you will allow me to notice briefly Father Foy's second lecture. The Reverend Father has evidently been reading all he could find on the subject of secret societies, and being, I presume, a disciple of Maynooth, where, as a worthy Catholic bishop once told me, "they teach neither logic nor manners," he has evolved from the depths of his inner consciousness an ideal Freemason about as much like the original as a member of the Ancient Order of Foresters is to a Bashi-Bazouk. In fact, to hold Freemasons responsible for the crimes of Italian Carbonari is just precisely as logical as it would be to hold a turbaned vendor of Turkey rhubarb responsible for the Bulgarian atrocities. Father Foy asks triumphantly why Bishop Dupanloup's exposure of Freemasonry has never been refuted, and I tell him, for the same reason that Mr. Whalley's denunciations of the Jesuits or Dr. Cumming's diatribes against Popery are left unnoticed by respectable Catholics. Freemasonry is infinitely older than Popery, and can afford to laugh at the puny efforts of an army of Dupanlouns or Foyes to put it down. St. Peter's was built by Freemasons, as certain emblems and marks illegible to Father Foy show to the initiated; and when the Seven Hills are levelled and the ground ploughed over by the Roman agriculturists of the future, Freemasons in all probability will be there to see. Father Foy forgets himself in raising an Irish howl against an Order of which in England our future King is the honoured head, and the insult to its members of classing them in the same category with ruffianly conspirators and Communists would be more characteristic of a denizen of Colney Hatch than a priest of a Christian Church. If Freemasons are as black as Father Foy paints them, he should remember that there is a lodge in Hastings, and he may run the risk of becoming a victim to their sanguinary ferocity, like the misguided Yankee he mentions.

Yours obediently, A FREEMASON.

To the Editor of the "Hastings Observer."

Sir,—I have read with much amusement Mr. John Foy's lectures upon "Secret Societies," so ably reported in your paper; but I have not seen any reference to one secret organization which, beyond doubt, has caused much disorder, rebellion, misery, revolution, and bloodshed. I allude, Sir, to the Jesuits. How is it that Mr. Foy has not mentioned them? Is he a member of the order? and will he kindly give us some information as to their secret machinations? If not, you will hear again from

Yours very truly, A VERY ODD FELLOW.

CONSECRATION OF THE EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE, No. 1642.

Last Saturday afternoon this new lodge was consecrated by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, at Ladbroke Hall, Notting Hill. The lodge has been established for the convenience of the brethren residing in Notting Hill and Kensington, and is the only one in that neighbourhood. It was promoted by members of the vestry of St. Mary Abbots, many of whom are enrolled now as members. The place of meeting is a desirable building, and affords ample accommodation for large gatherings. On the occasion of the consecration, the hall was admirably fitted up for the lodge purposes, and every endeavour appeared to have been exercised to render the brethren comfortable in their new home.

At the opening of the lodge Bro. Hervey occupied the W.M. chair, having the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., on his right, and the Rev. P. M. Holden, Prov. G.C. Middlesex, on his left. Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., acted as S.W.; Bro. John Boyd, P.G.P., as J.W.; Bro. W. Stephens, as I.G.; Bro. James Terry, Prov. G.C. Herts, as D.C.; and Bro. Joseph Pushman, as Secretary. The other brethren present were Bros. W. J. Murlis, G. Penn, S. H. Parkhouse, W. Gordon, M.P., F. C. Clench, Rev. Charles Darby Reade, F. Delevanti, E. M. Lander, S. Smout, S. Smout, jun., R. Schofield, F. W. Moore, Deputy District Grand Master Argentine Republic; Locock Webb, G.C., 4, P.G.D.; Jno. Jordan, P.M. 4; W. Buttgenbach, 12; John Coutts, P.M. 27, P.G.P.; Chas. B. Payne, P.M. 27, G.T.; E. W. Thompson, 55; John Bingham, P.M. 55; Thos. J. Scrutton, 87; P. Kirke, P.M. 144; W. Handover, P.M. 144; Talbot Chorer, 145; Jas. G. Brockman, 150; G. Davis, I.G. 167; M. Levy, P.M. 188; Wm. Cunningham Glen, 198, P.G.S. and P.G.S.D.; E. P. Albert, 439, G.P.; S. Pardoe, P.M. 511; W. J. Russell, P.M. 511; G. A. Williams, 511; J. H. Taylor, 511; W. W. Wheeler, 511; H. Massey, P.M. 619 ("Freemason") H. Morrill, 704; G. F. Hill, 733; E. Arrowsmith, 733; S. J. Humphress, 733; Thomas Fisher, 733; John T. Woodstock, P.M. 749, T. H. Squires, 780; John Thompson, P.M. 834; J. H. Webb, 834; Thos. Kingston, W.M. 862; J. J. Michael, W.M. 1107; J. Burgess Perry, 1185; R. H. Pearson, P.M. 1196; J. E. Carpenter, P.M. 1196; Robt. Harvey, 1196; G. Musgrave, 1309; Arthur Thomas, 1319; Jas. E. Hambleton, 1319; Savage, P.M. 1425; Samuel Jones, S.W. 1425; D. F. Gellion, J.W. 1425; Thos. Craig, 1425; W. Grist, 1489; W. J. Brewster, 1489; H. W. Mayes, 1489; W. H. Lea, P.M. 1524; and T. Brown, 1611.

Bro. Hervey then delivered an address to the brethren on the nature and objects of the meeting. Drawing attention to the fact that the lodge had been projected by members of the vestry of the parish in which they were assembled, he reminded the brethren that in those assemblies very frequently unseemly squabbles and discussions arose. In a lodge generally, of course such exhibitions were not likely to be made, but he warned its members not to allow any difference of opinion that might exist between them in vestry to be perpetuated in their lodge. After alluding to several other Masonic objects, such as the extension of the Order, and the increasing number of lodges, he advised the brethren to observe caution as to the admission of initiates and joining members. He knew that it was proposed that in this lodge means were intended to be taken, which showed an increased measure of caution, and he hoped that no unworthy members would be admitted. The recent Court case, in which the Hervey Lodge, No. 1260, was plaintiff, next engaged Bro. Hervey's attention, and he spoke in very strong language on the conduct reported in that case. In conclusion he said he wanted to mention one or two practical matters to the brethren, who were to be officers of the lodge about to be consecrated. The W.M. designate was a brother had all the moral advantages resulting from the practice of Freemasonry; but he would recommend to his officers that they should, if they undertook to perform the duties of an office, prepare themselves for the efficient discharge of those duties. If an office was worth accepting it was worth filling properly. Officers should be punctual in their attendance, so that the W.M. might not be inconvenienced at any time when a ceremony was about to be performed by the officers not being present. The duties should not only be performed as a duty, but from a desire to show those who were present that they were able to perform what they had undertaken. Nothing could be more painful than to see an officer placed in a lodge, and when a candidate was introduced to the J.D. that the J.D. did not know what to do with him, or to the J.W. that he did not remember what to say to him. What could be a greater disgrace to an officer, or a greater disgust the candidate about to enter into the Order? He (Bro. Hervey) trusted this would not be the case in this lodge, but that the officers to be appointed would look upon themselves as the different wheels of a great machine without which the machine could not act. If one of the wheels of a locomotive on the line close by was out of order the engine stopped dead. If a wheel of a watch had a cog broken the watch would not go, and the officers of a lodge ought to feel that it was the same with a lodge, that it was a machine, that they were portions of the machine, that they ought to render themselves competent to carry out their duties so as to prevent any hitch. Then everything would go on right and properly, and conduce to the honour of themselves, to the credit of the lodge in particular, and to the well-being of the Craft generally. (Cheers.)

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford in delivering the oration, said:

V.W. Presiding Officer and Brethren: As I have been honoured by the request of your worthy W.M. elect, to deliver the customary oration at this our Masonic ceremony of consecration, in order not to weary you all with sameness, or the stereotyped repetition of oft-told truths, I have thought it best to place a few ideas, so to say, on paper, which I trust will recommend themselves to the sympathy and approval of all my brethren present. First of all, I venture to think, we may all, and should all, rejoice at this multiplication of lodges. There are those, I am aware, who take a different view of the question, but, I think, hastily and erroneously. What does this increase really mean after all? What does this planting in this important district of a new sapling of our great Masonic tree imply? Surely this, that our kindly and benevolent Order commends itself alike to the support of the thinking and the appreciation of the intelligent, and that in consequence Freemasonry is extending its stakes on all sides of us—north, south, east, and west—and making new centres of light and good-will for man. Hence then, though the great and rapid advance of Freemasonry in England, as our distinguished Presiding Officer knows, is very striking indeed, and suggestive necessarily of some precautions, it may well afford pleasure and gratification to every zealous brother of our good old Craft, and for this reason. The creation and consecration of a new lodge are not an idle ceremony on the one hand, or an unmeaning fact on the other. We do not assemble, sir, under your able superintendence, to go through, parrot like, a set of mechanical phrases. Nor does our Masonic consecration of the new lodge represent a needless repetition of an ancient but obsolete ritual. On the contrary, we are here to seek to give Masonic life, vigour, and duration to the new lodge, now about to be admitted to our goodly brotherhood, now about to be inscribed on our lengthening roll, and we sincerely trust that the words we hear, and the ceremonial we take part in will not only revive pleasant associations in the memories of us older Masons, but will encourage our younger brethren—whose Masonic life, so to say, is before them—to zeal, assiduity, earnestness, loyalty and devotion in the labours and active working of that amiable and beneficent Order, in whose kindly companionship and true fraternity many of us, as you see, have actually grown grey. That Freemasonry does mean something, not only is clear from the "nature of the case itself," but is abundantly evident from recent attacks which have been made upon our great institutions, and let us unite for the very principles on which as Freemasons we always greatly pride ourselves, and without which, pardon me, Sir, for saying so, all our professions and all our paraphernalia, our lodge gatherings and our festive array, nay, even our charitable efforts and our very "labour of love" would be but as "sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal." And what are those principles? Shortly stated, they are these. Freemasonry comes before us and appeals to our age to-day, as a religious, tolerant, peaceful, loyal, benevolent Order, proclaiming the "Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man," invoking the solemn and sacred right of conscientious convictions, the sanctity of individual belief, deprecating controversy and detesting persecution. While on the one hand it asserts its solemn credence in the Most High, and is equally at a distance from the blind folly of the Atheist and the reckless impiety of the libertine—while it welcomes all, I say, in the name of God, the Father, Ruler, Friend of all, the True and only Potentate, the Mighty King Eternal, Immortal, Omnipotent, Omniscient, the Great Architect of the World and of Man, it keeps itself entirely at a distance from the conflicting claims of creeds and controversies. That is to say, though friendly, most friendly to all religious bodies, it does not feel competent to make any profession of general or particular belief, to lay down any actual religious test for its membership, to prescribe any other condition for its privileges beyond the acknowledgment and belief in the Great God and Ruler of all. There has, indeed, and there probably will always be a large Christian school in Masonry, and I for one hold that Freemasonry is broad and wide enough for us all, and allows within certain proper limits, a right of private judgment even in this respect. But the teaching of our Grand Lodge since 1813, at any rate, has been purely Universal, and as honest men and Masons when we expatiate on the principles of our Order we are bound, as it seems to me, always to be most particular in adhering carefully to what our own regulations prescribe, and to what our own recognized formularies proclaim. And it is on this great principle, then remember, that Freemasonry receives to-day the Hindoo, the Mahomedan, the Parsee, that we all unite (whatever our views or our denominations may be outside the lodge) inside the lodge in the teachings of fraternal union and general benevolence, and that despite those prepossessions and parties into which social life, worldly life, political life, divide us all, and sever us all, sternly at times, from one another here, as Freemasons we know nothing of political or religious differences, but are one in heart and feeling, in profession, one in practice, in concord and brotherly love. And who can convince us that we are wrong in so teaching, so doing? When our detractors tell us perchance that we are Atheists, simply because we give no prominence to the Christian, may we not reply—Is it Atheism to love our brethren, and to do unto others as we would be done by? When the Ultramontane declares that we are a disloyal and dangerous Order, because we are condemned by the Bull of Clement, may we not say that such puerile ignorance of our great tenets is perhaps as good a commentary as any on an alleged infallibility? When some foolish person asserts that our secrecy is in itself a proof of something wrong, may our rejoinder not be—No society can be wrong or injurious which is specially authorised to assemble by the laws of our land. And the day, V.W. sir, I make bold to say, that the legislature forbids all secret societies to meet, making no exception—that day Freemasonry in England must either change its character or close its lodges. It may seem to some of you almost superfluous thus to vindicate the religious, the loyal, the peaceful character of Freemasonry, and so it would be but for one remarkable fact, the extreme violence with which one religious body, the Roman Catholic Church (though others have been equally foolish) has thought right of late to attack in every way, and in every form, our harmless, inoffensive, peaceable, loyal brotherhood. I say nothing here of pontifical allocutions and episcopal addresses, we can afford to disregard them. I do not even now allude to excommunications and anathemas, which are too childish and harmless to be adverted upon, but I think it right to call attention to an address delivered in a Roman Catholic Church at Hastings, within the last month, by a certain Father Foy, in which he has thought well to make, and make in a church, on the steps of the altar, a most mendacious statement, and to bring most serious charges against Freemasonry. First of all, he says that Lord Ripon resigned his Grand Mastership of English Freemasonry because he was alarmed at the political tendencies of this secret Order everywhere. (Loud laughter.) You, Sir, who know even better than I do that such a statement is distinctly untrue, and a cruel calumny on our late distinguished head Lord Ripon himself, than whom I will say now, when still happily amongst us, no truer man, and no more constitutional ruler ever presided over our excellent Order. This is the statement, and what do you think is the charge? That we are a socialistic, revolutionary, infidel body, whose sole object is to create revolution everywhere, and who, when we meet together indulge in orgies too disgraceful to narrate. (Much laughter and cheers.) And this was declared, as I said before, in a Church, within the last month, at Hastings, and is said to have made a great impression on the hearers of this imaginative individual. It is almost incredible, were it not printed in a respectable paper "The Hastings Observer," and as you will see, in the "Freemason" of next week, Father Foy defends his veracious statement. I may add that Father Foy's two addresses will appear "in extenso" for the information of the brethren in the "Masonic Magazine" for December and January, as I think it is most advisable for us all to know accurately what friends and foes alike say of us. Father Foy, so far from withdrawing from his statements, seeks to justify them in a letter he has subsequently written to the same newspaper. Well, you may say, we can afford to laugh at such statements; so no doubt we can; but long experience in life has told me that nothing is so potent as calumny when judiciously spread and when deliberately persisted in. There is no reason that I can see, moreover, why our useful and philanthropic sodality should be made, either the subject of untruthful assertion, or the object of shameful criticisms, and therefore I think it well to remind you all to-day, and the members of this lodge especially, what Freemasonry is, what it teaches, and what it does. It is a friendly brotherhood animated by the most gracious sentiments, and proclaiming the grandest of all morality, based, and based alone, on God's Word, ever open in our lodges. It inculcates every patriotic duty and every social virtue. Its motto is "Loyalty and Charity," its scope and aim universal beneficence and brotherhood. It maintains, with unflinching clearness, liberty of thought and belief, toleration and consideration for all. It avows that it is in favour of light and truth, the advance of education and science, the general development of the arts that constitute the safety of true national life and the peaceful progress of the civilization of mankind. But it bases all its hopes and views, and declarations on obedience to the laws of the land which Freemasons belong to by birth, or reside in for a time, and it seeks on all occasions to advocate the domestic and moral virtues in their ennobling, enduring and undying responsibilities. We are to be good Masons, but we are also to be good men, and no true Freemason will ever forget that grand and solemn truth of personal accountability which ever encircles us, that we have all to stand one day before God, the Judge of all, and to listen to our own eternal sentence whether for good or evil eternally from Him who sits on the Great White Throne, and before Whose glorious presence the earth and heavens will flee away. But Freemasonry does not stop here. No. To its public teachings and its outward organisation, it adds above all the practice of true benevolence. By its noble charities Freemasonry essays to prove to all around that its professions are real, and that its practice squares with its theory. It educates the orphan sons and daughters of our brethren, it cares for the aged and the suffering brother; it sympathizes with and aids the widow; and not only this, but by a wise and careful system of benevolent grants it relieves monthly all those who can make a fair claim on its brotherly beneficence. And I say that Freemasonry is in itself the best reply to its traducers and enemies, and that our best answer to all enquirers as to its use and good, is "Si queris circumspice;" listen to its words of sympathy, behold its deeds of good, and believe that that association is indeed most worthy alike of your admiration and support, which so inculcates and so practices the goodly and blessed attributes of charity and toleration, kindness and brotherly love. A Masonic poet has truly said:

"Its grand foundation nobly is designed
To warm the soul and elevate the mind.
It soothes the troubled heart amid distress,
And paints soft pity in her native dress.
We hail sweet concord in her highest flight,
We censure wrong, and vindicate the right.
We oft describe fair virtue's peaceful seat,
And trace fair friendship to its lone retreat.
We point the way to honour and to truth,
And curb the passions of fantastic youth.
In mystic characters we represent
Masonic laws and human hearts cement.
The humblest object of sweet charity
We glad welcome and teach humanity;
No stimulant to action is required,

Each Mason's heart to charity is fired.
The widows' tears are dried, we thus impart
The grand resources of our Royal Art.
In schools well suited to the infant mind,
The morals guided and the thoughts refined.
Our charity and love united stand,
To bless the needy with a liberal hand,
We labour truly to instruct our youth,
In paths of duty, honesty, and truth.
How grand is Masonry in its rich display,
On some high festive interesting day,
In solemn form within due Compass move,
The Bible, and the Square our minds to prove,
With knowledge to the worthy Mason given,
He builds on trust and soars towards a heaven,
The mind unfettered and the conscience free,
Point to that blissful scene of purity.
By faith's uplifting power we look on high,
Part with the world, nor heave a transient sigh,
Hope's golden wing resistless paves the way,
And lifts the soul to everlasting day.

Brethren, my imperfect task is done, and I end it with sincere thanks, V.W. Sir and brethren all, for the patient audience you have favoured me with, and with hearty good wishes for the future prosperity and success of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge. (Cheering.)

The ceremony of consecration was then proceeded with, the musical portions being beautifully rendered by Bro. F. Delevanti, Bro. Talbot Chever, and others, and the Rev. P.M. Holden delivering the Scripture portions and invocations. When the lodge had been formally consecrated and constituted, Bro. Hervey installed Bro. W. J. Murlis as first W.M., and the following brethren were invested as officers:—Bros. Geo. Penn, S.W.; S. H. Parkhouse, J.W.; the Rev. Chas. Darby Reade, Chap.; W. Stephens, Treas.; J. Pushman, Sec.; William Gordon, M.P., S.D.; F. Clench, J.D.; Lander, I.G.; S. Smout, D.C.; F. Delevanti, Org.; S. Smout, jun., W.S.; and T. Schofield, Tyler.

Votes of thanks were passed to Bros. Hervey, the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Joseph Smith, John Boyd, the Rev. P. M. Holden, and James Terry for consecrating the lodge, and honorary membership of the lodge was unanimously conferred on them. The lodge was then closed, and the W.M. read the following letter, which he had received from the secretary of the Pro Grand Master, after whom the lodge had been named:—

COLONIAL OFFICE,
4th Nov. 1876.

SIR,—Lord Carnarvon regrets very much that your letter of the 30th Oct. should have remained so long unanswered, and he wishes me to add the expression of his regret at being unable to be present at the consecration of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642, which his engagements render quite impossible. His lordship wishes me, however, to say that he readily consents to his coat of arms being used for the new lodge.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

(Signed)

ARTHUR A. PEARSON.

W. J. Murlis, Esq.

The brethren afterwards adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, which was served by Mr. Linscott, proprietor of the hall, and the catering gave unmingled satisfaction to the brethren present, the dinner and the attendance equally meriting praise.

The banqueting hall was profusely decorated with choice plants and flowers, which were most artistically arranged, the coup d'œil giving complete evidence of good taste and judgment in floriculture.

After the banquet the W.M. proceeded to propose the toasts. After the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," and "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," had been duly honoured, the W.M. gave "The Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," and hoped, though his lordship had not been present at the consecration of the lodge named after him, that the day would come when they would have the pleasure of his company.

The Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., responded to the toast of "The Dep. G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers," and in doing so said: Though I have addressed my brethren a great many times during my Masonic career, I must confess that I never addressed them with such feelings, I may say, of embarrassment and diffidence as I do this evening, because when I see around me so many older and most distinguished Grand Officers, I feel that the task might have been left in far worthier hands than mine, in hands which I feel certain would have done more justice to the toast than I am able to do. I see on my right Bro. Locock Webb, one of Her Majesty's counsel learned in the law, and a most distinguished Past Grand Officer, and when I look on my left I see our Bro. Joseph Smith, a twofold pillar of the Masonic Order, who is always ready to assist us on every occasion, and to give us the pleasantness of his smiles and genial presence to cheer us in our work. I should have been very glad, above all, if our distinguished Grand Secretary had taken upon himself the duty you have cast upon me of responding to this toast. But as I have been called upon I must do my duty as a Mason, and respond, at the same time commending the few remarks I have to make to your kindly consideration. I am not a young Mason—I was made in 1842; but I can honestly say that I have never repented of the step I took when I became one of the fraternity. I can assure you that the longer I have been a Mason, the more have I seen the value and importance of Freemasonry; and I have looked upon it from the time I entered it until to-day as one of the greatest blessings given to us in the good Providence of God. It unites men of the most opposite views and sections, of all religions and all nationalities; at the same time that it separates us from the jarring world without, and binds us together in one phalanx of brotherly union, concord, and love, ready to assist, support, and sympathise with one another. Many of us standing here to-day have already grey hairs, for we may be said Masonically to have borne the burden and heat of the day; but none of us have ever regretted the time we have given or the labours we have offered to that old Order of ours, which commends itself to every affection and sentiment of human nature. When we contemplate the world without, and see the various divisions which the human family is subject to, surely it is a happy thing to remember that there is one spot where we may all meet together, whatever our politics or our religion may be, where we may all enjoy the blessings of fraternal unity and concord, and work for the good of all, the happiness of our fellow creatures, and the glory of our Great Creator. I beg to say to you, in conclusion, that as a day will come when our place will know us no more, I trust sincerely that the younger Masons among us will seek to serve the Craft as we have, honestly, if imperfectly, done, and will still rally round its famous banner, and endeavour to advance not only the interests of our good old Order, but the welfare of our common brotherhood, and the lasting happiness of mankind. (Great cheering.)

The W.M. proposed the toast of the evening, "The Consecrating Officer, Bro. John Hervey." He had briefly expressed his thanks to Bro. Hervey previously for consecrating the lodge. He hoped Bro. Hervey might live for many years to come among them. He was a near neighbour, and though his official duties were heavy he trusted that he would come and see how they were getting on. He would always find a hearty welcome. There were only two persons he had wished to consecrate the lodge, the Earl of Carnarvon or Bro. Hervey. He did not care which, and his wish had been gratified; Bro. Hervey having performed the ceremony.

Bro. Hervey thanked the W.M. very much for his kind deed of approbation. It was very gratifying to him that the consecration had gone off so well. If he were to speak for a long time he could not do more than express his gratitude for the compliment the W.M. and brethren had paid him. He wished success to the lodge, and he was pleased to see Bro. Murlis again in the chair of a lodge which he (Bro. Hervey) had consecrated.

Bro. W. Stephens proposed "The W.M.," and the W.M. having replied, proposed a special toast in honour of Bro. Moore, Deputy District Grand Master of the Argentine Republic.

Bro. Moore returned thanks. Linking his name with a toast greatly enhanced the pleasures of the evening. He fully appreciated the honour paid to the Argentine Republic, which he represented on that occasion, and himself. The brethren of the Republic would be most peculiarly interested in the details of the ceremony he had been permitted to witness, and when he returned thither he should inform the brethren of what he had seen. He must despair of ever attaining to one tithe of the efficiency and readiness and dignity to which Bro. Hervey had attained, as well as the rev. brethren who had assisted him. Since he had been in England he had had the pleasure of visiting several lodges, and had been led to form an opinion, that Masons who lived at home at ease knew nothing of the greatest pleasures that Masonry afforded; they had not learned to appreciate thoroughly the value of the Masonic passport which was contained in the Grand Lodge certificates, or properly understand the pleasure a Mason like himself felt in returning to his native country, and being received in lodges, the members of which were entire strangers to him. Abroad the pleasure was fully appreciated of receiving a brother in a foreign country, and within the sacred portals of those foreign lodges extending to him the right hand of fellowship. After thanking the brethren for the toast and his reception, Bro. Moore informed the brethren that if they should ever visit the Argentine Republic they would find there a welcome extended to them if possible a hundred fold that dispensed to him that evening. (Cheers.)

Bro. Savage, P.M. Hyde Park Lodge, returned thanks for "The Visitors," and was followed by Bros. Locock Webb, Q.C., and Jordan.

Bro. James Terry replied for "The Charities," and delivered an exhaustive account of what all the Masonic Institutions had hitherto accomplished.

Bro. Stephens, Treasurer, replying for "The Officers," said that £60 had already been promised for the Stewards' List of this lodge for the next festival of the Benevolent Institution. He wanted £300.

The S.W. and J.W. also replied, and Bro. W. Gordon, M.P., responded for "The Junior Officers," and was followed by each of these brethren in turn.

The proceedings were then brought to a close, and the brethren separated.

Obituary.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE REV. E. I. LOCKWOOD, D.P.G.M. SUFFOLK.

On Wednesday, 25th inst., amid general expressions of sorrow and regret, the remains of the esteemed Rector of Belstead were consigned to the tomb. The deceased clergyman was buried by the side of his late wife, in a grave situated at the end of the chancel of Belstead Church. The burial service was impressively performed by Rev. H. J. Hasted, Rector of Sproughton, and the Hon. and Rev. F. D. Gray, Rector of Copdock. Among the clergy present were Revs. J. R. Turnock and C. A. Raymond, St. Mary-le-Tower, Ipswich; J. H. Henderson, St. Mary Stoke; J. Tweed, Chapel St. Mary; and W. Andrews. The "British Union" Lodge (of which deceased was a member and D.P.G.M. for Suffolk) was represented by Bro. W. Boby, P.M., Bro. W. Spalding, P.M., Bro. Casley, and Bro. Rev. G. Godwin (Chapel). Besides these the chief mourners comprised the daughters of deceased and relatives, including Mrs. J. Tweed and Mrs. Andrews. Although the funeral was regarded as a private one, there was also a large number of parishioners, amongst whom was Mr. T. Harwood, of Belstead Hall. Mr. Cobbold's carriage was also present. At the grave as well as in the church two funeral hymns were softly sung by the school children—a part of the service which was very impressive. Mr. F. Fish, of Suffolk House, had the management of the funeral arrangements, the coffin being conveyed in his new funeral carriage, the violet pall being used. The coffin, which was of plain oak, bore the inscription on a brass plate, "Rev. E. I. Lockwood, M.A., parish priest of Belstead. Died on Friday, 20th October, 1876, aged 78 years."—"East Anglian Daily Times," 26th Oct. 1876.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

BELGRAVE LODGE (No. 749).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 8th inst. at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street. There was a full attendance of the officers and brethren, and among the visitors were Bros. Rosenthal, P.P.G.S.D. of Middx.; Linsell, P.P.G.P.; J. Longman Cogan, J.W. 1365; T. J. Cusworth, S.W. 813; J. D. Loverdo, 1196; and G. E. Leech, 201. The minutes were unanimously confirmed, and the ballot having been taken for Messrs. Henry W. L. Hobbs and Richd. J. Tyrrell as initiates, and one for Bro. Captain Charles T. Redhead, of the Oriental Lodge, Constantinople, as a joining member, all were unanimously elected. The W.M., Bro. William Battey, passed Bros. McCreary, Culpin, Clemence, and Chesney. The installation of Bro. Joseph William Hobbs, the late S.W., as W.M., then took place, which was worked by Bro. Garrod, who certainly deserves great praise for the manner in which it was conducted. The newly installed W.M. then initiated Messrs. Hobbs and Tyrrell in a masterly manner. The officers invested by the new W.M., each with an appropriate speech, were Bros. H. Greenwood, S.W.; R. E. Booker, J.W.; G. Gardner, S.D.; J. Coltart, I.D.; W. Groves, I.G.; H. Garrod, Sec.; W. Bunting, Treas.; Nanton, Org.; P. Parsons, P.M., and Hall, Stewards. Bro. Battey, the retiring W.M., was presented with a Past Master's jewel, and after the closing of the lodge, the brethren adjourned to a banquet, upwards of ninety sitting down. The dinner over, the W.M. gave the loyal toasts with excellent point, as he did the toast of "The Grand Officers." The toast of "The Initiates" was drunk with great cordiality, the newly-made brethren replying in appropriate terms. The I.P.M. then gave "The W.M." and said he was sure Bro. Hobbs would fully justify the choice of the brethren, as he had diligently worked to the chair, having fulfilled every office. The toast was duly acknowledged by the W.M. Other toasts followed, the company separating at a late hour, having listened to some excellent recitations by Bros. Cusworth, Barnard, and Pelham, and some capital singing by members and visitors.

COSMOPOLITAN LODGE (No. 917).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening at the Cannon-street Hotel. Bro. F. W. Jones, W.M., presided, and was supported by Bros. A. F. Rowley, S.W.; G. M. Taylor, J.W.; J. B. J. Deporter, Treas.; A. Lemarque, S.D.; Jas. Ellis, I.G.; Thos. Robinson, P.M.; J. F. Basilio, G. F. Gibson, Lovell Keays, E. Stillwell, and several lay members; and visitors Bros. F. McCarthy, S.D. 9; T. Upward, 1502; S. Thos. Emans, P.M. 141; H. A. Pratt, 192; W. Medwin, 193 and 1613; S. Edmonds, 192 and 1613; W. B. Sheen, S.W. 12; J. Skirving, 87; Levi, P.M. 188; Thos. W. Bacon, 192 and 1613; H. Massey ("Freemason"), P.M. 619; Alfred Freewannant, 228; S. Rowley, 1603. Bros. S. J. Corke, W. Pitt, and G. Ridding were raised, and Bro. J. Abbott, W. F. Barker, B. Fould, and A. Jewell were passed, the work being admirably performed by the W.M. At the conclusion of the performance of this work Bro. L. Stean, P.M., ascended the chair for the purpose of installing the W.M. for the year. Bro. Alfred Francis Rowley was presented by Bro. Jones to Bro. Stean, and duly installed as Master of the Cosmopolitan Lodge for the ensuing twelve months. The customary salutes having been given in the different degrees the new W.M. appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. Taylor, S.W.; Lemarque, J.W.; Jones, P.M., Treas.; L. Stean, P.M., Sec.; Abbott, S.D.; Ellis, J.D.; Van Ralte, I.G.; Gullock, Tyler. Bro. Jones was invested as I.P.M. Bro. L. Stean delivered the addresses, and afterwards the W.M. commenced his year's work, and initiated Messrs. Walter Rowley, Theophilus Bailey, E. Winshurst, and F. Bailey. Before the lodge was closed two presentations were made. The first was a handsome Past Master's jewel to the I.P.M., and the other a massive silver teapot to the late Treasurer of the lodge, Bro. Deporter. In presenting the P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Jones, the W.M. said: Brethren, it affords me great pleasure to present to Past Master Jones a P.M.'s jewel. I am sure he richly deserves it for the way in which he has conducted the business of the lodge during his year of office. If I follow in his footsteps I shall be quite satisfied. (Addressing Bro. Jones, the W.M., said), Bro. Jones, I present you with this jewel, and I trust you may live many years to wear it. (Hear hear.) Bro. Jones, I.P.M., in replying said: I assure you this is one of the proudest moments of my life. When I entered Freemasonry I never thought I should have reached to the position I have attained to in it. I can honestly say that I feel it a very great thank of respect that you have conferred upon me by presenting me with this jewel. I have endeavoured to do the best I could for the lodge since I have been Master. I am happy to say that the lodge is now very prosperous and it has become prosperous since I was installed in the chair. I am glad to say that now it is in a very prosperous position, and I am also glad to find that you have recognised what I have done for the lodge by presenting me with this jewel. I sincerely thank you. In presenting the silver teapot to Bro. Deporter, Past Treasurer, the W.M. said: Brethren, it was the unanimous wish of the brethren of the Cosmopolitan Lodge when we last met to present our Bro. Deporter with some testimonial or souvenir for the manner in which he has fulfilled his duties as Treasurer of the lodge since its foundation. The choice of the brethren of the form which the testimonial should take, I believe, fell upon a silver teapot. This I now present to him; and it gives me great pleasure to do so. I have known him for many years; and since I was initiated I have been intimately acquainted with him. The testimonial has a suitable inscription, which, if you please, I will now read to you:—"Presented by the Cosmopolitan Lodge, 917, to Bro. J. B. J. Deporter, in recognition of his valuable services rendered as Treasurer to this lodge since its institution." To Bro. Deporter the W.M. said: Bro. Deporter, I present you with this silver teapot in the name of the lodge, and I hope you will live long to use it. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Deporter said, in reply: W.M. and brethren, I consider this handsome testimonial presented to me by the lodge as a fresh mark of your kindness. (Hear, hear.) It will often remind me of the many, many happy moments that I have passed in this lodge. In retiring from the Treasurership I promise to continue to render any service I can for the welfare of this lodge; and in conclusion I most heartily beg to thank you. There was no other business before the lodge, and the brethren then adjourned to banquet, which was presided over by the W.M. This repast was most completely enjoyed by the brethren; and afterwards the W.M. proposed the usual toasts. After the brethren had drunk the loyal toasts, they proceeded to drink the others. Bro. Jones, the P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and stated that he (Bro. Jones) and the W.M. had for many years followed each other step by step and worked together. Very cordially and very often they had met in lodges of instruction to learn the duties they had undertaken to fulfil, and both of them were deeply interested in the progress which their lodge was making. They had endeavoured to forward its interests, and to place it in a high position. With such desires on the part of its members the lodge could not fail to succeed, and he felt satisfied that in what he had done himself he would be ably followed by the W.M. The W.M., in reply, said it afforded him great pleasure to do his utmost for his lodge. When he entered Masonry he resolved to do his best for it, and ever since then he had always had great pleasure in entering lodges and being among Masons. Bro. Jones responded to the toast of "The P.M.'s," and all the Initiates acknowledged the toast drunk in their honour. Each of the officers replied in turn for himself. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of Bro. L. Stean, Installing Master." He was one of the founders of the lodge, and an excellent worker, as all the brethren knew. He would couple Bro. Stean's name with "The Masonic Charities." Bro. Stean, in the course of his reply, said that he did not know why his name should have been coupled with the institutions, although he certainly did, as all the brethren did, his utmost for one and all. He was not, however, connected with more than one; but he was very proud of the compliment paid to him. He had been a Mason now about forty-five years, and not only performed duties in that lodge, but in many others. He had devoted many years of his life in endeavouring to bring about a universal working in Freemasonry. For years he went on very well. He was a member of the Emulation, and he went round to a great many lodges of instruction to impart the knowledge he gained. In olden times he had had many discussions about the forms and words, but when he went to the fountain head he did not find all the difference in words which was found now. He thought that Grand Lodge should approve of certain Preceptors to instruct the brethren, and if they took the matter in hand in this way it would be found very beneficial. He wanted universal working. Do not let it be said that there was this working here, and that working there. The institution was an ancient one, and a beneficial one. Let it be alike all over the world, especially as the future Sovereign of England was the Grand Master. Bro. Stean concluded by thanking the brethren very much for the honour they had done him in drinking his health. All the visitors were called upon to reply to the Visitors' toast, and after the Tyler's toast had been given the brethren separated, with the recollection of having spent a most agreeable evening.

LODGE OF ASAPH (No. 1319).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 6th inst., at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. C. S. Jekyll, W.M., presided, and opened the lodge, which was very numerously attended. Among the brethren present, besides the W.M., were Bros. W. A. Tinney, S.W., and W.M. elect; Edward Terry, J.W.; E. Stanton Jones, Sec.; Geo. Buckland, S.D.; Edward Swanborough, J.D.; Harry F. Cox, D.C.; G. R. Egerton, Org.; C. Wellard, I.G.; James Weaver, P.M.; Charles Coote, P.M.; J. M. Chamberlin, P.M.; T. A. After the lodge had been opened, and the customary introductory business completed, Bro. E. Stanton Jones, P.M., ascended the chair, and presentation of Bro. W. A. Tinney having been made to him, duly installed him in the chair of K.S. for the ensuing twelve months. The following brethren were invested as officers:—E. Terry, S.W.; G. Buckland, J.W.; C. Coote, jun., Treas.; E. S. Jones, Sec.; Edward Swanborough, S.D.; C. Wellard, J.D.; H. Stephenson, D. of C.; F. Delavanti, Org.; H. Cox, I.G.; C. M. Lutz, Steward; and J. Gilbert, Tyler. There was no other work before the lodge but the installation of W.M., and after the usual addresses had been delivered the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a choice banquet. At the conclusion of the banquet, the Non Nobis was sung by a powerful choir, composed of the musical brethren, under the direction of Bro. Geo. Buckland; and the W.M. proceeded with the proposal of the toasts. After the brethren had drunk the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," the W.M. proposed "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M." He did so in very felicitous terms, stating that His Royal Highness took the greatest interest in all that concerned the Craft, and that the sincere wishes of the brethren were for his long life, perfect health, and supreme happiness. In giving "Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers," he passed a high compliment on their ability and efficiency, and said that to them Masons were indebted for the present high position of Freemasonry. Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P., responded. The W.M. next proposed "Prosperity to the Benevolent Fund of the Lodge of Asaph," the energy of whose President, Bro. Stanton Jones, in the cause of Freemasonry must excite their warmest admiration. Bro. Jones just at that moment was unfortunately absent, but he (the W.M.) would couple with the toast the name of Bro. Chamberlin, Vice-President, whose exertions in the cause of Freemasonry were also great, and would be equally esteemed. Bro. J. M. Chamberlin, P.M., responded, and, as some initiates were present, explained that the fund was established in connection with the lodge, in order that any brother who had been two years in the lodge, and from unforeseen circumstances met with misfortune or accident, might have relief. In both branches of the profession such things would happen, and it must be in the experience of many present that some of the professors in the art had been reduced from prosperity to distress. It was on behalf of brethren of the lodge who were unfortunately situated that this fund was established. Six shillings a year were deducted from the subscriptions, and this with the assistance of voluntary donations from members on the annual banquet night made up a goodly sum. More for the good of Freemasonry than of themselves, they limited the brethren to one banquet a year. They had now £164 in hand, but although this was a respectable sum, it would not be sufficient if the claims on it were numerous. They wanted to form such a fund as that if a member should seek assistance from it they might give him not only the temporary help which would be enough for a night or two, but sufficient to tide him over his difficulty, and give him a start in life. For that purpose he did not think a sum of £164 was enough in such a lodge, and he would like to see it larger. The fund was progressing, but the rate of progression was not great enough. All that they could do was to rely on the brethren for voluntary contributions. They assisted the general charities of Freemasonry, and they might also help each other. It was a wise man who said God helped those who helped themselves, and he hoped when he sat down the W.M. would be able to announce a subscription list which would show that the brethren were not merely content to wish prosperity to the fund, but would materially aid it. Bro. Charles Coote, P.M., thought that having a benevolent fund connected with lodges was the wisest thing that could be done, because if a brother should by any means come to grief, by applying to the fund to which he had subscribed he did not come as a suppliant, but as one who was coming for a right. From the smiles he saw round the table he knew that the brethren would subscribe cheerfully what they could afford to that which would be their own. There was another subject he wished to bring before the brethren—the cause of the institutions which were attached to Freemasonry, the Boys' School, the Girls' School, and the Benevolent Fund for Aged Freemasons. Brethren who had not yet visited those establishments ought to do so, and take their wives with them, to see the admirable arrangements that were made for the education of the children and the maintenance and comfort of the old people. It gladdened his heart to see the Lodge of Asaph in such a prosperous condition, and he hoped that all the brethren who had the means would not forget what the Institutions did and would subscribe. This lodge did not spend much in eating and drinking, but spent their money in supporting the charities. Bro. J. Terry replied, and after referring to the remarks of Bro. Chamberlin, expressed the hope that instead of the benevolent fund of the Lodge of Asaph amounting to £164 it would be double and treble that sum. The Masonic Institutions had to thank the Lodge of Asaph for what it had done. It met once a year for social enjoyment, and the other seven or eight months entirely for Masonic business. It was not for him to say how they had gone on, but he would urge them to do in the future what they had done in the past. Bro. Terry then described what the different institutions had done and were doing, the number of beneficiaries who were on their funds, and the results which were achieved. The confidence of the brethren in the committees of management had not been misplaced. He then gave some instances of the good his own institution had effected, and said that some of the inmates had found a refuge there who in the heyday of their prosperity had never dreamed of requiring its aid. The W.M. announced a subscription list of £18 7s. 6d. by brethren of the lodge. Bro. Jekyll, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," a brother who was the first initiate in the Lodge of Asaph. In him the lodge would have a good working Mason, and one who had the good of Freemasonry at heart. The W.M., in acknowledging the toast, said that Bro. Jekyll had informed the brethren that he (the W.M.) was the first initiate in the lodge. He was therefore the first W.M. of the lodge who could claim it as his mother lodge. For several years it had been his desire to become W.M., and on that day he had attained the height of his ambition. Whilst he had the pleasure and honour of retaining that high position he would endeavour to perform the duties of the chair with credit to himself and honour to the lodge. Enough of himself. He would now pass on to a more pleasing part of his duty, the presenting to the I.P.M., Bro. Jekyll, the reward he had so well earned. In placing this jewel on Bro. Jekyll's breast he was sure he did but express the sentiments of the brethren when he wished him years of good health and prosperity to watch over the progress of the Lodge of Asaph, and set all of the brethren an example. Bro. Jekyll said he was pleased that his conduct had met with the approbation of the brethren. He was sure that the lodge would progress favourably under its present Master, and he hoped it would always adhere to the present mode of working, and have but one banquet a year, whereby it had the means of appropriating so large a sum to the Benevolent Fund. In proposing "The P.M.'s," the W.M. took the opportunity of thanking them for the kind aid they had always afforded the Master of the lodge. Bro. C. Cote, P.M., responded, and said that as one of the founders he had taken the greatest interest in the lodge, and had supported as far as he possibly could whatever was for its benefit. It was a great happiness to him to see such a noble assembly that evening. He believed the prosperity of the lodge was mainly attributable to the way in which the brethren endeavoured to carry out the principles of Freemasonry. Bro. H. Massey ("Freemason") responded to the toast of "The Visitors," and Bro. George Buckland to the toast of "The Officers of the Lodge." The brethren separated after drinking the Tyler's toast.

THE GRANITE LODGE (No 1328).—Freemasonry as developed and practised by the members of this lodge commands at once the respect and admiration of every visitor. The mode of transacting the business of the lodge never fails to elicit the eulogy of the visiting brethren. Whether it be the custom to praise where it is unmerited, or whether it is a human failing to lay the flattering unction to one's soul, for ill-assorted performances are speculations better left to the great hereafter, suffice it, that the visitors are always ready "to cut and come again," for we notice continually the same faces paying their respectful tribute to the members of the lodge, and doing homage at the shrine of the mystic art. Futurity decides all things, and assigns them a place in the time to come; and, therefore, if there be imperfections they will leak out, and the "deep taking on" of virtues and qualities to which we may have no just title, will be exposed to contempt and ridicule. Here, however, the meetings teem with "bonhomie," and a stranger is welcomed with unrestricted heartiness, he no sooner enters the lodge than he is drawn into its fascinating circle of goodwill and fellowship, and forms at once one of a constellation. On Saturday, the 11th inst., the lodge held a meeting for the disposal of certain business, when Bro. John Oliver, P.M., presided in the absence through illness, of Bro. W. H. Muggeridge, W.M. The lodge having been formally opened, Bros. A. J. Hewitt and David Duke were passed to the Second Degree. Bro. E. F. Clarke was duly initiated, and Richard B. Austin, C.E., was approved, while Bro. James Browning, of the City of Westminster Lodge, No. 1563, joined and became a member. A donation of twenty guineas was voted to the Royal Masonic Boys' School, to be placed on the list of Bro. J. Lewis Thomas, P.M. and Secretary, who will represent the lodge as Steward at the next festival. Among the visitors were Bros. J. W. G. Martin, 1310; James W. Szlumper, P. Pro G.J.W. Western Division, South Wales, 1072; Richard Phillips, 521 (Truth); Charles Couchman, 1602 (Ravenswood); Louis Beck, S.D. 1559. Several formal matters having been disposed of, the members adjourned to a dinner in the Freemasons' Tavern, Bro. John Oliver presiding. After the cloth was drawn, Bro. Oliver gave "The Queen and the Craft," which met with a hearty response. In proposing "The Health of the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," he expressed the hope that he would be spared for many years to reign over the Craft, a wish that met with true Masonic accord and sympathy. He next gave "The Health of the Pro Grand Master, Lord Carnarvon, D.G.M., and the other Officers," and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Cottleburne, through whose assistance the lodge was so prosperous. The toast was cordially responded to. Bro. George de Maid, alluding to the absence of the W.M. from indisposition, asked the brethren to drink to his speedy recovery. The toast having been duly honoured, Bro. de Maid called upon them to drink the very good health of P.M. Bro. Oliver, who in acknowledging the signal favour, expressed deep regret at the absence of the W.M. from indisposition. For himself he hoped to have the pleasure of meeting the members of the lodge for many years, and expressed the pleasure it gave him to do anything for it. The next toast, given by Bro. Oliver was that of "The Visitors," whose presence, he said, indicated in a strong light the solid good fellowship existing all around, and he hoped to see them on a future occasion. Bro. J. W. Szlumper, in thanking them, spoke of the extremely pleasurable evening he had spent. Although he belonged to a lodge in the remote Province of South Wales they were "civilized" enough to look upon Freemasonry as a noble institution, and did all they could to make it a success, which it undoubtedly was. He should carry back to his lodge the good wishes of the Granite. Bro. Black also responded to the toast. Bro. Martin, as connected with the Harrow and several other lodges, observed that he had never spent a pleasanter time since he had been a Freemason than he had that afternoon in the society of the members of the Granite. Bro. Phillips remarked that it gave him great pleasure to meet them. Their entertainment had created profound respect, and their mode of conducting the ceremonies had elicited his admiration. He should be only too pleased to repeat his visit. Bro. Oliver next gave "The Health of the Past Masters of the Lodge" which was drunk with true Masonic honours. He then selected the Treasurer, Bro. George Hackford, and the Secretary, Bro. J. Lewis Thomas, as the objects for the next toast, and added his testimony to the exertions of both those officers, and complimented them on their financial successes. Bro. Hackford, in reply, after thanking them for "drawing him out of the coffers, where he always hoped, to hide his head," humorously as said they had lifted him up above the sphere of the "outer world," he did occupy a position somewhat superior to that of ordinary mortals. At one time the duties were those of a sinecure, when he had no funds, no cares or anxieties; now, however, all was changed, for he had inherited one and all. He had to see that the funds were not wasted in rioting, and above everything, to secure that a large proportion should find its way into the channel of Masonic charity; and he was sure that although they subscribed liberally to the charities, yet they might further develop the scope and circumscription of their present benevolence. He hoped the time was near when the Granite would further extend its hand in this respect. They assembled not so much for individual enjoyment as for the social intercourse, and the flow of soul from man to man, brother to brother, and for the benefit of the world at large, and he hoped they would advance above the outer world in the amelioration of the outer world. Bro. J. Lewis Thomas said it gave him great pleasure to see around the festive board such a large assembly. He alluded with sincere regret to the calamity that had befallen the W.M., through whose illness nearly the whole of the ruling and carrying out of the lodge had fallen upon the Secretary's shoulders. He had endeavoured to perform the task thus involuntarily cast upon him, he hoped to their satisfaction. They had not had a great influx of new members of late, still the lodge was very prosperous. He might say they did not care to have many more accessions; the lodge was so full, and if the present number were to be exceeded it would be unmanageable. They were, therefore, at the climax of prosperity. The Horn of Plenty was overflowing. Their Treasurer did not look at the "materialism" of Masonry, but what it was intended for; that was to enlighten the world and do some good for our fellow creatures at large. He was sure the Treasurer's remarks had created a sound impression on those present. Bro. Oliver next proposed "The Health of the Officers." Bro. F. West, S.W., in responding, remarked that it was cheering to come into the presence of a body of brethren where all was peace, and he hoped that all Masons would seek to secure it throughout the world. If the world generally understood the principles of Freemasonry there would be no difficulties in the East. He thanked them for the hearty manner in which they had drunk his health and that of his brother officers. Bros. R. C. Mount, J.W.; Robert Payne, S.D.; John Rhodes, J.D.; and J. Oswald Gardner, Steward; also severally responded. Bro. Oliver next selected "The Press" as an object of Masonic favour, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. A. C. Shelley, who, in response, after pointing out the thoroughly Masonic character of journalism, the great, and increasing good achieved by cheap literature, and the schooling influence of editorials, told them that as they had selected him for a toast he felt he should be failing in his duty to the profession to which he belonged, if he did not intimate that he should at the next meeting of the lodge propose that as the "Freemason" was essentially an official journal of the proceedings of that lodge, and faithfully recorded every Masonic data of other lodges, that a copy be directed to be sent to the W.M. every week, who should be responsible for its safe filing. He mentioned that a file of the "Times" newspaper was an invaluable addition to a politician's or a commercial man's library, and they would find a file of the "Freemason" of equal use to the Craft. He did not doubt that the members took in the paper, but did they "file" it? He very much questioned whether they did. The receipt by the W.M. of a "file copy" every week would enable members at all ordinary meetings to refer at once for any information they might desire. After spending an enjoyable evening the members separated.

YEovil.—Lodge Brotherly Love (No. 329).—On the borders of Somerset and Dorset is the above town, noted for its glove trade, and in it is a flourishing Freemasons' lodge, held at that well known hostelry, the "Three Choughs," over whose destinies presides the most urbane and courteous of hosts, Bro. Sharland, who is second to none of the bonifaces in the West of England. Just across the borders in the adjoining county of Dorset is the quiet town of Sherborne, famed for its historical old abbey and for being the head quarters of the Blackmore Vale Hunt and an excellent lodge of the Craft, Lodge Benevolence, 1168, who a few months since invited the brethren of Lodge Brotherly Love to partake of their hospitality. They attended in goodly numbers, and were well pleased with the reception they met with, and wishing to reciprocate the kindly feelings of the child towards the mother, to strengthen the bonds of friendship, and increase the ties of brotherly love, they invited the brethren of the Sherborne Lodge to a banquet in this town, which was accepted in the spirit in which it was given, and on Wednesday, the 1st instant, the W.M., Bro. G. F. Stokes, of the Lodge of Benevolence, with his officers and some 15 of the brethren, put in an appearance at the Choughs shortly after 5 o'clock, when the lodge was opened, and the ordinary business having been dispatched it was raised to the Third Degree, and Bro. Cobb received to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason, the ceremony being most beautifully and impressively performed by the W.M., Bro. Foster, and the whole working of the lodge reflected great credit upon its officers. At the conclusion of the ceremony the lodge was duly closed in ancient form, and the brethren were called to refreshment, which took the shape of a very excellent banquet. The W.M. took the chair, supported on the right by Bros. Stokes, W.M. 1168; J. Trevor Davies, S.W. 1168; L. H. Ruegg, 1168; Price Org., 329; Summes, 1168; on the left by Bros. T.D. Davies, P.M. 1168; Milborne and Whitley, P.M. 329; Gillard, P.M., L. Elgare and Sharland King, 1168. The duties of the vice chair were very ably carried out by Bro. Cox, P.M., as the locus tenens of Bro. Damon, S.W., who although present at the lodge was unavoidably absent from the banquet until a late hour. Bro. Cox was supported by Bros. Cox, Chaffin and Brutton, P.M.'s 329; 329; Long, 1168; Dr. Colmar, S.D. 1168; H. Searle, 1168; and others. The cloth having been cleared, the W.M. gave the toast which is first and foremost at all Masonic gatherings, "The Queen and the Craft." She was a good Queen and a good mother, and needed no long speech to commend her many virtues. The next was "The Health of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Grand Master of England," who had reflected great honour upon the Craft and had endeared himself to every brother of it, and he had increased its influence in his visit to India; and the Chairman said he should ever hold in his remembrance the privilege he had had of his being present at his Royal Highness's installation. He proceeded next to give "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, the Provincial Grand Master of Somerset and his Officers." He and all the province deemed it a high honour, and one which was esteemed by all of them, to have such a distinguished Mason at their head; all knew how he worked for them and how rarely he was absent, and then only when his Queen called for his attendance at her councils; then of course everything must give place, and he would say this, that has long as the Sovereigns of this realm had such trusty Councillors as the Freemasons the stability of the Constitution was insured. He with others had attended the recent Provincial Grand Meeting at Bridgwater, and they had hoped to have seen his lordship's genial countenance beaming upon them, but he was obliged to be absent at a Privy Council, but in Lord Dufferin he had a worthy representative. The Chairman said the next toast on his list was what he should term the toast of the evening—he dare say some of them had thought he had been a long while coming to it, but he had considered it his duty loyally to propose the healths of those in authority over them. He would give them "The Health of Bro. G. F. Stokes, and the Officers and Brethren of the Lodge of Benevolence, 1168," whom he and all the brethren of their own lodge were pleased to welcome and extend the right hand of fellowship. He was sure they were pleased in having that opportunity of carrying out the principles of the Craft. Bro. Stokes in replying said he and the brethren accompanying felt the kindness with which their Yeovil brethren had received and entertained them; they had much enjoyed the hospitality which had been so liberally bestowed upon them. He would wish their lodge every success, which success depended upon the interest every individual brother took in the welfare of his lodge; he would like to see it regularly attended. He was able to say that he had not himself been absent from his lodge but once since his initiation; he was perfectly aware that all could not do that; but many by using a little self denial might attend oftener than they did. He was proud to say that although a young brother, the province of Dorset had at its last annual meeting awarded him a collar, which might perhaps be owing to the regularity of his attendance. He would enjoin young brethren to be regular in attendance, if so they would find it would bring with it its own reward. He begged on behalf of the Sherborne brethren to return their most sincere thanks, and to express a hope that that meeting might be but the inauguration of many such meetings. Several other toasts, Masonic and complimentary, were proposed, and all of which were enthusiastically drunk and none more so than "The Health of Bro. Sharland," for his catering. The proceedings of the evening were agreeably varied with some excellent singing. The happy party separated at midnight with many fervent hopes of being present at the next merry meeting.

PLUMSTEAD.—Pattison Lodge (No. 913).—The first meeting of the brethren of the above lodge, after the installation of the present W.M., Bro. W. T. Vincent, some three months ago, took place on Thursday, the 2nd inst., at Bro. Tucker's, the Lord Raglan, Burrage-road, and was attended by a large number of both members and visitors. The other officers present beside the W.M. were Bros. A. Penfold, I.P.M.; C. Conpland, P.M., and P.G. J.W. Kent; W. Tongue, P.M., and P.P.G.W. Kent; C. Ellis, P.M.; J. McDougall, P.M.; J. Henderson, P.M.; H. Butter, S.W.; J. D. Hayes, J.W.; A. Jessup, Treas.; E. Denton, P.M., and Sec.; C. Cooke, Org.; W. B. Lloyd, S.D.; J. Chapman, I.G.; J. Randall, W.S.; and R. Lester, O.G. Among the visitors were Bros. T. Butt, W.M. 700; W. Weston, W.M. 1536; F. G. Pownall, W.M. 13, and P.M. 1536; J. Ives, W.M. 1472; T. G. Day, W.M. 1076; F. J. Dawson, P.M. 700; G. Davies, P.M. 13; R. Thompson, 1536;

R. J. Warren, 1427; J. W. Farr, 1536; J. Tame, 700; G. Beaver, 700; G. Spinks, S.W. 1536; J. Plume, 1472; C. Morton, 700; H. Carline, 1536; W. Harris, 700; W. Beaver, 700; H. Bryceson, 700; T. W. Virgo, 700; G. Brown, 13; J. McCaffery, 700, and 1536; and others. The business before the lodge consisted of balloting for Messrs. Keeble, Stabback, and Letton, who, being approved of, were, with Mr. Brock, who had been previously balloted for, duly initiated into Freemasonry. Bro. J. Franklin was then raised to the Sublime Degree, both degrees being worked by Bro. Vincent exceedingly well, and, taking into consideration the fact of this being his first night in the chair, with every promise of his occupying a worthy place among the Masters of a lodge renowned for their careful and good working. Two propositions for initiation, and three for joining members, were then given, and the lodge was duly closed. The banquet was then attended to, upwards of seventy partaking, and on the cloth being removed, the W.M., with commendable brevity, gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. In reply to a very hearty reception of his name in connection with the Provincial Grand Officers of Kent, Bro. Coupland said he felt it a great honour to be in a position to return thanks for the Grand Officers, who, he felt sure, would be gratified at the compliment paid them. He was now the representative of Grand Lodge in that district, and he trusted that he should be enabled to carry out the important duties of the office he held to his own and their satisfaction. Bro. Penfold, as I.P.M., then proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and drew attention to the excellent work they had seen him do that night; it showed them what they had to expect, and he felt assured that in his hands the fame and honour of the lodge would never degenerate. Bro. Vincent, in reply, briefly thanked them for their hearty reception of his name, and hoped before the end of the year to show a great improvement upon the work of that night, and that the good feeling existing in the lodge would long continue. P.M. Ellis made an eloquent reply for "The Past Masters of the Lodge," and Bros. Davies, Butt, Day, and Weston responded for "The Visitors." "The Initiates" were warmly received, and returned thanks; and after "The Officers of the Lodge" had been heartily toasted, a verse of the "National Anthem" closed the meeting.

JERSEY.—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1003).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, on Wednesday, November 8th, for the purpose of installing the newly-elected W.M., when a very large number of brethren assembled to congratulate Bro. Wm. Wetherell on the successful termination of his labours, and Bro. P. Bois on the commencement of his career as a ruler of the Craft, under auspices so favourable, with such an example before him, and with the affairs of the lodge in so prosperous a condition. Bro. Wm. Wetherell, W.M., supported by the whole of his office-bearers, and by such good men and true as Bros. P. W. Benham, P.M., P.G. Treas.; Charles H. Benham, P.M. 1339; G. J. Renouf, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; F. Walden, P.M.; L. Pitcher, P.M., Sec.; J. Pullot, P.M.; P. Bois, S.W.; C. D. Bishop, J.W.; and others too numerous to mention, opened the lodge. Visitors: A. Schmitt, P.P.S.G.W.; J. O. LeSueur, P.M. 291, P.G. Sec.; Chas. Kingsnorth, W.M. 245, P.P.J.G.W.; Joseph O. Flaherty, P.M. 958, P.S.G.D.; W. Z. Pugsley, P.M. 245 P.P.J.G.W.; Edward Martel, W.M. 958, P.P.G.D.C.; G. F. Baker, W.M. 491, P.G.D.C.; F. P. LeMarquand, P.M. 491, P.P.G.S.D.; Edward Gilley, P.M. 491; Dr. Thomas J. Aubin, S.W. 491, P.G.S. of W.; and others. The minutes of the last meeting of the lodge were read and unanimously confirmed, and the report of the Auditors having been received and adopted, the W.M., with the assistance of his officers, raised to the Degree of a Master Mason Bro. Cartwright, and immediately vacated the chair in favour of the Installing Master, Bro. P. W. Benham. Bros. J. O. LeSueur and Martel presented Bro. P. Bois as W.M. elect. The customary enumeration of duties was made and acknowledged. The ancient charges were read and assented to, and the obligation of W.M. elect administered. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and all who had not passed the chair withdrew. A Board of seventeen Installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. P. Bois was duly placed in the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom. After the Board had been closed, the several classes of Master Masons, Fellow Crafts, and Entered Apprentices were in turn admitted, and the processions, salutations, and proclamations were gone through, respecting which it need only be recorded that Bro. Benham conducted the ceremonies with great exactitude and impressiveness. After the usual address to the W.M., delivered with great fervour, Bro. P. Bois briefly remarked that, fully acknowledging the difficulty of the task he had undertaken, he was sensible of the honour conferred upon him. He accepted the responsibility, and trusted that with God's help he should not be wanting in the worthy discharge of it, especially as he had been promised and could confidently rely upon efficient help from the P.M.'s. The following appointments were made, Bro. P. W. Benham in each case officiating and offering appropriate observations: Bros. C. D. Bishop, S.W.; J. Huelin, J.W.; J. Pallot, P.M., Sec.; F. C. Creese, J.D.; J. Harris, S.D.; F. Duggan, I.G.; and G. Rogers, P.M., Tyler. Lastly, the W.M. invested Bro. P. W. Benham as Treasurer, with some remarks as well deserved by his past services in that capacity as they were complimentary and sincere. No other business offering, the lodge was closed in perfect harmony. The brethren adjourned to the refreshment room, and about seventy sat down to an excellent dinner, provided by the guardian of the temple. After the cloth had been drawn, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured with every demonstration of respect and good feeling. Bro. A. Schmitt, in paying a just and well deserved tribute of respect and appreciation of the many and various services which Bro. P. W. Benham, the Installing Master, and father of the lodge, has not only rendered to it, but also to chapters and other Orders, said: Bro. Benham,—You have been for many years a true and genuine Mason; you have worked your way in the Craft well, steadily, and honourably, holding fast to Masonic principles, comprehending and grasping its true features; we all here feel, and are constantly enjoying, your untiring efforts to promote concord and prosperity in this province. The records of your lodges, chapters, &c., prove that at all times you were ardently performing the duties in various capacities with zeal and ability, and your happy, judicious, and harmonising spirit the Prince of Wales Lodge advanced to an honourable position. I feel confident that we cannot too highly estimate your worth as a man of honour and a Mason, and I feel sure, my brethren, that you will vividly mark your appreciation of it by cordially drinking his health. I therefore give, "The Health of the I.P.M., Founder of the Lodge, and Supporter of Masonic Charities." Bro. Benham expressed his hearty thanks to the brethren for so cordial a reception of his health, and felt assured that his efforts, humble as they had been were at least directed to one great point, the advancement of Masonry and the promotion of fraternal affection. The W.M., visitors, and officers, were next toasted, and the brethren separated at 10. The proceedings of the evening were enlivened by some excellent music from Bros. Campbell, Baker, and Dr. Aubin.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—The annual installation meeting of the above flourishing lodge, all the members of which belong to the military profession, was held in the Assembly Rooms, on Thursday, the 2nd November. The lodge was opened at 4.30 p.m. There were about seventy brethren present, including Bros. P.M. Eve, Hacker, Gold, Hickley, Pomeroy, Panmure Lodge, Aldershot; Bro. P.M. Vine, Bro. Anderson, and Bro. Goddard, W.M. St. Andrew's, Farnham; brethren from St. John's Lodge, Knaphill, the 17th Lancers Lodge, and several other lodges. Bro. P.M. White, W.M. pro tem., officiated at the meeting, and installed Bro. John Smith as W.M. for the ensuing year, much credit being due to Bro. White for the excellent manner in which he performed the ceremony. The W.M. having been duly installed, appointed his officers: Bros. Lucas, S.W. and Treas.; Field, J.W.; Cleasham, S.D.; McCudden, J.D.; Staley, I.G.; Thompson, Tyler. After this the members of the Charitable Association attached to the lodge balloted for a life subscribership in one of the Masonic Charities. This has been introduced into the lodge by Bro. Captain Richardson, and the lucky ticket was drawn by Bro. Hickley. Bro. Frayling presided at the harmonium. After the ceremony the brethren adjourned to the Royal Hall, where a magnificent banquet had been provided by Bro. Kne. Everything was got up by Bro. Kne in his usual style of perfection, and his catering gave the most entire satisfaction to the large company present. The cloth being removed, "The Queen and the Craft" was proposed by the W.M., which was loyally received, the brethren singing the Masonic National Anthem. This was followed by the toasts of "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," "The Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon," "The Rt. Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of England, Past and Present." The toast of "The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.," was proposed in complimentary terms, after which Bro. Hacker gave "The Very Worshipful the Prov. Grand Master of Hampshire and Isle of Wight, Bro. W. Hickman, and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers, Past and Present," to which Bro. Eve responded. Bro. White proposed "The W.M. of the Aldershot Camp Lodge," and Bro. Smith returned thanks in a few well chosen remarks. "The P.M.'s of the Aldershot Camp Lodge" was proposed by Bro. Eve, and replied to by Bro. White. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Visitors," which toast met with a hearty reception, and Bro. Goddard, W.M. of St. Andrew's Lodge, responded on their behalf. This was succeeded by "The Masonic Charities," which was eloquently given by Bro. Hacker, and responded to by Bro. Eve. The next toast was that of "The Wardens, Treasurer, and Officers of Aldershot Camp Lodge," to which the Senior Warden responded, the toasts being brought to a conclusion by "The Health of the Host," and the Tyler's toast. A most pleasant evening was spent by all the brethren, the proceedings being enlivened by some capital singing by Bros. Eve, White, Page and Weild.

CHIPPING SODBURY.—Tyndall Lodge (No. 1363).—On Wednesday, 1st inst., the brethren of this lodge assembled at the lodge room in the Town Hall, Chipping Sodbury, for the purpose of witnessing the installation of Bro. Algernon Sudlow in the W.M.'s chair. There was a goodly gathering of members of the Craft, many lodges being represented from Bath, Bristol, Cheltenham, and Chippenham. It was apparent to all as they entered the lodge that the installation ceremony would be, as indeed it eventually proved to be, a great success. Shortly after three, Bro. Chas. A. Bush, W.M., entered the lodge room with his officers, and at once proceeded to open the lodge. Bro. James Payne Curtis, the Secretary, then read the minutes, which were unanimously passed. He stated the accounts had been audited, and the balance was in the hands of the Treasurer. Bro. Dr. Wm. Benham, P.M., and P.Z. No. 103, P.P.G.D.C. Bristol, then proceeded to instal Bro. Algernon Sudlow, S.W., and W.M. elect, and performed his duties in a most impressive manner, to the perfect satisfaction of the brethren present, which was marked by Masonic approbation. After Bro. Sudlow was installed, and had received the usual congratulations, he addressed the brethren, and at once proceeded to appoint the officers for the ensuing year, investing Bros. C. A. Bush as his I.P.M.; C. M. Herm, S.W.; J. P. Curtis, J.W. and Secretary, who will now have held that office for four years in succession; J. Trenfield, Treas.; E. Crossman, S.D.; J. Limbrick, J.D.; W. Jones, I.G.; J. D. B. Trenfield, P.M., and P.G.S.B., the D.C.; W. Tayler and W. H. H. Hartley, Stewards; James Iles, Organist, and E. Holliday, Tyler. Suitable addresses were given by the new W.M. to each brother. The lodge was then closed. The brethren then adjourned to the Grapes Hotel, where a splendid banquet was provided. Upon the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave "The Queen and Craft," "The M.W.G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," "The Officers of the Grand Lodge of England," and also "The P.G. Lodge," all of which were most heartily responded to by the brethren with the usual honours. The W.M. next proposed "The Masonic Charities of our Order," to enable Bro. Colonel Henry Basevi, Past D.D. G.M., P.G.R., and Secretary to the Charity Committee of Gloucestershire, to respond, he having to return to Cheltenham by an early train. The W.M. spoke at some length upon the subject, pointing out the grand work which the Freemasons had been accomplishing for centuries, silently, but most effectually. At the same time he congratulated the brethren that they had one amongst them that evening who took the liveliest interest in the Masonic charities, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Colonel Henry Basevi. Bro. Basevi then described the formation and working of the Institutions, and urged the brethren to give their support, and increase the voting power in the province. Before sitting down, Bro. Basevi, in a kind and most truly Masonic manner, proposed "The Health of the W.M." "The Health of the new W.M." was then drunk most heartily. The W.M., in thanking the brethren for the honour they had conferred on him, said he had accepted the post of W.M. feeling its responsibilities, but with the determination to carry out the principles of Freemasonry to the very letter, at least as far as lay in his power, and they were nothing unless so carried out. He then referred to the grand principles of Freemasonry, the great care to be taken (now so many were pressing into the ranks) respecting admittance into the Order, and then proceeded to refute objections advanced by ignorance or prejudice against the principles of the Craft, enlarging upon Masonic matters which are forbidden to the outside world. Before taking his seat he begged to propose "The Health of the Installing Master," whom he thanked most heartily for the kind and impressive manner in which he had performed the duties of his office. No one, added the W.M., could go away from that ceremony without feeling deeply its solemnity, and every brother must feel it a great honour to the lodge to be able to include amongst its members one who so strictly adhered in theory and practice to the sublime principles of Freemasonry. Besides the officers already mentioned, we noticed Bro. Samuel Davies, P.G.S.W. Monmouthshire, P.P.G.S. Gloucester; F. J. Vizard, P.M.; W. R. Latter, C. J. H. Turvin, Wm. Higgs, J. F. Wills, T. Brooke, Moses Eyles, J. T. Brown, W.M. 41; E. Wear, 68; G. F. Knowland, 68; G. H. Cooke, W.M. 379; H. C. Hopkins, J.W. 379; A. G. Williams, 610; A. Vosper, 610; T. H. Phillips, P.M. 626; J. Lane, Treas. 626; G. J. Bailey, Sec. 636; W. T. Briscoe, J.D. 626; George Munday, 626; Jesse Hayward, J.D. 906; James Stuckey, I.G. 906, and others. The brethren spent a most enjoyable evening, and before separating they again complimented the W.M., and wished him a happy and prosperous year of office.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Truth (No. 1458). The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, November 4th, and there was a large attendance of brethren. Mr. Arthur Barber was initiated, and Bro. Duckworth passed by Bro. Kent, W.M. Bro. Batchelder, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Tyers, P.M., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Beswick Tyler. Auditors were then appointed. There was one proposition for joining member, and the lodge was closed at 7.30 p.m. The brethren then adjourned to banquet; the usual toasts were duly honoured, and a very pleasant evening was spent at the festive board.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—Henley Lodge (No. 1472).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge took place on Tuesday, the 7th inst., at Bro. E. West's, the Three Crowns, Bro. J. Ives, W.M., in the chair. The following officers were present:—Bros. B. B. Brayshaw, P.M.; H. Sisley, P.M.; W. Steele, S.W.; T. Geller, Treas.; J. Henderson, P.M. and Sec.; W. T. Turner, J.D.; N. Stanfield, I.G.; J. Plume, D.C.; and Steadman, P.M., Tyler. The visitors included T. Day, W.M. 1076; H. Green, 1076; C. Cooke, Org. 13, 700, 913; C. Mitchell, 700; and C. Jolly, 913. The lodge having been duly opened, Bros. J. Jewell and J. C. Dowsett, on evidence of proficiency, were passed to the Second Degree, and Messrs. T. Doyle and W. C. Risby were approved of and initiated. Nothing could exceed the earnest and solemn manner in which the W.M. performed these several ceremonies; nor must a word of praise be denied to Bros. Turner and Stanfield, who, in the absence of the J.W. and S.D., filled those various offices admirably. Hearty good wishes having been given from the Pattison, 913, Nelson, 700, and Union Waterloo, 13, by their several representatives, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to supper, which was, as usual, well looked to by the worthy host. On assembling again, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were briefly but pointedly given by the W.M., and as cordially responded to. We must congratulate this young lodge upon its great success in doing good Masonic work.

LEWISHAM.—New Cross Lodge (No. 1559).—Nine months have now passed since the above lodge was consecrated at the Public Hall, Lewisham High Road, and during this period thirteen brethren have been initiated into the mysteries of the Craft. Thus it will be seen that the initiations have been far from numerous, which is to be accounted for by the fact that the New Cross brethren were by no means anxious to become a numerous lodge, and the fees are somewhat heavier than is usual, more especially so for this locality. The meeting of Saturday, the 4th inst., was not by any means well attended, and some of the brethren were anything but punctual in their observation of the summons to meet at three p.m. "Punctuality is the soul of business," as we wrote in big type in our copy books at school. We are always pleased to see a full muster at the opening of lodge, and nothing carries a worse impression, at all events from a visitatorial point of view, than a bare and deserted lodge-room, that gradually fills as the ceremonies while away. In the temporary absence of the W.M., Bro. Keeble, P.M. Sec., assumed the chair, the lodge being formed as follows:—E. H. Thielley, S.W.; W. A. Simmonds, J.W.; L. Beck, S.D.; H. T. Green, J.D.; W. Hardman, I.G.; Chapman, Tyler. There were also present Bros. Solomon Jewell, Moss, Smurthwaite, Ernest Smith, D. Malpas, Metham, Grumant, Cowley, and Macgillivray, members; Bro. C. J. Hogg, P.M., P.G.S., hon. member; and Bros. J. W. Baldwin, P.M. 1423, and Andrews, 871. Lodge was opened in the First Degree, and Bro. Macgillivray, a candidate for passing, was interrogated, and having given substantial proofs of the progress he had made since initiation, in point of fact having acquitted himself in a highly satisfactory manner, was rewarded, and withdrew. Lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Keeble, in a careful manner, passed Bro. Macgillivray to the degree of a Fellow Craft. Bros. Malpas, Moss, Grumant, and Cowley, having been examined as Fellow Crafts, withdrew, and the lodge was opened in the Third Degree. Bros. Malpas and Moss were admitted and raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., a privilege that was subsequently extended to Bros. Grumant and Cowley. Too much cannot be said of the painstaking manner in which the double ceremony of the Third Degree was worked by the W.M., who was throughout struggling with a bad cold. After lodge had been resumed in the First Degree, the W.M., Bro. W. B. Woodman, arrived, and relieved Bro. Secretary of the duties of the chair. The bye-laws having been read (and very well read too), in open lodge by Bro. Green, J.D., the duty of electing a successor to Bro. Woodman, whose year of office expires in February, devolved upon the lodge, and after the ballot had been taken, the W.M. announced that the choice of the brethren had fallen on Bro. Keeble, P.M., Sec., who was officially informed of the fact, and briefly responded, Bro. F. Walters, P.G.J.D., &c., was re-elected Treas., and Bro. Church, Tyler, for the ensuing year. Bros. H. J. Green, S. Jewell, and E. Smith were appointed auditors. Bro. Keeble proposed, and Bro. Thielley seconded, that the retiring W.M., Bro. W. B. Woodman, be presented with a ten guinea jewel in commemoration of his having filled the post of first W.M. of the New Cross Lodge. This was unanimously agreed to. All Masonic business being now at an end, the lodge was closed in due form, and with solemn prayer, and adjourned till the first Saturday in February. The brethren were afterwards regaled with light refreshments, and, after an enjoyable hour had been spent, separated.

PUTNEY.—Royal Commemoration Lodge (No. 1885).—The members of the above lodge met on Wednesday, the 1st inst., under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. J. Wright. There were also present Bros. Robinson and Jackson as Wardens; Bro. P.M. H. Smith, Sec.; and Bro. Watkins, as Treasurer. The lodge having been duly opened and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, the W.M. examined Bros. Weston and Hatfield, and raised them to the degree of M.M. Bros. Maryon, Pardoe, Williams, and Easton being present, they were found duly qualified to be passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. Ballot was taken for Messrs Bury, Rowe, Breach, Barratt, and Read, and they were then initiated into the ancient mysteries. Bro. Watt, of the Mount Edgcumbe Lodge, was balloted for, and admitted as a joining member. The W.M., rising before closing the lodge, informed the members that he had received a communication from the Secretary of the Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons, asking for a Steward to be nominated for the next festival. The W.M. offered to represent the lodge, which we believe was agreed to, and he then closed in the usual manner. On the brethren assembling at the festive board, they numbered nearly fifty, there being a deputation from the brethren of the Southern Star Lodge, who were specially invited by the W.M. and officers. The viands having been disposed of and grace said, the W.M. rose and in his usual flow of good humour gave the regular Masonic toasts. P.M. Smith handling the gavel, proposed The Health of the W.M.; which was well received by one and all. We could hardly expect anything else, for not only is the W.M. a great favourite, but the worthy Secretary proposed it in such a manner, that he could not fail to make the brethren receive it otherwise. The toast having been responded to, that of the "Initiates," was given, and some very curt replies were made. The next was the toast of the evening, and was replied to by I.P.M. Bro. Wise, of the Southern Star, for himself and co-brethren, by J. H. Watts and P.M. Mander, of the Eclectic and P.M. Simpson, of the Britannia. The other toasts were "The Secretary and Treasurer" replied to by the former, and The "Officers of the Lodge" by the S.W. Bro. Steed then gave the Tyler's toast, and this pleasant afternoon and evening were brought to a close. We omitted to mention, that whilst the candidates were being prepared, Bro. Collings the D.C., with the kind assistance of Bro. Cull (J.D. of the Mount Edgcumbe) worked the fifth section of the first lecture in a very creditable manner, the former putting the questions and the latter answering. Besides the brethren mentioned above, there were also present P.M. Messenger, 1216; Bros. Huntley, 1044; Terrington, 1366; Matthews, 180; Day, 1563; Farwig, 180; and Davis, 167.

INSTRUCTION.

RICHMOND.—The Lily Lodge (No. 820).—This lodge of instruction was opened at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, on Saturday, the 4th inst., at 7 p.m. Bro. H. Kyezor, W.M., I.G. of 820, 266; Bro. Digby, S.W.; Bro. Harris, J.W.; Bro. Hopwood, S.D., P.M. 1328; Bro. Hurst, J.D.; and W.M. of 1512, and Bro. Phillips, Preceptor of 820, S.W. of 925. The lodge being opened in due form the minutes of the last meeting were confirmed, it was then opened in the Second and Third Degrees, closed regularly down, and adjourned until Saturday, the 11th inst., at 7 p.m., after which the brethren sat down in the banqueting hall to one of Bro. Palmer's recherché dinners. The cloth being removed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to with all honours. The W.M., Bro. Kyezor, then rose, and said it was his pleasing duty in the name of the members of the Lily Lodge of Instruction to present to Bro. Phillips a dozen sterling silver tea-spoons and sugar-tongs, as a slight token of the esteem they held him in for the efficient and able services he had rendered them as Hon. Secretary. The W.M., concluded by wishing that Bro. Phillips might live long enough to wear them out. Bro. Phillips in a few well-chosen remarks thanked the brethren for the good feeling evinced towards him, which he should always endeavour to retain. The Tyler's toast having been given, the brethren separated, having spent a most enjoyable evening.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—At a meeting of the above Lodge of Instruction, held at 2, Westminster Chambers, Victoria-street, Bro. Thomas Lamb, of No. 1563, worked the first ceremony in a very able manner. After the four sections had been worked under the Preceptorship of C. A. Cottebrune, the sums of £10 10s. were voted to the Girls' School, and £10 to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, leaving a balance in hand. It was resolved that the annual banquet of the Lodge of Instruction should take place on Tuesday, the 19th of December, at seven o'clock; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P., in the chair. Fifteen brethren immediately offered their services as Stewards. Thirty-six brethren were present.

Royal Arch.

MOUNT LEBANON CHAPTER (No. 73).—The regular convocation of this chapter was holden on Thursday, November 9th, at the Bridge House Hotel, High-street, Southwark. The chapter was opened by Comps. W. E. Smeed, P.Z., as M.E.Z.; J. W. Baldwin, H.; John Mason, J.; F. Walters, P.G. 1st. A.S. Middlesex, P.Z., S.E.; E. Harris, P.Z.; J. T. Moss, P.Z.; and others. The warrant was produced. Letters were read, one from Comp. H. A. Dubois, M.E.Z., regretting his absence, caused by the recent loss he had sustained in the death of a younger brother. The greatest sympathy was felt for him by all the members. Also one for Comp. T. J. Sabine, P.Z., Treasurer, whose absence was attributed to circumstances beyond his control, for which he apologised. The ballots, taken separately, were unanimously in favour of the admission of Comps. T. W. Clarke, 177, Domestic Chapter, as a joining member, and W. Dunham, P.M. 700, S.W. 1567; and A. J. Ireton, S.D. 73, as candidates for exaltation. In an impressive manner, the work of the chairs being done in a faultless style by Comps. J. Mason, J.; J. W. Baldwin, H.; and W. Smeed, M.E.Z., Bro. W. Dunham was exalted, then Bro. A. J. Ireton. The candidates being introduced separately added to the solemnity of the ceremony. Too much praise cannot be given to Comp. J. Mason for his excellent rendering of the work of the J. chair. It was sacerdotal in every respect, for it could not have been done better by any one. All the officers distinguished themselves by the correct manner in which they did their work. Some important notices of motion in reference to bye-laws were given. Comp. F. Walters, in a comprehensive speech, proposed, J. W. Baldwin, H., seconded, and it was carried unanimously, "That a five-guinea testimonial be presented to Comp. W. Smeed, P.Z., from the chapter funds (and the choice of testimonial to be left with him) as a slight recognition of his many valuable services rendered to the chapter." On his return to the chapter (the motion being discussed and carried during his absence), Comp. W. Smeed was informed of the testimonial. He, in a suitable speech, acknowledged it. The usual propositions for exaltation were received. The chapter was closed and adjourned to Thursday, January 11th, at six p.m. The supper followed work. A happy evening was agreeably spent. There were present Comps. M. D. Loewenstark, J. S. Sweasey, J. H. Spencer, and many more. The visitors were Comps. W. S. Wyman, 176; W. T. Lower, 176; J. W. Clark, 177; and others.

INSTRUCTION.

MOUNT SINAI CHAPTER (No. 19).—This well worked chapter now meets regularly every Saturday evening at the Union Tavern, Air-street, Regent-street, and is attended by some of the most skilled Royal Arch Masons. The officers on last Saturday week, Nov. 4, were Comps. Cameron, M.E.Z.; Barnell, H.; Hooper, J.; Reed, S.E.; Bentley, N.; and Pulsford, P.S. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed, Comp. H. Thompson, ("Freemason") 619, being the candidate. The interesting ritual of the degree was most ably rendered, and commanded the greatest attention from the impressive manner in which the whole of the ceremony was performed. At the conclusion Comp. Pulsford worked the first clause of the Lecture, after which the chapter was closed in due form.

The Stationers' Company have granted the use of their hall for the purposes of the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the introduction of printing into England, to take place in June next.

Mark Masonry.

ST. MARK'S LODGE (No. 1).—The November meeting of the above lodge was held on Tuesday week at the Masonic Rooms, 175, Aldersgate-street. Present: Bros. Charles Horsley, W.M., 32°, P. Prov. G. Reg. Middlesex, P.M., P.Z.; E. H. Thielley, S.W.; Simmonds, J.W.; H. C. Levander, P.M., Treas.; George Kenning, P.M., Hon. Sec.; Newton, Lea, Shepherd, and others. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The usual routine having been disposed of, the brethren adjourned to banquet.

LIVERPOOL.—West Lancashire Lodge (No. 65).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge of Mark Master Masons was held at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on Wednesday, the 1st inst. The lodge was opened about six o'clock by Bro. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., and amongst others present during the evening were Bros. W. J. Lunt, P.M., P.G.S.D.; Henry Jackson, P.G.S.D.; John Hayes, J.W.; J. R. Goepel, P.M., P.G.S.O., Treas.; A. Bucknall, Sec.; J. Burrows, M.O.; R. H. Evans, S.D.; W. H. Cooper, J.D.; J. M. Thomson, I.G.; A. C. Wylie, S.; Wm. Fletcher, Wm. Gray, Jno. Williams, J. B. Brown, W. P. Jennings, L. B. Goodman, H. W. Parry, Geo. Hutchin, R. Reader, Jno. Parker, Thos. Roberts, Fred. Cooper, M. Drake, Joseph Wood, P.P.G. Sd. Bearer ("Freemason"), and Hugh Williams (a visitor from another lodge). The minutes of the previous regular meeting were read and confirmed, after which Bro. Henry Jackson, P.G.S.D. (the W.M. elect) was presented by Bro. W. J. Lunt, P.M., P.G.S.D., and Bro. J. R. Goepel, P.G.S.O., to Bro. Dr. J. K. Smith, the Installing Master, to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. All the brethren below the rank of Installed Masters were requested to retire, and upon their return the newly-installed W.M. was saluted in the usual manner. He afterwards proceeded to invest the following as his officers:—Bros. John Hayes, S.W.; H. Burrows, J.W.; A. Bucknall, Chaplain; J. R. Goepel, P.M., P.G.S.O., Treas.; R. H. Evans, Sec.; H. Cooper, M.O.; G. Hutchin, S.O.; A. C. Wylie, I.G.; J. M. Thomson, Registrar of Marks; Rich. Reader, S.D.; F. Cooper, J.D.; Wm. Fletcher, I.G.; W. P. Jennings, S.S.; John Williams, J.S., M.O. Joppa Lodge. A vote of thanks to Bro. J. K. Smith, the Installing Master, for the excellent way in which he had conducted the ceremony was ordered to be recorded on the minutes. Lodge was then closed in due form. The brethren afterwards sat down to banquet under the presidency of the W.M., who gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. In giving "The R.W. Provincial G.M. Master," Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, the W.M. said that it had afforded him great satisfaction to have him present at the imposing gathering of what he would term the cream of Masonry in the two provinces of East and West Lancashire, which had recently assembled at Manchester to do honour to the R.W. Prov. G.M.M., on the occasion of his being installed by the M.W.G.M.M.M., the Earl of Limerick. He (the W.M.) wished that some of those who rather pool-pooled Mark Masonry, and spoke of it in slighting terms, had also been present, as he had no doubt their opinion of the degree would have been materially altered when they found so many men of "Mark" in the province, evidently taking a deep interest in Mark Masonry, and expressing such high regard for the degree as they did on that occasion. (Hear, hear.) He trusted that under Lord Skelmersdale Mark Masonry would flourish and spread in the county palatine of Lancaster, and soon arrive at the position it deserved. (Cheers.) Other toasts followed, and a most agreeable evening was brought to a close at an early hour.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. John (No. 34).—The regular bi-monthly meeting of this most ancient and prosperous lodge was held in their hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Tuesday, the 7th inst., Bro. D. M. Nelson, W.M., presiding; Jas. Sellars, S.W.; P. Brownlie, J.W. There were also present J. Dick, Sec.; J. D. Young, D.M.; T. B. Bell, S.M.; T. Fletcher, P.M.; William Bell, P.M.; W. H. Bickerton ("Freemason"), and a very large attendance, as usual, of members and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened by Bro. D. M. Nelson, W.M., and the minutes read and approved of. Bros. Mc Faggart and Young were proposed as joining members, and received into this lodge, the W.M. performing the ceremony. Messrs. G. Galloway, J. Henderson, Wm. Moore, and D. L. Arthur were admitted as members, and received the E.A. Degree under the careful working of Bro. Wm. Bell, I.P.M. The lodge then passed to refreshment, and after the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been given and duly responded to, Bro. Dr. Robertson gave a very interesting account of his late travels through the United States of America, to the very great pleasure of all present. At the conclusion of this most pleasing lecture, Bro. J. G. Sharpe, eminent Scottish tenor, sang "Mc Gregor's gathering" in a most effective style. This, with other songs and toasts, made up a most pleasant evening. Bro. Nelson, W.M., said before closing the lodge he had a most pleasing duty to perform, that of presenting to the lodge, on behalf of Bro. Jas. Cruikshank, P.M., a very handsome silver mounted maul, made from a branch cut from an olive tree near to where the temple stood in Jerusalem, on his journey through Palestine at the early part of this year. Bro. Nelson said he was very proud of this most handsome gift on behalf of St. John's Lodge, and he had no doubt all the members of the lodge appreciated it as he did, and he would move that a vote of thanks be recorded in the minutes to Bro. Jas. Cruikshank in acknowledgment of their esteem of his kindness, which was unanimous. This brought the proceedings to a close.

RUTHERGLEN.—Lodge St. John (No. 347).—At a special meeting of this lodge, held on Friday evening, the 3rd inst., Bro. J. Cunningham, P.M., presiding, the following gentlemen were nominated for election for the various offices:—D. Smart, W.M.; J. Cunningham, P.M.; M. Abbott, D.M.; G. M'Call, S.M.; John Murdoch, J.M.; Thos. Alston, S.W.; John Whyte, J.W.; William Young, J.R.; W. Gardiner, Treas.; Alexander Warnock, Sec.; A. Robertson, S.D.; P. M. Ross, J.D.; Thomas Simpson, J.D.; A. Brown, P.G.S.; H. Aitken, S.S.; M. Sparkis, J.S.; A. Pearson, Chaplain; John Terrie, B.B.; J. Kennedy, B.B.; J. Shields, Swd. Bearer; W. Carlin, I.G.; J. Cairns, Tyler.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Union (No. 332).—The nomination of office-bearers of this lodge for the ensuing year was made at their meeting held in St. Mark's Hall, on Monday, the 6th inst. Bro. D. McKirdy, W.M., presided, and there was a numerous attendance of brethren of the lodge. The following were nominated for reelection without opposition, viz.:—Bros. D. McKirdy, W.M.; William Murray, S.M.; John M'Innes, S.W.; John Laird, Treas.; D. S. Mitchell, Archt.; and L. Rombach, jeweller. Bro. James Balfour was nominated without opposition to the office of Depute Master. On the motion of the W.M. (Bro. McKirdy) an office new to this lodge was created—namely, Director of Music, and Bro. Andrew M'Ewan was duly nominated to the same amid demonstrations of universal approval. Thereafter, a motion by Bro. James Balfour was read to the effect that the sum of £20 from the lodge funds be invested in shares of the proposed new Masonic Hall, at the West-end, the scheme of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, and also that the sum of £5 from the lodge funds be given to the same as a donation. The motion is to come up for discussion at next meeting. There being no further business, the lodge was then closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Caledonian Railway (No. 354).—The nomination of office-bearers of this lodge for the ensuing Masonic year took place in the hall, at 30, Hope-street, on Wednesday evening, the 1st inst., when the following brethren were duly proposed and seconded for the respective offices, and the nomination agreed to, nemine contradicente:—Bros. Anderson, Banner Bearer; George Anderson, I.G.; James Minnoch, Tyler. Bros. Croall and W. R. Dunn were appointed Auditors.

GLASGOW.—St. Andrew's Chapter (No. 69).—A lodge of Royal Ark Mariners was held in the lodge-rooms, 25, Robertson-street, on the 25th ult., Thos. M. Campbell, N.; J. H. Fast, J.; David Ramsay, S. On the lodge being opened, Comps. William C. Buntin, John McInnes, James Blackwood, and Robert Brand received the degree. And on the 31st ult. the above lodge was opened at the same place, Thomas M. Campbell, N.; James O. Park, J.; and George W. Wheeler, S., when Comps. T. Cowan, John Grieve, and William E. Mc Millan received the degree. It is unnecessary to mention that the degree was given in the usual efficient manner that this chapter is famed for.

PARTICK.—Royal Arch Chapter (No. 113).—In the new Masonic Hall, Douglas-street, on Wednesday, the 8th inst., the usual monthly meeting of this chapter was held. There was a good attendance of companions. After the chapter had been opened in due and ancient form by the First Principal Z (Comp. Halket), a candidate was raised to the most excellent and R.A. Degree. Supper was then served, and Comp. George Ward (Second Principal H.) did duty at the foot of the table. Toast, song, and sentiment followed, and a very happy evening was spent. It has been arranged, in order to promote greater social intercourse amongst members, to have a supper at the conclusion of the business of each monthly meeting.

A WARRANT 819 YEARS OLD.

The following appears in the "Masonic Eclectic" of October, 1876, Washington, U.S., and I shall be glad to know where the original is. I fancy that it is an old friend.—A MASONIC STUDENT.

"Malcolm the third by the grace of God King of Scots, wishes health and safety to the Bishops, Princes, Earls, Barons, Ministers, and Administrators of our law, and all good men of the nation, both clergy, laicks, or common people, and to all where these presents shall come, greeting. Whereas, our trusty and well-beloved friends, the Operative Masons in the City of Glasgow, hath, by their petition, humbly represented to us that the inhabitants of this city has been imposed upon by a number of unskilled and insufficient workmen that has come to work at our cathedral and other parts of the city, and also has erected lodges contrary to the rules of Masonry, and being desirous of putting a stop to such unskilled and irregular brothers, most humbly prays us to grant them our royal license and protection for stopping such irregular disorders; and being willing to give all due encouragement to so reasonable a petition, are graciously pleased to condescend to their request, and we do, by these presents, ordain and grant to our petitioners, to incorporate themselves together in one incorporation, and we strictly discharge any mason within the aforesaid city to work in it, until he serve his time as an apprentice for the space of seven years, or he be married to a freeman's daughter; and he or they shall be examined ament their skill and knowledge in the Mason Craft, by three of the ablest of the Mason trade; and if they be found of cunning or knowledge to be received into the incorporation, each shall pay twenty pounds Scots to the common funds, and three pounds to the altar and clerks, and officers' dues, which the aforesaid incorporation shall always be allowed to be the judge of that and other laws made for the behoof of the foresaid incorporation. Item, that the free and incorporate Masons of Glasgow, shall have a lodge for ever at the City of Glasgow. None in my dominions shall erect a lodge until they make application to the St. John's Lodge, Glasgow, and they considering their petition and examining their character and behaviour, grant them a charter, conform to their regulations. Item, that all the members of said incorporation shall have liberty to quarry stones, lime sand and other materials, from the grounds of persons, for paying the damages for what they occupy, or damage for building the foresaid cathedral. But if the owners of the said lands and the foresaid workmen do not agree, each party is to choose an honest man to value the expenses of the foresaid damages. Item, and that any having power from me, maintain my peace firm and stable against all other pretenders and usurpers, who encroach on me or my subjects to disturb our peace. Item, and that you and all my subjects in this obey the magistrates in things relating to my peace and the good of the city. Item, and that you instruct and teach apprentices, and that none take or employ any man's apprentice when their time of apprenticeship is not completed, under the pain of twenty pounds, the one half to the incorporation, one fourth to the lodge, and one fourth to St. Thomas' altar to say mass to their soul. Item, and I strictly charge and command that none take in hand to disturb the Free Operative Masons from being incorporated freemen, or to have a free lodge, to take away their good name or possession, or harass or do any injury to my Freemasons and petitioners under the peril of my highest displeasure; and we order that notice be taken that due obedience may be rendered to our pleasure herein declared. Given at our court, at Fordie, the 5th day of October, 1057 years, before these witnesses—Earl David, my brother, Earl Duncan, Earl Gilbert, of Monteith, Sir Robert, of Velen, Adam, of Stenhouse, and Andrew Hamilton, Bishop of Glasgow."

MASONIC PRECEPTS.—Never solicit a man to become a Mason. Never be absent from your lodge, if you can help it. Never repel a brother because he is poor. Never fail to admonish a brother if you see him err. Never become an informer or spy upon your brethren. Never forget that a Mason is your brother, and treat him accordingly. Never act or sympathize with any part or clique in the body of Masonry. Never make a display of Masonic emblems to attract attention for purposes of business. Never recommend an applicant, unless you know him to be a good man, and who will conform to the precepts of the institution. Never cast your ballot in favour of a candidate, unless you know him to be worthy, and free from reproach.—"Craftsman."

At a meeting held on Wednesday week, under the presidency of a member of the Court of Common Council, a City Permissive Bill Association was formed, and it was stated that 400 City electors had already enrolled themselves as supporters of the measure.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The sudden changes, frequent fogs, and prevailing dampness sorely impede the vital functions and conduce to ill-health. The remedy for these disorders lies in some purifying medicine, like these Pills, which is competent to grapple with the mischief at its source, and stamp it out without fretting the nerves or weakening the system. Holloway's Pills extract from the blood all noxious matters, regulate the action of every disordered organ, stimulate the liver and kidneys, and relax the bowels. In curing chest complaints these Pills are remarkably effective, especially when aided by friction of the Ointment on its walls. This double treatment will ensure a certain, steady, and beneficent progress, and sound health will soon be re-established.—ADVS.

The Freemasons of Warwickshire have just erected a reredos in St. Martin's Church, Birmingham. The space immediately beneath the great east window has been arcaded nearly to the full width, and beneath the canopied enrichment of the three central openings a carving in alabaster, representing the Lord's Supper, has been introduced. The modelling of the figures has been most carefully executed, the requisite solidity and effect having been gained without meretricious recourse to undue undercutting. The columns which support the canopy are of polished serpentine marble, while the canopy itself is carved fine-grained sandstone. The work so far has been executed at the cost of the Freemasons, but there is yet in the vacant arcade spaces to right and left sufficient scope for enshrining like gifts. It is proposed that those interested in the completion of the church should yet further assist in the matter, so that in the additional carvings of the "Entry into Jerusalem" the "Cleansing of the Temple," on the one side of the altar-piece, and the "Agony of the Garden," and the "Betrayal," on the other, a sequence should be afforded of some of the leading events in the life of Jesus. The figures of the four Evangelists will presently furnish the niches in the central part of the canopy; but as yet there are not funds sufficient to warrant the like furnishing of the remaining niches. The reredos has been designed by Mr. J. A. Chatwin, under whose hands the complete restoration of St. Martin's has been effected, and to Messrs. Farmer and Brindley, of London, the work of the carving has been entrusted.—"Figaro."

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has become the purchaser of two of Mr. Herbert Johnson's large sketches of events of more than ordinary consequence which marked His Royal Highness's tour in India. These pictures are entitled "The First Day in Nepal" and "The Hunt of the Wild Elephant"—by name Miserrimus, as Mr. W. H. Russell christened it on the spot. The artist is a Gold Medallist of the Royal Academy, and well deserves the success which he has achieved.—"Whitehall Review."

Her Majesty has commanded that instructions be given to the Master of the Mint to prepare a die, and cast a sufficient number of medals commemorative of the Arctic Expedition, to be distributed amongst the officers and crews of Her Majesty's ships Alert and Discovery, and the Arctic yacht Pandora.

The Alert and Discovery, the Arctic ships, have taken up their position in Portsmouth Harbour, and the crews are on leave of absence for three weeks. Captain Nares has been on a visit to the Prince of Wales. The Queen has conveyed her thanks to all engaged in the expedition, and the officers have been promoted. Many people incline to the belief that if the aid of engineers is called in, a passage could be speedily cut through the ice, and the Pole reached. The Pandora, which left to learn tidings of the expedition, has also returned.

LEICESTER SQUARE SOUP KITCHEN AND REFUGE.—In the year ending 31st October last, 132,787 meals of good nourishing meat soup and bread were given to the destitute by the Leicester-square Soup Kitchen and Refuge, 978 families were supplied with Christmas dinners, and 59 tons of coal were distributed in portions of half cwt. each. The Refuge afforded 2728 nights' lodgings, with suppers and breakfasts. The institution, which was founded in 1846, is situated in Ham-yard, Great Windmill-street, W., and is the only resource of the kind in the metropolis that is open all the year. The relief is given by tickets, which are dispensed by the subscribers, the clergy, the visitors to the poor, but in many cases of real and urgent distress, and in severe weather, this rule is somewhat relaxed, and hundreds of poor famishing creatures are relieved without tickets.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—The monster clock which has been in course of erection during the past six months at the south end of the building, is now completed and in working order. This clock is almost a counterpart of the Great Westminster clock, with the exception of the striking and chiming apparatus, and the dial is the largest ever yet constructed, being 40 feet in diameter, or nearly 1300 square feet in area. That of the Westminster Clock is about 23 feet. The hands, with their counterpoises, weigh nearly a quarter of a ton; the minute hand measures 19 feet in length, and moves half an inch of every beat of the pendulum. The distance travelled by the point of the minute hand is nearly 4 miles per week. During 17 days of observation, its variation was only 8 seconds.

THE GAIETY RESTAURANT, under the able management of Bro. Baylis, bids fair to secure the liberal patronage that comfort and convenience, combined with supply of articles of the best quality, command. A few months ago this Restaurant passed into the possession of Bro. Baylis, since which time extensive alterations have been made, and a new entrance built in the Strand, leading to a Refreshment Bar (for Gentlemen only) and Grill Room, the appointments of which are perfect, and supply a want long felt in this important locality. In addition, there are Banqueting and Private Rooms, Billiard and Smoking Rooms, with every convenience in the shape of Lavatories, etc. For Masonic Banquets or Public Dinners the resources of the establishment will ensure the utmost satisfaction, be the assemblage large or small. Under the present proprietorship we wish the "Gaiety Restaurant" the success it deserves.

We learn with regret that very serious apprehensions are entertained as to the issue of the illness from which the Duchess of Cambridge has for some time been suffering. The condition of Her Royal Highness on Wednesday was such as to warrant the gravest fears on the part of the Royal Family, and the inquiries at Kew Palace as to the state of the illustrious patient were numerous and anxious.—"Echo."

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, NOV. 18, 1876.

A MASONIC PRESS.

We have thought it well, as we are now in the midst of November, to devote a portion of our space to the consideration of this very important subject, for various reasons, and with a definite end. We are not insensible to the a priori reasons often brought forward against Masonic publication. We often feel ourselves, as we have previously said, how difficult is the position of the Masonic publisher, the task of the Masonic editor. For, unlike most other institutions of earth, Freemasonry "per se" gains nothing by publication, by the obtrusion of its principles or proceedings on the attention of the outside world. Indeed, it is impossible, in our opinion, any longer to justify that abuse of the Masonic press which has been going on for some time past, in the opening out to the profane world the arcana of our ritual and our lodge work. Far too much has been printed with respect to our ceremonial labours, and far too many of the technical terms of our "Royal Art" have been made use of openly in the Masonic press. During the last twelve months we have been seeking in the "Freemason" to curtail the exuberance of lodge reports, and the "minutiae" of detail into which many of our good correspondents have liked to fall, though we do not think that we have been successful in our endeavours, and we freely admit that there is much room for improvement in the editorial supervision in this respect. But within due bounds and proper restrictions the reports of lodge work have an interest for some brethren, and constitute a very striking portion of our Masonic life. No Masonic periodical can dispense with them altogether, and carefully supervised and, if need be, curtailed, they form, we think, a befitting feature of all Masonic journalism. We are aware of no other valid objection to a Masonic press, except the old objection—to the press itself, but which, as Freemasons, we are too liberally-minded to endorse or to support, for there is a large field for legitimate reporting, and for useful Masonic publication. The proceedings, for instance, of our Grand Lodge, and of our Prov. Grand Lodges (of course, within all due bounds), the accounts of the consecration of new lodges, the anniversary festivals of old lodges, the addresses of distinguished Masons, and, above all, the interests of our great Masonic Charities, and all Masonic charitable efforts deserve, both passing notice and becoming record. And then, thanks to the labours of Bros. Findel, and Hughan, and D. Murray Lyon, and many more, what a large and interesting field of research and discussion has a revived interest in Masonic Archaeology and history, opened out before all thinking and studious Masons. Who shall venture to say, that in this condition of affairs, a Masonic Press is not needed, is not important, is not useful? Who can pretend to lay down arbitrarily the limits of its usefulness, its necessity, or its value. On the contrary we feel ourselves persuaded that all reflecting and fair-minded persons will admit, whatever their prepossessions may be on the subject, that (within the lines we have marked out for its course), that a Masonic Press is alike important and advisable, judicious and justifiable. And it is for this one end, remember, that the "Freemason" has earnestly laboured since its foundation. The past history of the Masonic Press in England is not so prosperous or so satisfactory as to enable any brother to find fault with any one, who for good and sufficient reasons, has ventured to found a Masonic journal. For some time the "Freemason" was the only Masonic paper in England, and had it not been for the energy and efforts of our publisher, and for his liberal sacrifices, too often forgotten, English Freemasonry must have remained without any literary representative at all, for some time at any rate. But the "Freemason" has been established, has flourished, and is progressing, until it can boast, with no vain glory, or idle affectation, that it receives a larger measure of support than ever was meted out, that we are aware of, to any other English Masonic paper, and not only this, but out of England it is largely read, and in India, our Colonies, Canada, and the United States, it has numerous subscribers, and friendly admirers, if we may judge by the manner in which its leading articles are transferred to the columns of other Masonic periodicals and papers. We constantly receive kindly letters of commendation, for which we are very grateful, and our able confrere Bro. MacCalla, the Editor of the "Philadelphia Keystone," not long ago paid us one of the highest compliments it has ever been our lot to receive. To us, then, the history of our past is pleasant, our situation in the present is most prosperous, and our prospects for the future most encouraging. Never had any Masonic paper more indulgent readers, more friendly correspondents, or more tolerant critics. Indeed, in all these respects we have nothing to wish for, nothing to want for, and nothing to demand. But there are one or two points on which we think it right to say a few words to our numerous Masonic readers and friends. Some of our good brethren indulge in a little mistake as regards the actual position of a Masonic press, which we think it worth while to try and rectify. It would almost seem as if some of our 100,000 members in England, are of opinion, almost, that a Masonic press should cost them nothing. They have a Masonic paper, with all the Masonic news of the week, carefully collected at some expense, they have the paper edited, printed, published, for them, and they are too often unwilling to pay themselves any fraction of the expense of production. A Masonic paper cannot be produced for nothing, numberless expenses make up the whole little amount, which each succeeding week has to be paid by somebody. Hence, then, it is no answer to our good publisher to say, as he so often hears it said, "I see the "Freemason," at the Club," or "in the lodge Library," "My lodge takes it in." We have not in these common words any sufficient principle of support to make a Masonic paper a paying concern. No doubt if every lodge under our Grand Lodge took in a copy every week, that would make an excellent foundation for the list of subscribers. But we want to go a little further, and to do a little more. If individual brethren would themselves give in their names to the subscription list, and induce one or two of their friends to do the same, the circulation of the "Freemason," large as it is now, would be so greatly augmented that our liberal publisher would undoubtedly be ready permanently and considerably to increase it, and still to offer it at its present most reasonable price. Indeed, we have no hesitation in saying that when you consider the weekly press of the country, it would be a very difficult task for any one to point to another paper which gives so much, for so little. We think, then, that we have made a case for the consideration of our fraternity, and we trust that we have made the matter also clear to their minds. We ask for no subsidies, and we claim no support; we neither tout for subscribers, nor do we invoke patronage. But we do say this, and we say it openly before the Craft, before all our readers and friends, who are quite competent to judge for themselves, that we give a good marketable article, at the lowest possible "quotation," and we may fairly entreat our kindly and intelligent fraternity to enable us to make the "Freemason" still more worthy of the position it aspires to occupy in the good opinion and conviction of all Anglo-Saxon Freemasons. For one thing, both publisher and editor pride themselves, namely, that they have carefully kept the pages of the "Freemason" free from anything like personality or unbrotherly feeling. While free opinion has been fairly discussed, it has never degenerated into license, and from first to last, the "Freemason" always has been, and always will be, distinguished by its obedience to Masonic authority, and the upholding of the regulations of the Book of Constitutions. Whatever the future may have in store for us all, no one ever can impute to the "Freemason" any laxity as regards our ancient landmarks, or judicious laws, and its readers will always find in its pages that proper vindication of "authority," which is, in our opinion, ever characteristic of the loyal Freemason. With a new year of opening metropolitan work, the publisher and editor of the "Freemason" beg to offer to its friends and subscribers their heartfelt thanks, and venture to express their confident hope that in the future, as in the past, the "Freemason" will merit and maintain the favourable judgement and the cheerful support of large and increasing numbers of our ancient and honourable fraternity.

ENGLISH AND FRENCH FREEMASONRY.

Our worthy Grand Secretary has delivered some very weighty words with reference to the present unfortunate position of the French Grand Orient and their Masonic proceedings in respect of the necessary condition of religious recognition of the Great Architect of the Universe and the very existence of God. We beg respectfully to call Bro. Caubet's attention to the remarks of Bro. Hervey, given elsewhere, most important in themselves, and deserving of grave consideration by the French Freemasons, as Bro. Hervey never speaks unadvisedly, and is well-known to be one of the most cautious of officials, and peace loving of men. We hope that the Grand Orient of France and our French brethren will take his warning "notes" in good part. We quite admit the independence of national Grand Lodges, but there is one universal law of Masonry, which no particular section of the great family can contravene without damage to itself, and without disrespect to the other portions. The unchanged law of a million of Anglo-Saxon Freemasons is the recognition of the existence of God, and if French Freemasonry takes that great truth from its formularies, it separates itself necessarily from Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, and assumes for itself, as French Freemasons have themselves clearly seen, a position of melancholy isolation and baneful negativism. We hope for better things from French Freemasonry, and we beg to commend to the notice of our French and English brethren Bro. Hervey's speech, as alluded to lower down.

THE "COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR" FOR 1877.

Our publisher has put out his "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar" for the ensuing twelve months, and we propose to say a few words respecting this useful publication, in our pages to-day. We are induced to do so for the reason that many mistaken notions appear to prevail respecting it, and some of our good brethren seem to fancy that such a publication is somehow or other (though how, "deponents saith not") an encroachment on the "Freemasons' Calendar" authorized by our Grand Lodge, and which is alone published under their sanction. Now we wish shortly to say that no greater mistake ever was made, or possibly could arise. The "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar" emanated simply from an idea of our publisher, who thought that he saw his way "for the information of the Craft," to utilize a little work which had previously been begun and dropped under another Grand Lodge, and to enter upon Masonic "regions," so to say, not at all trodden over by our English Craft. Accordingly, the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar" was started with a two-fold object, first to give a correct reference to the existing and important bodies of the High Grades, which had no general or official almanacks; and secondly, to supply the names of foreign Grand Lodge Officers, and of foreign lodges; and this the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar" certainly has most successfully achieved, and has offered to the Craft a mass of information previously unattainable and of great interest. Instead, then, of any of our brotherhood looking upon the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar" as set up in opposition to the existing and needful almanack of Grand Lodge, it should be regarded as a supplemental volume of considerable importance, inasmuch as many references and much information, ready to the hand, and not otherwise procurable, and equally important for the Craft as for the High Grade Mason, is thus placed within the reach of every brother. We do not suppose, for one moment, that any of our highest authorities or leading Masons entertain any such opinion, as their own intelligence would show them that they were under a grave misapprehension in this respect, and were doing injustice to the exertions and efforts of our worthy and energetic publisher. But there are in Freemasonry, as in all other institutions, some petty or mediocre minds, which cannot raise themselves above trade jealousies, or personal antagonism, and can see nothing good, and everything that is bad, in the praiseworthy labours of some one whom they are opposed to in business, or differ from in opinion. The publisher of the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar" has only exercised the right which belongs to all Freemasons. He has published a Masonic work, not in opposition to any other work, not patronized by Masonic authority, but simply as an individual contribution to Masonic information, at his own cost, at his own risk, and which he simply commends to the open market of Masonic approval and support. If his book is worth nothing it will find no purchasers, if it is indeed "value received," it will soon find its own level, and need not fear either the cavils of the ignorant, or the criticism of the unjust. But what we fear a little is that it is not so much the work, as the success of the work, which grates on the susceptibilities and sensibilities of some whose judgement is very defective, and whose good taste and brotherly feeling appear to us often to represent the "unknown quantity." For when we open the "Cosmo" to-day, we can find no possible ground on which to found any objections, much less the slightest complaint. It contains in it a mass of information, which is found collected together, in no other Masonic Book in the world, information as interesting, as important, and which in these days is essential, not only to Masonic intercommunication, and to our Masonic officials, but to that advancing interest in all things Masonic, which is characteristic of Freemasonry everywhere at this present hour. Both the "Freemasons' Calendar" and the "Cosmopolitan Calendar," are requisite to our full knowledge of our great Masonic world, and as both give information equally valuable, but of different portions of our Universal Family, there certainly is no jarring, and there need be not the slightest opposition between them. It may suit some foolish persons to say so, for trade purposes, but the statement is untrue in itself, and deserves the condemnation and reprobation of all Freemasons. We feel sure, on the contrary, that all intelligent members of our Order will welcome now, as formerly, the remarkable amount of valuable and Masonic information, of other constitutions, foreign bodies and distant lodges, to say nothing of the lists of High Grade chapters, and councils, so laboriously provided, so carefully edited, and so lucidly arranged, in the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar." We can confidently appeal to our fraternity on its "merits" alone, and we leave it in their hands, without one doubt or fear, as to what their generous and impartial verdict will be.

ENGLISH AND FRENCH FREEMASONRY.—On the 11th inst., another new lodge of the Grand Lodge of English Freemasons was celebrated at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell-new-road, under the title of the "Crichton Lodge," bearing the number of 1641 on the list of English lodges. The consecration ceremony, with the sanction of the Prince of Wales, Grand Master, was performed by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, assisted by several other members of the Grand Lodge, and in the presence of a very numerous body of members of the Craft. Bro. Hervey also inducted into the chair Bro. J. H. Vockins as Worshipful Master. In the course of Bro. Hervey's opening address he remarked that while on the 1st November, 1863, the whole number of lodges under the Grand Lodge of England was 942, on the 9th of November, 1876, they were 1649, being an increase of 707 lodges, or an annual average of something like 50 during that period. Although such was the satisfactory state of English Freemasonry, he could not refrain from alluding to certain proceedings which were going on in the Grand Orient of France, which, speaking entirely as an individual, he thought must at no distant period, engage the attention of the Grand Lodge of England—proceedings which struck at the very root of Freemasonry, and which he only viewed with dismay and alarm. Should this matter ever be taken up, it would then become a very serious question as to whether French Freemasons should ever be admitted as visitors to the Grand Lodge of England. The officers were then appointed, and a banquet, at which the Master presided, followed.

THE GRAND LODGE OF ROME, AND BRO. J. C. PARKINSON, P.G.D. COMMUNIQUE.

The following article appeared in the "Unità Cattolica," November 8th:—

The "Unità Cattolica" is the leading organ of the Ultramontane party in Italy, and is esteemed to be the most ably conducted of the extreme Catholic journals. There is something very pitiable in the depth of misrepresentation to which this newspaper has descended. It should be added that the "Unità Cattolica" is credited with representing the views of Cardinal Manning, and that since the fall of the temporal power in Italy it has appeared uniformly with a deep black border on its front page in mourning for the fall of the head of the Church.

THE SPIRIT OF MASONRY IN A DIPLOMA OF MERIT TO MR. PARKINSON ("UNITÀ CATTOLICA," NOV. 8TH).

The Roman Freemasons, on the evening of the 28th October, held high festival. To the number of about 100 clothed in the insignia of their Order, they assembled in the Temple of the Grand Orient of Italy in Rome, to welcome worthily Mr. J. C. Parkinson, a Grand Dignitary of the Grand Lodge of England, and to present him with a diploma in recognition of his services to Italian Masonry. The diploma had been specially designed for him, and, according to the "Opinione" of 31st October, it represented the "Spirit of Masonry ascending to Heaven." It was handed over to him with solemn ceremony by the Deputy, George Tamaio, Grand Master of Italy, and it was acknowledged by Signor Parkinson in a lodge discourse on the origin, on the advantages, and on the duties of Freemasonry, hailing, "with peculiar satisfaction the establishment of a Grand Lodge in Rome, where the monuments are eloquent of the sufferings of generations of illustrious martyrs."

Passing over the martyrs and the sufferings of the generations, to how Masonry has gone to Rome to honour with her presence and with her temple, we may call attention to the symbol designed on the diploma presented to Mr. Parkinson. In a purely material age, when materialists are summoned from Holland to sit in the Senate of Rome, when the theories of Büchner and Darwin are held in honour, and taught in the school, when at every turn we are told that we spring from apes and frogs, and that born of matter by a transformation, we have no other destiny than to be transformed in turn, and never cease to be matter, it does appear marvellous that Masonry at Rome should admit among her symbols the spirit, and give to this a heavenward tendency.

A few weeks ago, a congress of Freemasons in Belgium decided to suppress belief in the Great Architect of Nature, thus denying the existence of God, and how can it be asserted that God does not exist, while admitting the existence of spirits and their heavenward tendency? The abbot Gyr added some documents to the beautiful work on Freemasonry of Eckert, advocate, of Dresden, to demonstrate that Masonry tends to earth and not to heaven, and admits the most stupid materialism.* And it cannot be otherwise, when the grossest errors find shelter with Freemasons, who welcome with cordiality everything that is in any way calculated to subvert the pure and sacred doctrines of the Church.

But we know too well what is the spirit of Masonry, which teaches materialism in the schools and usurps the education of youth, and at the same time pretends to make respected in itself a quality which it denies to the Deity, a haughty spirit, a spirit eminently contradictory, which speaks lies and lives wholly in lies and of lies. Pius XI. from the first day that he ascended the throne indicated this spirit, and defined it exactly when he fulminated against the secret societies "as having emerged from darkness for the ruin and desolation of all things human and divine," renewing the condemnations and anathemas of his predecessors.† It is that spirit which in conjunction with Protestantism shakes the authority of the Church, in conjunction with liberalism breaks the bonds of human authority, in conjunction with rationalism denies all authority, natural and divine, and throws around reason the mantle of "Queen." It is that spirit, in short, of which an English Freemason spoke in a discourse in Freemasons' Tavern in London in 1862. "Lucifer is the apex of the social pyramid, it is he who is the first Craftsman, the first rebel, the first martyr. We revolutionists ought, out of respect and gratitude, to display on our banner the beloved image of the heroic insurgent who was the first to dare revolt against the tyranny of God."‡ And this is what the Masons of Rome have emblazoned on the diploma of Bro. Parkinson.

This Spirit of Masonry tends to rise heavenwards, but is a foolish pretension of "Him who first turned his back upon his Maker." It is the angel of darkness, who still transforms himself into the angel of light to deceive and seduce, and directs his flight to heaven, when God has chained him to the bottom of the abyss. The efforts which it makes to destroy the Church, and to combat

Jesus Christ are incredible, its ambition is to see men fall down in adoration before it, to obtain which adoration it promises everything. It has promised Rome, and it has there obtained a temple, and now it is adored there by those who refuse to believe in the Great Architect of Nature, who bend the knee before Satan, and represent it as a spirit ascending to heaven. But it is precisely in heaven that our hopes reside, and thence will come to us the victory—

"Where Michael,

His vengeance wreaked upon the rebel proud."

A POINT OF LAW.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reading the paragraph, "A Point of Law," in your last issue, it reminded me of the accompanying copy of a charter that was sent by order of His Grace Henry Duke of Beaufort, Grand Master, in April, 1769, to every lodge under the immediate government of the G.M., together with two printed notes, one implying an assent, and the other a dissent, in order to have one of them signed by the Master and Wardens, and witnessed by the Secretary.

In consequence of such proceedings there were sent to the G. Sec. the approbation of one hundred and sixty-eight lodges, and the disapprobation of only forty-three.

Is the enclosed charter the bill that was brought into Parliament in 1771, by the Hon. Charles Dillon, Deputy G. Master, but on the second reading of the bill, Mr. Onslow opposed it, when the Hon. C. Dillon moved to postpone the consideration of it. Was it ever brought afterwards before Parliament, as Mr. Dillon moved to postpone the consideration of it sine die.

Yours fraternally,

R. W. O.

"COPY OF THE CHARTER OF INCORPORATION OF FREE AND ACCEPTED MASONS."

"George the Third, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting, whereas the society of Free and Accepted Masons have for ages held frequent meetings within this realm, and have ever demeaned themselves with duty and loyalty to us and our predecessors, with reverence and obedience to the laws, and kindness and goodwill to their fellow-subjects: And whereas, the said society appears to have been originally instituted for humane and beneficent purposes, and have distributed from time to time to all without distinction, who have had the single claim of wretchedness, sums to a great amount, collected by voluntary contribution among themselves. And whereas, our entirely beloved, &c., &c., &c. Members of the society of Free and Accepted Masons, under the Constitution of England, in behalf of themselves and many others of the said society, by their petition humbly presented to us, have most humbly besought us to grant our most gracious letters patent to incorporate the said society, and make them a body politic and corporate for ever.

Now know ye, that we out of our princely regard to a body of men, associated for such laudable purposes, willing to manifest to the world our entire approbation of their past conduct, and desirous to enable them to answer more effectually the humane ends of their Institution, of our especial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have ordained, given, and granted, and by these presents for us, our heirs, and successors, do ordain, give, and grant, that for the future there shall be a perpetual society, which shall be called by the name of the Society of Free and Accepted Masons of England. And we do hereby declare, that the said society shall consist of Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, Grand Wardens, Past Grand Officers, Provincial Grand Masters, Grand Treasurer, Grand Secretary, Grand Sword Bearer, twelve Stewards, and of the Masters and Wardens of the several subordinate lodges, who, together with those already numerated, compose the Grand Lodge, who, by the name of the Society of Free and Accepted Masons of England, shall forever hereafter be a body politic and corporate in deed and in law, and that, by the same name, they and their successors shall have perpetual succession; and that they and their successors, by that name, shall and may forever hereafter be enabled, and rendered capable, and have power (notwithstanding the Statute of Mortmain) to purchase, have, take, acquire, receive, possess, enjoy, and hold to them and their successors, manors, messuages, lands, rents, tenements, goods, and chattels, annuities, and hereditaments, of whatsoever nature or kind, in free and perpetuity, or for terms of life or years, or otherwise. And we hereby give and grant unto the said society and their successors, by the name aforesaid, our special license, full power, and lawful authority, to hold and enjoy lands and hereditaments which may hereafter be devised, granted, or sold to the said society; and also, to purchase, hold, receive, and possess, in Mortmain, in perpetuity or otherwise, to, or for the use of, or in trust for them and their successors, for the use and benefit of the said corporation, from any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, their heirs and successors respectively, such manors, lands, tenements, rents, hereditaments, as they shall think fit to purchase, or shall be given, granted, devised, or conveyed to them by deed, or otherwise, not exceeding the yearly value of —

Over and above charges and reprises, so far as they are not restrained by law; and also, to sell, grant, demise, exchange, and dispose of any of the same manors, messuages, lands, and tenements, whereof or wherein they shall have an estate of inheritance for life or lives, or years as aforesaid. And we further grant, that the said society and their successors, by the name aforesaid, may and shall by the said name of the Society of Free and Accepted Masons of England, be able to sue and to be sued, plead and be impleaded, answer and be answered unto, defend and be defended, in all courts and pleas whatsoever, of us, our heirs and successors, before any of our judges and justices, and other officers of us, our heirs and successors, in all and singular actions, suits, complaints, causes, matters, demands, and things whatsoever, and to act and to do in all matters and things relating to the said corporation in as ample a manner and form as any other, our liege subjects being persons able and capable in the law, or any other body politic or corporate, in this of our kingdom of Great Britain, called England, lawfully may, or can act or do; and that the said corporation for ever shall, and may have, and use a common seal, for the cause and business of them and their successors, and that it shall and may be lawful for them and their successors, to change, break, alter, and make new the said seal from time to time as they shall think fit. And we do hereby give and grant unto the said society a coat of arms, that is to say, and for the better execution of this our grant, we do nominate, constitute, and appoint our right trusty and dearly beloved cousin and councillor, Henry, Duke of Beaufort, to be First Grand Master, our trusty and well beloved the Honourable Charles Dillon to be the First Deputy Grand Master, each of them respectively to be and continue in their several and respective offices of Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, &c., &c., until the Feast of St. John the Evangelist, which shall happen next after the expiration of one year from the day of the date of these presents, and from thence until their fit and able persons be chosen into the said offices in their respective rooms. Provided always, that all the persons so appointed, or hereafter to be appointed, members of the Grand Lodge, shall, in all things, aid, advise, and assist in conducting the business, and in all matters relating to the regulations and government of the said society of Free and Accepted Masons of England. And we do give and grant unto the said Grand Master, or his deputy, his or their successor or successors, for the time being, full power and authority, by virtue of these our letters patent, to issue warrants for the constituting of subordinate lodges; and the said lodges warranted as aforesaid, shall be, and they are hereby declared to be, legal and regular. And furthermore, we give and grant to the said society that they shall and may hold meetings of themselves, for the better management of their funds, and the application of them to proper purposes, and the transaction of all other business relating to the society, when, and as often as it shall be necessary in any place within the City of London, or ten miles thereof. And it shall be lawful for the said society from time to time, to nominate and chuse once in every year, one fit and able person to be Grand Master, and one other to be Grand Treasurer of the said society: the other officers to be appointed in the manner and form heretofore established by the long and uninterrupted usage of the society to continue severally until the Feast of St. John the Evangelist next, after the expiration of one year from the time of their respective elections or appointments (if they shall so long live, or not be removed for some just or reasonable cause), and from thence till another be chosen. And in case the Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, &c., &c., or any of them shall die, secede, or be removed from any of the said offices respectively, then and in such case it shall be lawful to choose or appoint (according to ancient usage) a fit and able person to fill up such office as shall become vacant. And the person or persons so chosen or appointed shall continue to the expiration of the year for which their predecessor in such office had been chosen or appointed. And if it shall happen that the election of the Grand Master, and Grand Treasurer, and appointment of the other Grand Officers, cannot be perfected on the Feast of St. John the Evangelist, we do hereby grant that the Grand Master may lawfully assign or appoint any other day as near as may be after the Feast of St. John the Evangelist, for the perfecting such election or elections, which shall always be in the manner and form heretofore observed by the said society, and for the nomination and appointment of such officers as by the ancient usage of the said society are not elective, and so from day to day till the said elections and appointments shall be completed. And we further give and grant to the said society, that the Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, and constituent members of the Grand Lodge for the time being, shall and may, from time to time, assemble together in such convenient place in London, or within ten miles thereof, as the Grand Master or Deputy Grand Master (by the Grand Master's authority) shall appoint by summons or other notice, which he is by these presents empowered and required timely to issue for that purpose to all the said members; and that they being so met shall have full power to make, constitute, and ordain such statutes, bye-laws, and ordinances as shall appear to them to be good, and necessary, and expedient for the government, order, and regulation of the said society, and every member thereof; which statutes, bye-laws, and ordinances, not being repugnant to the laws of this realm, shall and may be effectually observed and kept; and to do all other things concerning the government, estate, and revenues of the said society. Provided, nevertheless, and our will is, that no bye-law, statute, or ordinance, so to be made by this corporation, shall be binding upon the said society, until the same shall have been read over and approved of by the majority of the society assembled together for that purpose.

In witness whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patent. Witness ourself, at Westminster.

THE HERVEY LODGE.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I was much surprised to see that a lodge has actually sued a brother for his fees in one of the County Courts, and I do not see that the letter of the W.M. of 1260, published in your paper of the 11th Nov., at all improves the position.

Non-payment of fees for degrees is a matter so very easily settled that a case of such arrears occurring should never exist.

Let me suggest to Lodge 1260 the passing of a bye-law to this effect, that no degrees are given until the Treasurer reports the fees are in his hands. My father in Masonry, on hearing the work of the evening included any degrees, used to turn to the Treasurer and ask if all the fees were in for the degrees it was proposed to give that evening. If his reply was in the negative, he used at once to say, "That being the case, I regret I am unable to give Bro. — the degree he is desirous of taking, it being against the bye-laws of our lodge." The result was, that with the application for initiation, or for any higher degree, came the requisite fees; and if that was carried out in all lodges we should hear no more of suits for Masonic fees being instituted in County Courts, to the great scandal of the Craft in general.

Yours fraternally,

Bath, 13th Nov., 1876.

D.G.M.

THE ADMISSION OF CANDIDATES.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"East Lancashire" in your last week's issue, hits a blot in our system of admitting members. I would name a case somewhat different, although perhaps more strikingly irregular, as it has reference to country candidates being admitted into London lodges. A case in point:—A resident of some years standing in this town was anxious to become a Freemason, but neither the lodge meeting here, or the one at Highbridge, some six miles distant, were disposed to receive him. Well, what does he do? Why run up to London, gets proposed, elected, and initiated into a lodge meeting at Freemasons' Hall (the Phoenix, I believe), returns home, and snaps his fingers at the Craft, and enters as a visitor a lodge that would not initiate him.

Under such a system is it to be wondered at, if black sheep get within the fold?

I think it is a subject that calls for the interference of Grand Lodge by some law being enacted whereby the possibility of such a scandal should be rendered impossible.

Yours fraternally,

Bridgwater, 13th Nov. 1876.

SOMERSET.

MASONIC CHARITY.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your report of the meeting of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in the "Freemason" of the 11th inst., induces me to write to you. Masonic charity, whether real or ostentatious, is now so general and so well known that the outside world are taking unfair advantage of it.

The hand of every true Mason is ever ready to obey the generous promptings of his heart in beneficence, whether the needy case be that of a brother or of a stranger; but St. Paul, who doubtless was a Freemason, and who loved to inculcate the true Masonic principles of fear towards God, honour to the King, love to the brotherhood, especially to those of the household of faith, and teach us that our love must be first shown to the brotherhood. We may agree as to the beginning of the brotherhood, and differ as to the extent and the limit of it. I conceive that every one duly initiated into Masonry is our brother, and that his nearest and dearest relatives, in the person of his wife, his child, or his dependent sister ought to be, and are the first objects of every Mason's care. This puts the wife, &c., of every non-Mason beyond the pale of Masonic charity as such. I am, therefore, pleased that the "overwhelming majority" decided to withhold relief from the widow of a non-Mason, though once the widow of a Mason. By this act they have shown negatively their love of the brethren, and have told the outer world that Mason's charity is guided by justice and discretion, that they prefer not to give the children's meat to strangers.

There is, Sir, a case similar to the above now in the enjoyment of the most valuable of our charities. The son of a deceased Mason, whose widow is again married to a non-Mason, and is in pretty good circumstances, is now receiving all the benefits that our noble institution at Wood Green affords.

The second marriage of the mother was arranged before the election of the boy, and actually took place, as I am informed, between the election and the admission of the boy to the school. By the second marriage the boy's status as the orphan of a Freemason was done away with, and he became legally the son of another man not one of our fraternity. To admit him to the school without payment is to extend Masonic charity beyond its legitimate limits to the prejudice of some other orphan boy. The fact ought to be, and probably is, known to the House Committee and to the Charity Committee of this province. I desire that it may be more extensively known by means of your valuable paper, and shall be happy if you can afford me a little space.

I am, Sir, yours fraternally,

WEST YORK.

CONSECRATION OF ST. ANDREW'S LODGE, No. 1631, GORLESTON.

The consecration of a new lodge is at all times of great interest to the Craft, but more especially so when it occurs in their own province. On Monday morning a large muster of brethren from Yarmouth, Lowestoft, Halesworth, and other places in Suffolk, as well as a few brethren from Norwich, mustered at St. Andrew's Hall, Gorleston, for the purpose of assisting at the ceremony of opening a new lodge in that remote corner of Suffolk. The foundation of the new lodge is entirely due to Bro. E. P. Youell, Esq., a resident in the town—who takes great interest in the Craft—and who not being able to find a place suitable for the purpose, has erected, at his own cost, a small but convenient lodge-room, adjoining the St. Andrew's Hall Lecture Room, and fitted it up with every requisite for the work. The new lodge has been named the "St. Andrew's Lodge;" but why this name has been chosen we cannot say, although as the church is named after St. Andrew, we suppose that Saint was the patron of the fishermen of the town and neighbourhood, as St. Nicholas is the patron Saint of Yarmouth.

The ceremony of consecration was intended to be performed by the P.G. Master for Suffolk (Lord Waveney), but his lordship was unavoidably detained in Ireland, and the Deputy Prov. G. Master (Bro. Rev. E. I. Lockwood) having recently died, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain of England, was deputed by the P.G.M. to perform the important office. Excellent arrangements were made for the purpose, but unfortunately the space was so limited, and the number of brethren present so numerous, that the ceremony, therefore, lost a great portion of its effect. The lodge was summoned for half-past eleven, some time being usually required on these occasions, when so many visiting brethren are present, to settle the order of proceedings. At half-past eleven the lodge was duly opened by Bro. Lucia, P.G. Secretary of Suffolk, after which the warrant of constitution from the Grand Lodge of England was read, and the names of the brethren proposed as officers having been duly approved of, Bro. Rev. C. J. Martyn, accompanied by the P.G. Officers for the Province, was then introduced in due form. The ceremony of the consecration was ably carried out by him, Bro. Rev. T. Tweed, P.G. Chaplain for Suffolk, assisting, with Bro. Mann (of Lowestoft), at the harmonium. Bro. Martyn then called upon the W. Master elect (Bro. Youell) to answer certain questions, which being satisfactory, he was inducted in due form into the W.M.'s chair amidst the applause of the brethren. He then proceeded to appoint the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Capt. Dods, S.W.; J. Hammond, J.W.; Thurlby, S.D.; Stainer, J.D.; Fiske, I.G.; Bro. Bond, of the Friendship Lodge, being appointed as the I.P.M. The business of the lodge so far having been concluded, the brethren then arranged themselves in procession, and, preceded by the band of the West Norfolk Militia, wended their way to St. Andrew's Church, where arrangements had been made with the Vicar for a special service to be held. A large number of the inhabitants were present. The sermon was preached by the Rev. J. Tweed, Prov. G.C., from 1 Ecclesiasticus, 10th Verse, the offertory on the occasion being given (by desire) to the Church Restoration Fund. On their return to the lodge-room, a vote of thanks was moved by the W.M. to the Prov. G. Chaplain for his admirable Masonic sermon on the occasion, and to the Vicar for kindly granting the use of his church. A vote of thanks was also passed to the Halesworth brethren for signing the petition to be forwarded to the Grand Lodge, after which the lodge was closed in due form. As many of the brethren on these occasions come from various parts of the county it will not allow of much time to be lost, therefore shortly after five, o'clock the brethren assembled in an adjoining building, called St. Andrew's Hall, which had been most tastefully decorated for the occasion, and where a most elegant repast had been prepared. The W.M. (Bro. Youell) presided, and was supported by Bro. Martyn and the other Provincial Officers of the Province, as well as by many visiting brethren. After dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, that of "The W.M." being given in a most felicitous manner by Bro. Martyn. The proceedings were enlivened by some excellent singing by some of the brethren present, and a most agreeable evening was spent.

We must not omit to state that the band of the West Norfolk Militia played various pieces of music during dinner in a most admirable manner.

The official number of the new lodge is 1631, and by that it appears there have been 131 new lodges opened in various parts of England since the Walpole Lodge, No. 1500, was consecrated in Norwich two years ago.

Reviews.

"THE RELIGIOUS LIFE OF ENGLAND." Part 1. By HENRY MORLEY. Cassell, Petter and Galpin.

We have received this part, No. 17 in fact, of Cassell's Library of English Literature, and are much pleased with it, and recommend it to our readers. It travels over a "terra incognita" to many of us, and gives information, often only accessible to Antiquaries and Archaeologists. But the history of the religious thoughts of our people are very interesting, and though we are not quite prepared to say, that we agree with all the views expressed by the Professor, the substantial fact remains, that he gives us an insight into ancient MSS. and forgotten works, opens out before us the roll of a buried past, with great care, skill, and lucidity. "Facts," as we often say, "are stubborn things" and "words," equally speak clearer and more fully for themselves, especially when ungarbled, the "ipsissima verba" of the writer, than the paraphrases of commentators or the explanations of Editors.

THE MASONIC MAGAZINE.

This Masonic periodical, at one time the only magazine dealing with Masonic matters in England, is now in its fourth year of existence, and deserves, we think, the support of our Order. It emanates from our worthy publisher, who has sought, at great cost to himself, to give the Craft a monthly magazine, replete with useful information, didactic articles, archaeological information, and amusing reading. In this we think that he has succeeded, as several of the papers published in the "Masonic Magazine" have been "unique" of their kind, and are most valuable for reference and information. We know of no better present for a lodge library than the three volumes of the "Masonic Magazine."

THE "ROSICRUCIAN."

This quarterly magazine continues its useful course. It is also published by Bro. Kenning, and is mainly devoted to High Grade literature. It is very ably edited, and it cannot fail to afford both gratification and edification to those for whom it is principally designed. Our publisher surely deserves the thanks of all who wish for Masonic light, and value Masonic literature. It is true that we are not all High Grade Masons, and some of us object to High Grade theories and the like. But surely that is a very narrow and unworthy view of the whole question. He must be a very superficial Mason who denies the "status" of the High Grades, by the side of Anglo-Saxon Masonry, and a most intolerant individual who would refuse them a fair hearing, or ignore their claims to regard, respect, and goodwill.

MASONIC DEMONSTRATION AT DRYBRIDGE.

A general meeting of the Lodge St. Andrew, Drybridge, was held on Wednesday, Nov. 8th, for the purpose of installing the Proxy Master and Wardens, and investing them with the Masonic clothing of the lodge. A number of the members of Grand Lodge, including Bros. W. Barton, S.M. Munro, and W.M. Bryce, the Grand Tyler, attended to take part in the proceedings. The lodge was opened by the R.W. Master, Bro. John Campbell, and some preliminary business having been disposed of, the Proxy Master, Brother Hugh Munro, and Proxy Wardens, Brothers J. Macpherson and A. Duff, were introduced with the usual honours, and addressed by the Master on the duties of their offices, and thereafter regularly installed and invested in the very handsome clothing, specially designed for the occasion. Thereafter the lodge did honour to Brother ex-Convener Daniel Robertson, the V.W. Grand Bible Bearer of the Grand Lodge of Scotland—who, as representing the Grand Lodge, had in the most felicitous manner laid the foundation-stone of their new and beautiful hall on 17th August, 1872—by presenting him a very handsome silver trowel as a memento of that occasion. The trowel, bore the following inscription, viz.:—"Presented by the Lodge 'St Andrew,' Drybridge, No. 380, to Brother Daniel Robertson, the V.W. Grand Bible Bearer of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, as a memento of his having laid the foundation-stone of the new Freemasons' Hall, Drybridge, on 17th August, 1872." At the request of the Master, the presentation was made in a very eulogistic address by Brother John Laurie, the Grand Secretary, amid the plaudits of the brethren; and Brother Robertson, in his usual happy manner, returned thanks for the compliment paid to him. Thereafter Brother D. Shepherd was deputed by the Master to present Brother Laurie with a very handsome gold pen and pencil case, in testimony of the lodge's appreciation of his uniform courtesy towards them, and the careful attention he had given to their lodge business at all times. Brother Laurie thanked the brethren for their kindness, and assured them of the constant and deep interest Grand Lodge ever took in their welfare and on-going. The Proxy Master and Wardens were for a short time called on to rule the lodge, and gave perfect evidence of their qualification to hold their respective offices. The brethren invited the members of Grand Lodge to dinner, and all spent a very happy evening together. The unquestionable result of the proceedings will be most satisfactory for the Lodge St. Andrew, Drybridge.

IRELAND.

The Lord Mayor gave a brilliant ball on Friday the 10th inst., to their Graces the Duke and Duchess of Abercorn, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, and about 1000 other guests, including many representatives of the gentry, military and naval services, the professional classes, and leading merchants of the city. On no previous occasion of a similar kind have the hospitalities of the Mansion-house of Dublin been dispensed with greater munificence and splendour. The entertainment was intended to have a twofold character—as a parting tribute of respect to the Duke of Abercorn, whose approaching retirement from the office of Viceroy is regarded with universal regret, and as a warm welcome to the young Prince, whose name and title bespeak a loyal and hearty reception in Ireland, and whose courteous and genial demeanour have already made him a popular favourite. In the preparations for the event no effort was spared to render the festivity worthy of the presence of the distinguished guests, and the historic Round Room, in which its gaiety culminated, and which is admirably adapted for such an occasion, never presented a more picturesque and vivid spectacle. It was decorated and arranged with special care. The Oak-rooms and reception rooms adjoining were also elegantly fitted up, and all the available space in the building was pressed into the service of the company. His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught arrived at 11 o'clock, attended by Captain FitzGerald, Esquerry in waiting, and Captain Scott, and shortly afterwards the Viceregal cortège arrived at the entrance of the Mansion-house, escorted by a troop of Dragoons. His Grace the Lord Lieutenant, accompanied by the Duchess of Abercorn, Lady Georgiana Hamilton, and the principal members of the Viceregal household, were received with the customary honours by a Guard furnished by the 93rd Highlanders, who, with their band, were drawn up in front of the building. The National Anthem gave notice of their Graces' approach to the assembled guests, and was repeated by the band of the Rifle Brigade, which was stationed in the gallery of the Round-room, and supplied the music for the ball. The Lord Mayor, with his Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, and attended by the civic officers with their insignia, awaited for the arrival of the Lord Lieutenant, and conducted his Grace and the Duchess of Abercorn into the ballroom, where a canopied dais had been prepared for their reception. A quadrille was then formed, the Duke of Abercorn dancing with the Countess of Granard, the Duke of Connaught with the Duchess of Abercorn, and the Earl of Granard with Lady Georgiana Hamilton. His Royal Highness and the Viceregal party retired at 2 o'clock, but dancing was kept up with unflagging spirit until a later hour.

Treadwell, was still seriously unwell, and that he had had the great misfortune to lose his wife, a letter of condolence was unanimously ordered to be forwarded to him. Previously to the lodge being closed, the First, Second, and Third Sections of the First Lecture were worked by Bros. Adams, Foxcroft, and White. The lodge having been closed, the members and visitors, to the number of nearly 100, adjourned to the banquet. Amongst the latter were Bros. Terry, P.M.; F. Walters, P.M., &c., P.J.G.D. of Middlesex; T. C. Walls, S.D. 1381, &c.; Vincent, 72; Abrams, 112; Vaughan, 193; Reon, 205; Baumann, 538; Read, 713; and Thussou, 1056. The usual loyal and Craft toasts having been proposed and most warmly received, Bro. Kent, P.M., in fitting and able terms proposed "The Health of the absent W.M. and Bro. J. Smith, his substitute that evening," in which he stated how exceedingly sorry he was that one who ought to have been there that evening was, through the most untoward circumstances, prevented from taking his position. However, the chair was well occupied by Bro. Smith, the "Bluff King Hal" of the lodge. The acting W.M. said that he had to reply for a double toast, firstly on behalf of Bro. Treadwell, the W.M., whose great misfortunes all must sympathise with, and, secondly, for his humble self. He was pleased at the kind and flattering manner his health had been received, and he was proud at having had the honour—although he deplored the necessity—to preside over them that day. There were great cares attached to the office of Master of a large lodge like the Domatic, but then the Past Masters, who were good, true, and tried old servants, were always ready to assist the W.M., whose duties were in consequence greatly lightened. In conclusion he stated that he personally felt a great interest in the prosperity of the lodge, and desired to return his best thanks for the manner in which he had been received and supported as acting W.M. that day. In proposing "The Health of the Initiate," Bro. Smith stated that Bro. Cox having been exceedingly well introduced to them, they were highly pleased to see him occupying the proud position of an Initiate of the Domatic Lodge. In giving him the good right-hand of fellowship they were proud to welcome him as a brother. In conclusion the W.M. told the newly-admitted brother that if he were a good man, by carrying out the principles of Freemasonry he would, if possible, be a better one. Bro. Cox who was suffering from a severe cold, requested Bro. Terry to reply, who briefly stated that the initiate begged to thank them most heartily and sincerely for the warm manner his health had been proposed, and he (the speaker) felt convinced that had it not been for indisposition Bro. Cox, would have expressed in far better language than himself how proud he was at being Initiated in the old "Domatic." In proposing "The Health of the Visitors" the W.M. remarked that members of the Craft by visiting each others' lodges became not only conversant with the different duties, but made many great Masonic friendships. There were some visitors there that evening, who had made, he believed, their first appearance, and he was glad to welcome them. Amongst the numerous visiting brethren, he said, was Bro. Terry, who had worked hard for the position he occupied, and when an increase of £100 per annum was offered to him a few days previously to that meeting he was not too modest to accept it. Bro. Walters, the Sec. of many lodges, and a highly deserving brother, who held grand honours in the Province of Middlesex, was also a welcome guest. The speaker then mentioned the names of some of the other visiting brethren present. This toast having been duly honoured, the first named brother replied by thanking two brethren of the lodge by whom the charity of which he had the honour of representing as Secretary had but recently been supported, namely, Bros. Kent, P.M., and Willing, jun., S.W. He believed that at the next festival the chair would be taken by H.R.H. Prince Leopold, R.W.P.G.M. of Oxon, and he said that it was a great thing for the Craft when such high personages were willing to further the good cause by presiding in public. He could remember when the aged recipients of Masonic bounty only received £15 a year, but now the men received £40, and the women £32 per annum. The speaker then called attention to the large sum (£9000) that had been collected at the last festival, and hoped that next year it would be greater. He then went on to state that if the majority of the Craft were only to contribute five shillings yearly, which small sum gave a vote, what a grand thing it would be. In conclusion he gave some interesting statistics of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, which noble institutions he said every member of the Craft should visit, for the former found room for 190 recipients, and the latter 170, who were all well boarded, clothed and educated. In consequence of this address Bro. Ferguson, P.M., offered to stand as Steward for the R.M.B.I. in 1877. "The Health of the Past Masters" followed. In introducing this toast the W.M. referred to two of those worthy brethren in particular, namely Bros. Adams and Haydn. The latter Past Master he said was a brother always to be remembered with gratitude, as by his economy and self-denial whilst occupying the chair of K.S. he had been enabled to free the lodge from debt, which happy financial state had ever since continued. (Applause.) Bros. Ferguson and Walford having replied to this toast the W.M. gave "The Secretary, Bro. Williams, and the other Officers of the Lodge." He told the brethren that at the next meeting they would be called upon to discharge a very important duty, namely, to elect a W.M. for the year ensuing, but they were not to elect the senior officer in rotation unless they thought that he was fully equal to discharge the high and serious responsibilities of the position. Personally he believed that the S.W., Bro. Willing, was in every way fitted for the chair, but of that they, the members, must be the judges. The Secretary was an excellent officer, and he, the W.M., was justly proud of all the other working staff. The Secretary, Bro. Williams, having briefly replied, Bros. Willing, S.W., and Palmer, J.W., addressed the lodge at length, but as their respective replies were principally confined to matters connected with the forthcoming election of W.M., no special notice or comment is necessary. Bros. Buseall, S.D.; White, J.D.; and Spink, D.C., also responded. "The Health of the Treasurer," Bro. J. Smith, was proposed in most felicitous terms by Bro. Walford, P.M., and was suitably acknowledged by that worthy brother. In the intervals Bros. Vaughan, Walls, Harris, and others vocally entertained the brethren. The Tyler's toast was called at ten o'clock, and the brethren separated until the second Friday in the ensuing month.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The last meeting of this lodge was held on the 7th inst., at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval. The lodge was opened at five o'clock in the afternoon by Bro. G. Everett, P.M. 177, W.M.; Higgins, S.W.; Reeves, J.W.; Page, P.M., &c., Treas.; Stuart, P.M., &c., Sec.; Drysdale, P.M., acting I.P.M.; Mann, P.M.; Koch, P.M.; Walls, S.D.; Kohler, J.D.; Speedy, I.G.; Marston, W.S.; Ellis, jun., Org.; Robinson, A.W.S. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. passed Bros. Webster and Fischels, and initiated W. A. W. Sleight, Esq., barrister-at-law, both ceremonies being performed in a highly satisfactory manner. Bro. Mann, P.M. proposed, and Bro. Drysdale, P.M., seconded, that a vote of thanks should be given, and duly entered on the minutes to the W.M. for the great kindness in presenting the lodge with a valuable harmonium. The resolution having been unanimously carried, and the W.M. having acknowledged the same, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, well catered for by Bro. F. Trotman. Upon the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Craft toasts were given by the W.M. In speaking of the P.G. and D.G.M.'s, the Lords Camarvon and Skelmersdale the W.M. took occasion to expatiate upon the great Masonic and other abilities possessed by those Grand Officers. In conclusion, he remarked that it must be exceedingly gratifying to all true lovers of the Craft to find peers, ministers, and others high in social rank, supporting Freemasonry on all occasions, and circulating its great principles. The Order was at the present time in a highly satisfactory condition throughout the world, which prosperity was the best answer to the denunciations of the bigoted, and must prove also a death blow to its enemies. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Koch, P.M., who, in the course of his remarks, stated that Bro. Everett had hitherto done his duty, but as he had had opportunities of ruling over one of the largest lodges in the Craft, just immediately before he assumed the chair in the "Kennington," it ceased to be a matter of surprise. In conclusion he (Bro. Koch) stated that he personally felt proud and happy at having the honour to serve under him. Bro. Everett having briefly replied in a few happy sentences, immediately proposed "The Health of the Initiate," which toast having been duly honoured, Bro. Sleight responded by first telling them that his father had been long and honourably connected with Freemasonry, and that consequently the Institution had great and interesting claims upon his regard. In the course of his reply he told them that there were speeches he was paid for, and speeches that he was not paid for, being speeches that emanated earnestly from the heart, and that his initiation speech that evening was one of the latter. He was more than deeply impressed with the ceremony because it had struck a chord and aroused a feeling in his breast to which he had long been a stranger. It was, indeed, a bond of friendship that he had that night cemented; new but good friends, he hoped, were around him, which friendly feeling, however, was proved by their having unanimously elected him one of their honourable body. In conclusion he forcibly stated that he was so far impressed and delighted with the holy and benevolent principles that had been inculcated during the ceremony of his initiation that he should always endeavour to discharge his duties and obligations as a good Mason, and he hoped that those who heard him would always act as true and faithful brethren to him. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. expressed the great pleasure it afforded him at having to entertain several highly distinguished brethren that evening upon their first visit to the Kennington Lodge. He said he should mention two in particular, namely, Bros. J. Palmer, P.M. 27, and Frith, 1426, to reply to the toast, but he hoped that the others would also say a few words. The first-named stated that in the presence of so many visiting brethren it would be bad taste on his part to occupy much time in replying. He then in the course of a few remarks expressed himself highly delighted with the whole proceedings, both in and out of lodge. Bro. Keith Frith, during the progress of his very eloquent response, which want of space, however, necessarily prevents our giving in full, stated that he was charmed with the good working, the excellent hospitality, and delightful harmony that he had enjoyed upon that, his first visit to No. 1381. He had visited many lodges, and he could honestly testify that in every respect the "Kennington" could hold its own with any in the metropolis. In conclusion he stated that Freemasonry was a glorious institution, as it not only brought men of every grade and condition into one common brotherhood, but it engendered a feeling of good fellowship, and promulgated those holy and philanthropic principles, "brotherly love, relief, and truth." Bros. Boughton, P.M. Independent; Palmer, J.W. 177; Bryan, Antiquity; Clarke, I.G. 177; Harris, 177; and Everett, 177, also responded. "The Health of the Past Masters" followed, and was responded to by Bro. Koch. In proposing "The Health of the Treasurer and the Secretary," the W.M. paid a very high compliment to those worthy and zealous officers. Bro. Stuart, P.M., Secretary, fully replied to the toast in the absence, through indisposition, of Bro. Page, the Treasurer. The toast of "The Officers" came next, and was briefly acknowledged. During the evening instrumental and vocal selections were given by Bros. Ellis, Walls, Stokes, Sirgood, Palmer, and others. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings, and the brethren adjourned until the first Tuesday in December.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—The first meeting of this lodge after the installation of the new Master was held on Saturday, the 11th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel; Bro. John Seax presided, and he was supported by all his officers. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, when the minutes of the lodge were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bros. Stephens and Styles were examined as to the progress they had made in the science. The usual proceedings having taken place they retired, and the lodge having been opened in the Third Degree they were impressively raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. The lodge was then lowered to the Second Degree, and Bros. Oppenheimer, Shaw, Lütticke, and Cartwright were respectively passed. A ballot then took place, which, being successful, Mr. Alfred Cumber was initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry. In consequence of a discussion arising as to the application of one of the bye laws, notice was given of an alteration of it at the next meeting. The lodge was then closed, and after a very light refreshment the brethren separated.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—This flourishing lodge held its first meeting after the installation on Thursday, the 16th inst., at the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville Road, King's Cross. Present: Bros. T. Williams, W.M.; R. T. Kingham, S.W.; J. T. Douglass, J.W.; C. J. Scales, S.D.; W. Side, J.D.; W. M. Stiles, I.G.; G. Colls, D.C.; and H. Stiles, W.S. Past Masters, J. Willing, jun., and J. J. Michael, and a numerous assemblage of brethren. The ceremony of raising included Bros. Boschart, Wrigley, Knight, Tuck, Debeuf, and Liebere. Messrs. Clare and Beattie having been balloted for were duly initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. A long report from the removal committee was read by the W.M., and after careful consideration adopted by the lodge. The W.M. then appointed Bro. W. M. Stiles as Assistant Secretary, and passed a high eulogium on the ability and untiring energy of that brother. Bro. J. Willing, P.M., proposed that Bro. Tims, Sec., be elected a honorary member of the lodge, which was carried. The W.M. appropriately addressed Bro. Tims on his election, who briefly responded. Bro. J. Willing then called the attention of the lodge to the desirability of establishing a chapter at an appropriate time. The announcement was well received by the brethren. The lodge having been closed, the brethren retired for the preparation of the banquet. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been given, Bro. J. J. Michael, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who he was proud to say had done his lodge duties alike gratifying to the Past Masters as he was confident it must be to the brethren. The toast was enthusiastically received, and appropriately responded to. The W.M. then gave the toast of "The Past Masters," which was duly acknowledged by Bros. J. J. Michael, I.P.M., and J. Willing, P.M. The toast of "The Initiates" followed, the W.M. expressing his gratification in believing that from the marked attention given to the ceremony by the initiates that they would practically illustrate in their every-day life the advantages derived from the teaching of Freemasonry. Other toasts followed in rapid succession, each being suitably acknowledged, and interspersed with harmony from the brethren.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1558).—The first lodge meeting since the installation of the W.M. was held on Thursday evening, the 9th inst. Present: Bros. W. S. Cackett, W.M.; T. Sleaf, S.W.; W. Mitchell, J.W.; W. Snowden, I.P.M.; J. Dann, P.M., Sec.; A. Runacres, S.D.; W. Chalk, J.D.; E. W. Boyton, I.G.; C. E. Power, D.C.; J. H. Swan, Org.; T. Taylor, W.S.; F. Geider, Tyler; also Bros. J. E. Pentreath, J. Dixon, R. Scott, H. Kember, J. R. Smith, R. McIlroy, T. C. Corpe, W. Allen, W. G. Bott, E. Pearman, G. M. Le Touzel, G. E. Beach, C. Sims. Also visitors, Bros. M. S. Larham, P.M. 1539; E. G. Webster, 72; C. S. Barker, 1426; E. B. Wright, 1319; C. F. Strube, 72. The lodge was opened in the First Degree. A copy of the report by the Auditors—Bros. J. E. Pentreath and R. Scott—was placed in the hands of every member, and was taken as received. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. Kember was entrusted and retired. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Kember was admitted and raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. Bros. Le Touzel and W. Allen were then passed to the Second Degree. After a motion respecting finances, proposed by Bro. Scott, had been lost, a proposition by Bro. Pentreath as to balloting was carried. A vote of thanks to the Auditors, Bros. Scott and Pentreath, on the motion of Bro. McIlroy, was carried unanimously. After the formal closing of the lodge, the brethren adjourned to an excellently prepared banquet, at which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were received with every degree of heartiness. The ceremonies were admirably worked by the W.M., Bro. W. S. Cackett.

LIVERPOOL.—Merchants' Lodge (No. 241).—The usual monthly meeting of this well-known lodge was held on Tuesday, the 14th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. Bro. G. Hutchin, W.M., occupied the chair, and amongst his supporters were Bros. R. Wilson, P.M., P. Prov. G.J.D.; G. Broadbridge, P.M., P. Prov. G.D.C.; J. McQuistan, acting S.W.; James Winsor, J.W.; Dr. S. J. McGeorge, P.M., Treas.; T. H. Sheen, Sec.; T. Salter, S.D.; W. Williams, J.D.; S. Jacobs, I.G.; W. H. Ball, Tyler; R. W. Barnes, J. Latta, T. Whitehead, John Winsor, B. Woolf, &c. The lodge having been duly opened, and the minutes read and approved, the W.M., Bro. G. Hutchin, proceeded to initiate in a most effective manner, and afterwards raised two brethren to the Sublime Degree in an equally impressive manner, the latter portion of the historical lecture being given by Bro. R. Wilson, P.M. The brethren subsequently adjourned to refreshment.

BOSTON.—Lodge of Harmony (No. 272).—The usual meeting of the Lodge of Harmony, No. 272, was held on Tuesday, the 14th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Main Ridge, Boston, Lincolnshire. Bro. John Queenboro, W.M., presided, and the following officers were present: Bros. W. H. B. Bratley, S.W.; C. Pickering, J.W.; J. W. Lowe, Chap.; W. R. Fowler, Treas.; H. Snaith, Sec.; A. Thorpe, S.D.; E. Organer, J.D.; J. Buck, Org.; J. Eley, I.G.; W. Warne, Tyler. Bros. Thomas, I.P.M., and Baines, P.M., were also present. The only visitor was Bro. H. Thompson ("Freemason"), 1426, and P.M. 177 and 1158. The lodge having been opened and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed, Bro. George Robert Mawer was introduced and questioned as to his proficiency in the science, and his answers being considered satisfactory, he retired, and the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. He was then readmitted in due form, and advanced to the degree of a F.C., the ceremony being most ably rendered by the W.M. Some private business having been disposed of the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment, which was served in that liberal spirit so truly characteristic of the Freemasons of Lincolnshire. At the close of the repast the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were heartily responded to, after which Bro. Bratley, S.W., in some well-chosen words proposed "The Health of the W.M.," whose year of office was drawing to a close, but remarked that during the time he had occupied the chair he had acquitted himself in his duties to their entire satisfaction. The W.M. in acknowledging the compliment expressed his thanks to the brethren for having so cordially responded to it, and said that he had been most fortunate in having such a body of officers who had so well supported him, and one and all had been most punctual in their attendance, and carried out all that could possibly be required of them. Bro. Baines, P.M., begged to be allowed to propose the next toast, which was "The Health of their Visitor, Bro. Thompson," and could assure him that the Lodge of Harmony gave him a hearty welcome, a toast which was drunk with the utmost cordiality. Bro. H. Thompson, in reply, begged to thank the W. Master and brethren, not only for the kind manner in which the toast had been responded to, but for the bountiful hospitality with which he had been received. He could assure them that next to his initiation into Freemasonry that was the proudest moment of his life, as for many years he had desired to visit that lodge, and now the aspiration of his heart had been accomplished. As a native of the county he felt some interest in being there, but more especially so as that was the lodge in which so far back as the year 1812 his father first saw the light of Freemasonry, an event which made the greatest impression on his mind, and which he cherished and revered up to his latest hour, but years since he had passed away. In answer to his youthful inquiries as to what Freemasonry was, his reply was that it was something very good in itself, which he would in time find out for himself. In due time he had done so, and he could safely repeat the words of his departed father and say it was a very good thing, and if properly used was calculated to promote the happiness and the welfare of mankind. This brought to his mind the fact that Freemasonry was now appreciated to an extent that had no parallel, for he found, according to a statement he held in his hand, that it was making most rapid strides all over the world, for while on the 1st November, 1863, the total number of lodges on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England amounted to 942, on the 9th November, 1856, they were 1649, or an increase of 707 between those two periods. That they would admit was a most satisfactory state of things, and showed the healthy condition of their Order in this country, but as regarded lodges in France, he was sorry to find that lately there was a very uneasy feeling in London as to the condition of lodges in that country. For some time past, he had it on good authority, they had banished the use of the Sacred Volume from their lodges, which was in itself a blow striking at the very root and existence of Freemasonry, but a proposition was now before the Grand Orient of France even worse than that, a proposition most repugnant to their Order and every well regulated mind, and that was that no religious test should be required from any candidate seeking admission to their lodges. If they admitted infidels or communists into their lodges—all repudiating the existence of a Supreme Being—he was really at a loss to know upon what principle they could bind them together when they disregarded all those sacred ties which formed the great bond and foundation of Freemasonry. If such was to be the case, what was there to prevent the admission of men who, like those of the First Revolution, worshipped the God of Reason, and caused the streets of France to run with blood. He thought it was only right that they should know what was going on, and if the subject shall ever be taken up by the Grand Lodge of England, they would know what to do when the time for action should arrive. He was afraid he had wandered from the toast which had been proposed, but being forewarned they would be forearmed, and in conclusion he begged most cordially to return them his sincere thanks for the honour they had conferred upon him. Some other toasts having been given, a very happy meeting was brought to a close.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, on the 8th inst. There was a good attendance; the chair of K.S. being occupied by Bro. Thomas Atkinson, the W.M. The lodge having been opened with solemn prayer, the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Pandolfini, of St. John and St. Paul Lodge, No. 349, was unanimously elected a joining member. There being no special business the W.M. and Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B. of E., very efficiently worked the first section of the lecture on the E.A. Degree. A cordial vote of thanks was passed to each on its termination. The usual proclamations were then made, which elicited hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren, and the lodge was afterwards closed in peace, love, and harmony. This lodge has recently undergone a complete renovation, and now presents a very comfortable appearance, second to none, we should think, for its size, in the Province of West Lancashire.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, Lancaster, on the 6th inst., Bro. Longman, the W.M., presiding. There was a good attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree with solemn prayer, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Mr. James Vince, which proving unanimous that gentleman was regularly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft, the working being performed by the W.M. Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B. of E., afterwards gave the lecture on the First Tracing Board, and at the close was awarded a hearty vote of thanks. The congratulations of the lodge were also passed to Bro. W. J. Sey, P.M., on his appointment as J.D. of Prov. Grand Lodge of West Lancashire. The usual proclamations were then made, which elicited hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren, and the lodge was closed with the formalities of the Craft.

LIVERPOOL.—Temple Lodge (No. 1094).—The brethren of this excellent lodge were summoned to attend their Masonic duties at the monthly meeting in the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, at six o'clock, on the evening of Wednesday, the 8th inst., and in response to the summons there was quite a large gathering. Bro. William Healing was in the place of honour as W.M., and amongst his official supporters were Bros. R. C. Yelland, P.M.; R. R. Martin, P.M.; R. Washington, P.M.; A. Jarvis, S.W.; Thos. G. Winstanley, J.W.; J. Wood, Treas., ("Freemason"); Thos. Marsh, P.M., Sec.; T. S. Williams, S.D.; T. Birch, J.D.; W. B. Jones, I.G.; Joseph Skeaf, Org.; John Alexander, S.; M. G. Bateman, S.; H. Horspool, S.; and P. Ball, Tyler. The members present were Bros. T. Durran, W. Callow, R. Bathie, H. Jones, Geo. E. McGachen, T. Carr, F. J. Jeffery, and J. S. Tyson. The visitors' list embraced Bros. P. B. Gee, P.M. 1264; W. Hawksworth, 724; J. Pemberton, P.G. Supt. of Wks.; A. Magnus, 1264; H. S. Alpass, Prov. G. Sec.; T. M. Stanbury, 241; T. Price, 1039; P. McDulrow, P.M. 1299, P.G. Purst.; and H. P. Price, P.M. 249. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for a candidate (Mr. James Preston) who was duly elected. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Bethell was examined, and the remarkably perfect manner in which he answered gave ample satisfaction. He then retired, and the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when Bro. Bethell was re-admitted and raised. The noble ceremony was performed in a manner which has rarely, if ever, been surpassed in the lodge, and elicited universal and hearty admiration. A circular was read with reference to the sedilia in Chester Cathedral, and the sum of three guineas was voted in aid of the fund for this purpose. Bro. H.

S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., who has taken the warmest interest in the gift, cordially thanked the Temple brethren for their gift. After other votes for charitable objects, and the transaction of some formal business, the lodge was closed according to ancient form, and the brethren retired for refreshment. The W.M. (Bro. W. Healing) presided at the festive board, and during the evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and loyally and Masonically honoured. Bro. R. C. Yelland, I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the Worshipful Master" (a toast which was received with much enthusiasm), referred in eulogistic terms to the splendid style in which he (Bro. Healing) had gone through the ceremony of raising Bro. Bethell that afternoon, and also paid him a very high compliment for the exceedingly able manner in which he performed the duties of the chair generally. In acknowledging the proposition of the toast, Bro. Healing, W.M., thanked Bro. Yelland and the officers and members generally for the honour thus done to him. It was his ambition to maintain the dignity of his office and to do justice to their noble Masonic ceremonies, and he felt amply repaid for study and labour by the cordial recognition thus given by the brethren to his efforts in that direction. In the course of the evening Bro. R. R. Martin, P.M., asked and obtained permission from the W.M. to depart from the beaten track of toasts, and propose "The Health of Bro. Bethell," who had that evening been raised to the Degree of M.M. The most efficient way in which he had proved himself on receiving his degrees reflected honour not only upon himself but upon his tutor; and Bro. Bethell might also feel proud in having been raised in the presence of the P.G. Secretary, as he (Bro. Martin) believed this was the only instance in which any member had been so honoured. Bro. Bethell replied in suitable terms, and shortly afterwards the Tylers' toast brought a very pleasant evening to a close at an early hour.

LIVERPOOL.—Lodge of Israel (No. 1502).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Liverpool Masonic Hall, last Monday afternoon, the 20th inst., when Bro. Maurice Hart, S.W., was duly installed in the chair by Bro. A. J. Henochsberg, the retiring W.M. A full report of the proceedings will appear in next week's "Freemason."

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Albany Hotel, Twickenham, on Wednesday, the 8th inst., at four o'clock in the afternoon precisely. Amongst the officers present were Bros. Wigginton, P.M. 902, 1298, P.P.G.D.C. Worcestershire, P.G.S. of Works Middlesex, W.M.; W. H. Saunders, P.G.S. of Surrey, S.W., W.M. elect; Tomlinson, P.M., P.P.G.S.D. of Norfolk, J.W.; C. Horsley, P.M., &c., acting I.P.M.; Kennedy, P.M., &c.; Knaggs, S.D.; Taylor, J.D.; Court, Sec. Bro. Hervey, G.S., &c., an honorary member of the lodge, was also present. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the ceremony of installation commenced. The Installing Master, Bro. Wigginton, P.M., appointed the following members of the lodge to assist him in carrying out the ceremonial: — Bros. Hervey, Horsley, Tomlinson, and Kennedy. The whole of the interesting and arduous ceremony was then most ably and impressively performed by the Installing Master. Amongst the principal officers appointed and invested for the ensuing year were Bros. Knaggs, S.W.; Court, sen., J.W.; Tomlinson, P.M., &c., Treas.; Wigginton, I.P.M., &c., Sec.; Taylor, S.D.; Vaughan, J.D. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth, the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the M.W.G.M.," "The Pro and D.G.M.'s, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," "The M.W.P.G.M. of Middlesex, Col. Burdett," "The D.G.M. of Middlesex, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," were given briefly, but pertinently by the W.M. Bro. Hervey, G.S., replied for "The Grand Officers" by expressing his thanks for the manner in which the toast had been proposed and received, and, amongst other matters, stated that he was personally gratified at perceiving the great progress the lodge had made since its foundation in 1874, which prosperity he hoped would long continue. Bros. Wigginton, P.G.S. of Works, and Horsley, P.P.G.R., responded on behalf of the Prov. G. Officers for Middlesex. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the I.P.M., who, in the course of his remarks, hoped that the W.M.'s year of office would in every respect prove a most happy and prosperous one. The W.M., in reply, expressed his thanks to the brethren for having elected him to fulfil the duties and discharge the responsibilities of W.M. of No. 1503, which lodge, he was proud to say, was equal to any in the large Masonic Province of Middlesex, and in conclusion, he hoped that the kind wishes and anticipations contained in the I.P.M.'s speech would be fully realized. "The Health of the I.P.M. and Honorary Past Masters" followed, and at its conclusion the W.M. presented Bro. Wigginton with a very handsome and artistically designed jewel as a memorial of his two years of office. The I.P.M. made a very able and effective reply in acknowledgment of the gift. The toasts of "The Visitor, Bro. Lane," "The Masonic Charities," "The Treasurer and Secretary," and "The Officers" followed in quick succession, and the Tyler's toast at ten o'clock terminated the proceedings, which were throughout eminently successful. The next meeting of the lodge will be held on Wednesday, the 13th prox.

GREAT STANMORE.—Abercorn Lodge (No. 1549).—This young lodge completed its second season at the Abercorn Hotel on the 3rd ult. A Lodge of Emergency has also to be recorded, which was held on Sept. 5th, to advance several younger brethren, at which Bro. I.P.M. R. Helsdon presided, in the absence of the W.M. This extra meeting was not only well supported by the officers and members of the lodge, but was honoured by the following visitors: Bros. Ascot, Thompson, and Brown, 733; Woodstock, 749; Fitzjohn, 192. The lodge was opened to the Second Degree at 3.45, when Bro. Meek having proved efficient was raised to the Sublime Third Degree. The lodge was then resumed, and Bros. Marshall, Clark, Fradelle, Brick, Johnson, and Darby, having been duly examined, were afterwards passed to the Second Degree. The lodge closed at 6.30, and the brethren adjourned to banquet and an enjoyable evening, under the able presidency of the I.P.M. At the closing meeting on the 3rd Oct., the chair of K.S. was occupied by the W.M., who was unavoidably deprived of the assistance of his J.W., J.D., and Organist, besides several brethren, through illness and pressing emergencies; he had, however, many able assistants, Bro. Squire, P.M. 889, visitor, and opened his lodge with the usual form and prayer at 3.45. After disposing of the preliminary business Bros. Marshall, Fradelle, Johnson, Brick, and Darby having been duly proved were separately raised to the Third Degree, and afterwards jointly invested and enlightened by the I.P.M. with the full traditional history. The usual enquiries for the good of the Craft were then made by the W.M., and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 5.50. The brethren afterwards adjourned to banquet, which gave general satisfaction. The usual Masonic and complimentary toasts were well given by the W.M., and heartily responded to. Much regret was expressed at the absence of Bro. Winter, Organist, as it deprived the brethren of much high-class music, but withal they had a very social gathering, many of the members contributing vocally for their enjoyment. The progress of the lodge during its second season may be considered highly gratifying—twelve brethren have been added to the ranks, nine new and three joining members, and it may be taken as a proof of the satisfaction given to the Prov. Grand Master on his visiting the lodge in July last, that he has since selected Bro. R. Helsdon, the highly respected I.P.M., as a Prov. Grand Officer, and bestowed upon him the first purple collar, to the honour of the lodge, and satisfaction of the brethren. The next season commences on the first Tuesday in April, 1877.

MORECAMBE.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Edward-street, on the 3rd inst., Bro. Capt. Garnett, the W.M., presiding. There was a very fair attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened in the First Degree with the usual formalities, and the regular routine business transacted. A discussion took place relative to the formation of a Lodge of Instruction, with Bro. Dr. Moore as Preceptor, and the matter was subsequently left in the hands of that distinguished brother for arrangement. The working of the various degrees was then gone through, and the lodge having resumed working in the First Degree the usual proclamations were made and responded to, and the lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony. This was the first meeting of the lodge in their new Masonic Hall, and although it can scarcely be said to be in a finished state, the members were anxious to occupy it, owing to the inconvenience they have hitherto experienced in not having a suitable place in which to hold their lodge. When finished and completely furnished it will be a very neat and commodious lodge room.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Fortescue Lodge (No. 9).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall on Monday, 13th inst., when a large muster of the members of the lodge attended, it being the day of installation of Bro. J. Wood as W.M. for the year ensuing. Bro. J. T. Shapland, W.M., having opened the lodge, the P.G.M.M.M., R.W. Bro. Capt. J. Tanner Davey, duly installed Bro. Wood as W.M. for the year ensuing. He thereupon invested the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. J. T. Shapland, I.P.M.; J. Brewer, S.W.; Wm. Cole, J.W.; John Galliford, M.O.; J. Widgery, S.O.; R. L. Riccard, J.O.; Rev. F. The brethren afterwards dined together at Bro. Cole's, Unicorn Hotel, whose catering was all that could be desired, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DERBYSHIRE.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Derbyshire held its annual meeting at the Masonic Hall, Gower-street, Derby, on Wednesday, Nov. 15th, under the presidency of Bro. H. C. Okeover, P.J.G.W. England, and R.W.D.P.G.M. of Derbyshire. The lodge was opened in ample form at two p.m., prayer being offered up by Bro. A. A. Bagshawe, M.A., P.P.G.S.W. and Past Grand Chaplain. The usual business of the Grand Lodge was then proceeded with. The W.M.'s of the various Craft lodges presented their reports, from which it appeared that Freemasonry is satisfactorily progressing in the province. The reports of the Masonic Hall Committee, and the Audit Committee were read and confirmed, after which the acting Grand Master proceeded to appoint and invest his Provincial Grand Officers as follows:—Henry Turner, P.S.G.W.; G. T. Wright, P.J.G.W.; Rev. J. Francis Nash Eyre, LL.D., P.G.C.; Thos. Cox, P.G.T.; J. M. Stafford, P.G.R.; W. Naylor, P.G.S.; S. Pipes, P.S.G.D.; E. C. Milligan, P.J.G.D.; R. Bennett, P.G.S. of W.; J. Afterwards grants to the amount of £175, made at former Lodge of Benevolence, were confirmed.

The new cases were afterwards taken up. Of these there were 32 on the list. Two cases were dismissed. The rest were relieved with sums amounting in all to £554. One grant was for £100, and two were for £50 each. One was for £40, and one for £25. Nine were for £20 each; one was for £13; seven were for £10; four for £5 each, and two for £3 each.

The brethren were in session for four hours.

THE COMING LIVERPOOL MASONIC BALL.—Arrangements are in active progress for the forthcoming 28th annual Masonic Ball in Liverpool, which will, as usual, be in aid of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. The Mayor and Corporation have again generously granted the use of the Town Hall, including the Council Chamber, for the ball, which will take place on the 9th January, 1877; and his Worship, the Mayor (Alderman A. A. Walker) has not only given his patronage, but has also promised his presence, along with the Mayoress. An energetic committee is now at work to make the ball a complete success, Bro. R. Wilson, P.P.G.J.D., being Chairman; Bro. H. Nelson, P.M. 1505, Vice Chairman; Bro. J. Hutching, W.M. 241, Secretary, and Bro. Pemberton, P.G.S. of Works, the Treasurer.

ILLEGALITY.

We call attention to an article from the London "Freemason," in relation to the initiation into one of the Hungarian lodges of a woman, Countess Hadick; the "Freemason" taking the ground that the action of the Grand Orient of Hungary in declaring the initiation "null and void" to be wrong. The "Freemason" admits the gross wrong on the part of the lodge initiating, but insists that "once a Mason, always a Mason," and that the action cannot be made "null and void." Here we must differ with our respected English contemporary. The action of the lodge was all wrong and illegal, and therefore the Grand Body did right in declaring it, so far as the Masonic rights of the lady are concerned, "null and void," and having violated their Master Mason's obligation, the charter of the lodge should have been forfeited and the entire membership declared expelled by the Grand Orient.

But the "Freemason" says that it is unjust to declare the lady still a profane, because she got her degree honestly, and that none but the Master of the lodge should be punished; that she was a constant reader and admirer of Masonic law and literature, and from this knowledge applied for the degrees. It would be better for his client had he pleaded ignorance for her, for being read in Masonry she knew that she could not lawfully be initiated, and could not be recognized by any legal body of Masons. Then if the Grand Orient of Hungary has done its duty and refused to recognize her legal initiation, has it not done right? Yea, verily. The Grand Orient does not say she has not received the secret of Masonry in a regular Lodge, but adheres to the law that she is not entitled to it and received it illegally, and therefore, shall not be recognized as a legal Mason. We ask our distinguished contemporary how can a Grand Body wink at an open, known illegal action of a subordinate lodge, and make an exception in behalf of an illegal subject? It cannot. The Grand Master is pledged against it and the Grand Orient is bound to sustain him.

Again we ask our Brother, the warrant of the lodge being necessarily arrested, and the officers and members being expelled for violation of an unalterable landmark, what other lodge will be silly enough to affiliate the non-descript female Mason? Would he vote to affiliate her in his lodge? We think not. And further, we think that he could not recognize her as a Mason, even for two reasons. If her lodge goes she goes with it. And not being legally made she must necessarily be a clandestine, and he knows his duty in such matters.

We are opposed to all "New Day—New Duty" schemes that may spring up all over the world in contravention of plain, well known and well understood Masonic Law, and our most anciently established landmarks. In this we are no opponents of woman's true rights in her every proper sphere, but Masons know that a woman cannot, lawfully, be a Mason, and our seal is set against making Masons of nien in their dotage, men in nonage, madmen, libertines, atheists, women and fools, and if made we will not recognize them; and we believe every American Mason will agree with us.

To illustrate: Suppose some man should steal fifty thousand dollars and give it to some favourite woman, would she be entitled to it by law, and to its benefits by right? And if she was well read and knew it to be fraudulently obtained, would she not be particeps criminis by receiving, and more by using it? So the Countess Hadick knows she is not entitled to the rights, lights and benefits of Masonry, and can raise no objection to her nor recognition by the Grand Orient of Hungary, and she and her coadjutors in Masonic crime should go to the wall together. Countess or peasant, no woman can legally be made a Mason—no legally rejected material can be allowed to remain in the great Masonic edifice, but must come out and take its proper place among the rubbish—and we believe that no woman, or other baned subject, will ever become a keystone for the completion of our mystic arch.

And finally, it will never do to establish any such precedent as the "Freemason" suggests, by making the case of this lady an exception.—"Masonic Journal."

The marriage of Lord Balfour of Burleigh, P.G.S.W. of England, R.W. Substitute Grand Master of Scotland, and Lady Katherine Eliza Gordon, youngest daughter of the late George John James, fifth Earl of Aberdeen, and sister of the present peer, was celebrated on Tuesday at the parish church of St. Mary Abbott's, Kensington. The bride was accompanied by her mother, the Countess, and her brother, the Earl of Aberdeen. The bridesmaids were the Ladies Margaret and Mary Ashburnham, Misses Katherine and Louise Gordon and Miss Gordon (cousins of the bride), Madlle. de Witt, Lady Grace Gordon, Miss Hamilton, Miss Bruce, Hon. Miss Scott, and Miss Lindsay. The bride wore a dress of Velours Indien, trimmed with Louis XIV. brocaded silk and Brussels lace, and over a wreath of natural flowers a tulle veil. The bridesmaids' dresses were of turquoise blue Cashmere, trimmed with a scarf of white broché silk, and a bouquet of ivy leaves on the corsage, beaver hats trimmed with feathers, and each lady wore a locket, the gift of the bridegroom. Lord Balfour was attended by Lord Cochrane, as best man. The Archbishop of Canterbury performed the ceremony, assisted by the Hon. and Rev. Canon Gordon, the uncle of the bride, and the Rev. W. D. MacLagan, vicar of St. Mary Abbott's. Early in the afternoon Lord Balfour and his bride left for Lady John Scott's seat near Rugby, to spend the honeymoon.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

A Special General Court of the Governors and subscribers of this Institution was held on Saturday last at Freemasons' Hall. The Court was held in compliance with a requisition signed by Lieut.-Colonel Creaton, Vice-Patron and Trustee, and its object was to receive the report of the Building Committee upon the new laundry, &c., and, if approved, to authorise such further expenditure as might be deemed necessary. Lieut.-Colonel Creaton, P.G.D., was called to the chair, and the other brethren present were Henry Browne, Raynham W. Stewart, A. H. Tattershall, Capt. John Wordsworth, Thos. J. Sabine, Major E. H. Finney, Thomas W. White, W. Hyde Pullen, Rev. J. M. Vaughan, H. Massey ("Freemason"), S. Rawson, John Symonds, W. F. C. Moutrie, John Boyd, Z. D. Berry, F. Binckes, James Terry, Leopold Ruf, William Roebuck, J. G. Chancellor, Dr. Ramsay, and R. W. Little (Secretary).

The report of the Building Committee, which was read by Bro. Little, shewed that the new laundry could not be built for the contract price of £1400.

The Chairman said the brethren were quite aware of the position the Building Committee were in at the present moment. The sum of £1400 was formerly voted for the purpose of building the laundry; and it was now shown, after seeing the plans, the drawings, and the estimates, that it could not be completed for anything like that sum. When he told them that out of the sum of £1400 already voted, £600 would go for engineering expenses, it would be evident that £1400 would not meet the requirements. He begged, therefore, to move that another £1000 be voted for the purpose of carrying out the scheme to make the laundry perfect.

The motion having been seconded,

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., after a short pause, said that this motion must really come upon the brethren by surprise, inasmuch as the question had been repeatedly discussed, not only before the General Committee, but the House Committee. The Committee had been also told by the Chairman himself, when the sum of £1400 was voted, that they were given a larger sum than would be required, and that the estimate was over rather than under what the buildings would cost. He would ask whose fault was it that it was really under rather than over. Was it the fault of the architect? That gentleman had before him the plans that were put before the Committee, and he ought to be able to give a correct estimate. It was a very serious question. They knew that they must build a laundry, but they ought to have been so advised as to the cost that a motion for an extra sum of money should not have to come upon them. He should say that a tender for the buildings should now be offered to public competition, and not to the brother who was engaged already on the alterations. When a large sum of money like this was asked for the brethren should remember that they were bound by their duty to their subscribers, as it was public money they had to spend, to get the lowest tender, and have the work done for the smallest sum of money they could. He would ask the chairman whether there had been any alterations in the plans.

The Chairman: None.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart: Then how could this occur? He would take the sense of the General Court upon the subject.

The Chairman said he thought Bro. Massa, the architect, could explain a good deal of the question away. The brethren were well aware that when he (the Chairman) came before them last for the £1400 it was on the faith of the architect giving that amount as the sum required. He believed the architect could explain the matter in such a way as would be satisfactory to the court. With regard to one remark which had fallen from Bro. Stewart he might explain that there was one objection to asking for public tenders, and that was that it would be very undesirable to have two sets of builders on the premises at the same time, and also to throw over till May, when the present buildings were completed, the proceeding with the laundry. He thought, after going into this estimate, although he quite agreed with Bro. Stewart, if they got fresh tenders they would not get the work done cheaper. Bro. Massa would now explain.

Bro. Thomas Massa, the architect, said the estimate for the laundry was originally a portion of the very much larger estimate, and had the original scheme been accepted, then there was very little doubt that the surplus on one building would have compensated for perhaps the deficiency in the other; but just when one building was done part of the scheme of these original estimates was stuck to. The amount was put down for each of the two buildings when the estimates came to be made. They were made originally from preliminary drawings. They were much the same as the others, but still they were preliminary. When the working drawings were made on the model of Bro. Fish's (the builder's) prices for the new buildings it came to more money. He went over it with Bro. Fish himself, and the estimate for the laundry was based upon Bro. Fish's actual model of prices for the new works, and, therefore, it could not be at all an excessive estimate. That was the explanation he had to offer.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart replied that he did not see that it was an explanation. Bro. Massa had said part of the scheme was stuck to. There was a separate plan he always understood. When the new hall was done it was absolutely necessary that the new laundry should be made.

The Chairman: But that laundry was included in the charge.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart: To say that this estimate was based upon Bro. Fish's ideas and schedules of prices shewed that Bro. Massa knew nothing at all about it. The brethren had no one to depend upon but their architect. If a brother was asked to build a house, and he said it would cost about £1000, and then afterwards he said it would cost £1400 because he had made a mistake in the builder's schedule of prices, what would be thought of him? He (Bro. Stewart) did not think this was any clear statement to the brethren that Bro. Massa had gone on Bro. Fish's estimate of prices. The brethren had had confidence in Bro. Massa when he said £1400, and now he came to them and asked for an extra sum. He (Bro. Raynham Stewart) would now move as an amendment that before the sum of £1000 was granted there should be a public tender for the works. He did not think the brethren ought to be simply told by the architect that he had got these prices from Bro. Fish. He would, therefore, move that tenders for the works be publicly advertised for.

Bro. Henry Browne, P.G.D., said it was a question with him whether this should not have been done before. He had asked this question, and it was settled that it should not be done. It was decided that £1400 was the proper price, and it was given to Bro. Fish.

The Chairman said he had explained that it was undesirable to have two builders on the premises at the same time, the two buildings having to go on simultaneously.

Bro. Henry Browne continued that an extra £1000 upon an estimate of £1400 was so large a sum, and so out of all proportion to anything that could happen, or be contemplated, that he submitted before they came to the Quarterly Court for it they should advertise for tenders. The obstacles of having two contractors were easily met. The present contractor must clear the ground by the 1st of April. The form of specification could state that the contractor would have the clear ground given to him on the 1st of April, when the present contractor must complete his work. He was of opinion now that they ought to have done that before coming to the Court for this enormous increase. The difficulty of having the ground cleared was nothing whatever. It could not be done, for no man would go there and dig foundations in November.

The Chairman: Bro. Fish told me he would do it next week.

Bro. Henry Browne would withdraw the expression that it could not be done. They were in a very sad dilemma. They should first of all obtain tenders for this work by public competition. They would not be bound to accept the lowest tender. They might say they would not be bound to accept the lowest or any other tender. It should be advertised, and he dared say they would find a man to do it. He concluded by seconding Bro. Raynham Stewart's proposition.

Bro. Z. D. Berry would support the original resolution. The difference in the time of year would make no difference, because Mr. Fish was already on the premises. He (Bro. Berry) had a contract last year at Lord's Cricket Ground, and he did his work. He would give this contract to Bro. Fish; he did not think it was at all fair to Bro. Fish to entertain Bro. Stewart's amendment for a moment.

Bro. Thomas W. White, P.G.S.: No doubt. Bro. Massa might tell the brethren when Bro. Fish was to finish the building.

Bro. Thomas Massa: I think it is April.

Bro. Thomas W. White: I thought it was May. Then there was a strike clause in the contract.

Bro. H. A. Dubois would like to have some information from Bro. Massa as to whether the scheduled prices were high or low, and also whether in the case of the thing being advertised for it would enhance the price if a new man came on the ground.

Bro. Thomas Massa said it appeared to him that Bro. Fish's prices were moderate. All builders' prices were inconsistent; at least he had always found it so. Some were very high; some were very low; but taken as an average, Bro. Fish's prices were moderate.

Bro. Z. D. Berry: Bricks have gone up at least 12s. a thousand since that contract was entered into.

Bro. John Symonds, P.G.D.: Supposing it was put to tender, and six or eight houses offered, would Bro. Fish, who was already on the ground, consent to go for the work?

Bro. Thomas Massa: Bro. Fish would no doubt tender.

Bro. W. Roebuck thought that a public tender was the proper thing to have, as it was public money the Committee had to deal with.

The Chairman said that the laundry was the most important thing required now. It had been long wanted; it had been necessary to have it enlarged. For the last three or four years the present laundry had not been sufficient for the number of children in the Institution. It was really more necessary to be got on with than the hall.

Bro. John Symonds was not sure that with a work of this kind it would be desirable to go to public tender. By selecting out of six or eight houses they might get the work done cheaper; but he understood that Bro. Fish would be willing to be one of those selected. It would then be rather strange not to let him; he having the plant already on the ground, would be able to compete with those coming on the ground new. In a work of this kind he did not think a public tender would be advantageous. If they selected their men they were bound to take the lowest tender. They were then on the right side; and it was Bro. Fish's fault if he did not get the contract.

The Chairman observed that there was one thing he had omitted to tell the brethren. In the original tender the fittings were not included; so that in any case, if that original tender had been carried out, there would have been £600 worth of fittings. This made a wide difference.

Bro. Henry Browne (to Bro. Massa): Did you not include fittings?

Bro. Thomas Massa: No.

The Chairman: They are included now of necessity.

Bro. John Symonds: Then we are to understand that although the previous estimate did not include fittings, the further £1000 would include them.

Bro. Thomas Massa: It would include all.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart: The architect may make a mistake again.

Bro. W. Roebuck supported Bro. Stewart's amendment, and he did not agree with Bro. Symonds as to the prudence of asking half-a-dozen houses to tender. This was public money they were trustees for. It was easy enough to find out whether a man was a responsible man. If they had not an architect they could place confidence in, let them change him. If they were not disposed to give the contract to Bro. Fish, let them change him. If they were not disposed to give the contract to Bro. Fish, the contract must go to public competition.

Bro. Henry Browne said that on the occasion of the first tenders being put out there were eight competitors. The lowest was accepted. He withdrew, and when that was known the two next also repudiated. That brought them to Bro. Fish, who was the fourth, and he accepted.

The Chairman then put Bro. Raynham W. Stewart's amendment, when there were found to be

The amendment having been carried was put as a substantive motion and agreed to.

The Chairman thereupon declared the business of the meeting closed; but

Bro. John Symonds said he would like to know the exact position the brethren were in. This Court had not sanctioned any expenditure either for fittings or buildings. Would the contractors be prepared to put up everything for the money?

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart replied that the tender would be for everything.

Bro. John Symonds: Would there be authority to spend another £600, or would it be necessary to call a Special Court to sanction that? He moved that the committee be authorised to spend £600 beyond the £1400.

Bro. F. Binckes, P.G.S., thought a point of order arose here. The meeting had been held, according to notice, "to receive the report of the Building Committee upon the new laundry, &c., and, if approved, to authorise such further expenditure as may be deemed necessary." It appeared to him that the whole of the discussion had simply turned upon the question in what manner that expenditure should take place. The architect asked for another £1000, to include everything. The question was, was that to be given to Bro. Fish or was the work to be put up to open competition? Surely that very resolution that the works should be advertised and tenders solicited carried the authorisation of that Court to spend the money without any further action.

Bro. Henry Browne observed that the original tender from Bro. Fish was £3900, and that included not only the new laundry, but the alterations in the old laundry. £1400 was the estimated price of the new laundry. The works to be done included both, but the excess was in the £1400 for the new laundry. The resolution passed, as far as he was concerned, was that the whole of the works should be executed by Bro. Fish, and not to advertise for tenders for the new laundry alone. They had an excess of £1100 on the £2800. He was quite sure that the Court did not understand that the works contemplated by Bro. Fish's estimate for £2900 were now to be competed for.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart explained that he only rose to move an amendment upon the Chairman's proposal that an additional £1000 be paid. They had an estimate there for £3922; that was what he wanted a tender for.

The Chairman: The £1400 for the old laundry is sufficient. I stick to the new laundry: the £1400 is not sufficient. (To Bro. Massa) Is that so? Is it sufficient?

Bro. Thomas Massa: Quite so.

Bro. John Symonds: I simply move "That the Building Committee be authorized to spend on the laundry £600 beyond the £1400 already authorised," and I should like to add to that, "such additional expenditure will include the fittings." With reference to what has fallen from Bro. Binckes, the question is what body is to accept the tenders. Bro. Binckes thinks if we authorise the Building Committee to send out tenders it must follow that we must accept them, but unless this Court authorises the acceptance of the tenders I apprehend it is necessary to come to a Special General Court to accept them.

Bro. Binckes: That is where I differ. The authorisation of the acceptance of tenders involves the authorisation of the expenditure of money without having to come to the Court.

Bro. John Symonds: I have never understood so anywhere. It is not so in the Corporation.

Bro. Henry Browne: Surely it must include the expenditure of money.

Bro. H. A. Dubois agreed with Bro. Binckes.

The Chairman: We have got sufficient money for the conversion of the old laundry. They had the power to carry out the alterations of the old laundry; and he would call upon the Secretary to read the minute concerning that matter.

Bro. Little having read the minute,

Bro. Binckes again read the notice convening the present meeting.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart reminded the brethren that the chairman moved the grant of £1000 extra, and his (Bro. Stewart's) amendment was upon that.

Bro. John Symonds: My motion is "That the committee be authorised, if need be, to go to the further amount of £600, such further amount to include fittings."

Bro. A. H. Tattershall seconded the motion, which was put and carried.

Bro. Symonds then moved a vote of thanks to the chairman, which, however much he always deserved it, he still more deserved on this occasion, as he came there in great pain. Having met with an accident in riding, which, thank God, was not more serious than it was, he nevertheless had this Institution's welfare so much at heart that he would not allow the remaining effects of that accident to keep him away from this Quarterly Court.

The Chairman, when this motion had been seconded and carried, thanked the brethren for their kindness, and said his interest in the prosperity of the Girls' School was too well-known to need remarking upon. He was thankful that his accident was not serious, and though he still suffered considerable pain, it was not sufficient to prevent his coming among the brethren when his services were required for the Institutions.

The Court then broke up.

PRINCE LEOPOLD AND THE WILTSHIRE FREEMASONS.

There was a very large and influential gathering of Freemasons at Warminster on Wednesday, in consequence of Prince Leopold, K.G., P.G.M. for Oxfordshire, having expressed his intention of visiting the annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Wiltshire, held in the Warminster Town Hall. The officers of the Longleat Lodge opened the lodge at half-past twelve o'clock, and shortly afterwards received the Provincial Grand Lodge, the long procession including the Provincial Grand Master, Lord Methuen, accompanied by Prince Leopold; Bro. Gabriel Goldney, M.P., Deputy Grand Master; Lord Henry Thynne, M.P., Past Grand Warden of England; Sir Watkin Wynn, M.P., Provincial Grand Master for Wales and Shropshire; Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P., Provincial Grand Master for Berks and Bucks; Bro. V. F. Bennett Stanford, M.P., General Doherty, the Revs. C. R. Davey, and T. F. Ravenshaw, Past Grand Chaplains; Rev. G. O. E. Gardiner, Provincial Grand Chaplain; Bro. Tombs, Provincial Grand Secretary; Bro. Biggs, Provincial Grand Secretary Berks and Bucks; and a number of other Prov. G. Officers of the Craft in Wilts, Dorset, Somerset, and other provinces. The customary honours having been accorded to Prince Leopold and the other distinguished visitors, reports were represented showing that the province was in a very satisfactory state, upon which Lord Methuen congratulated the brethren generally. Bro. Goldney, the Deputy Grand Master, in the name of Provincial Grand Lodge, presented to Lord Methuen a handsome banner, emblazoned with his lordship's arms, and an inscription giving the date of Lord Methuen's installation (1835), and also that of the presentation. Bro. Goldney delivered a brief address, asking Lord Methuen's acceptance of the banner as a token of the gratitude which the Masons of Wiltshire felt towards him for the ability with which he had for so many years presided over the Province of Wiltshire. Lord Methuen, in thanking the brethren for the expression of their kindness and good will, said that whenever his connection with the Province of Wilts ceased he should look back upon it with feelings of pleasure and satisfaction. The Provincial Grand Master presented the thanks of the brethren to Prince Leopold for having honoured them with his presence, and said he hoped His Royal Highness would never feel regret, but rather pride, that he was a member of a Wiltshire lodge. At the conclusion of the business the company adjourned to a banquet, when the usual Masonic toasts were honoured. Lord Methuen presided, and the company, which numbered upwards of 100, included Prince Leopold, Lord H. Thynne, M.P., the High Sheriff of Wilts (Bro. W. H. Poynder), Sir Watkin Wynn, M.P., Sir Daniel Gooch, M.P., Bro. Arthur Guest, Past Grand Senior Warden Dorset; Colonel the Hon. Percy Fielding (Coldstream Guards), Colonel Crawley, Colonel Everett, Col. Magrath, Bro. R. H. Collins, and others holding high office in the Masonic Craft. "The Health of the Right Worshipful Bro. His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, Prov. Grand Master of Oxfordshire," was proposed by Lord Methuen, and received with great enthusiasm. His Royal Highness, in responding, said: Right Worshipful Sir and Brethren,—I rise to return my most sincere thanks for the cordial terms in which the Provincial Grand Master has proposed my health, and also to return thanks to all the brethren for the kind reception they have given to this toast. (Cheers.) although I have spent little more than a few weeks in Wiltshire this is already the second occasion on which I have received a hearty reception from the brethren of this province (cheers). I can assure you that this fact in no small degree increases my appreciation of this county and of this neighbourhood in particular (loud cheers). It seems to me that wherever a Mason may take up his residence, however much he may previously have been a stranger in the county, he is sure to find there a nucleus of ready made friends (loud cheers). And this, brethren, is an advantage which I am sure you will agree cannot be valued too highly (loud cheers). I must add that it is a special pleasure to me to make the acquaintance of my brother Masons in Wiltshire, and to find my highly valued friend, Lord Methuen, in charge of the province (cheers). Although there are probably many present who have enjoyed the Provincial Grand Master's friendship a greater number of years than I have, I can at least say I have known him as long almost as I have known any one, and I need not add that to know him is to appreciate a manly, straightforward, and thoroughly English character (loud cheers). In inviting you to drink "The Health of your Provincial Grand Master," I congratulate you upon having so genial and cheery a chief, and I ask you to join me in praying that he may be spared for many, many years to preside over this province (cheers).—Lord Methuen responded, and the toast list was then gone through.—"Standard."

THE TRICHONOPOLY.—Whatever may be said against or in favour of the smoking of tobacco, it is certain that the more fragrant our weed the less harm is likely to come of it. Cigars have become so dear that any means of obtaining a clear smoke must be looked upon as a boon to lovers of Sir Walter Raleigh's favourite weed. As a good cigar cannot harm a smoker so may we say of a good pipe. But the fragrance of tobacco is nearly always taken away by a foul pipe, and how to keep one clean is a matter which has puzzled the most ingenious. But after all, the simplest mode is always the best, and that which, when seen, appears so simple is often made the subject of a patent. This is clearly the case in a new patent pipe called the "Trichonopoly" brought out by Adolph Frankau, & Co., and its name was taken after the straw in the Trichonopoly Cheroots. Snapped in the ordinary way, the inside of the stem is movable with the mouthpiece, and by substituting a new straw in the centre of the stem and then replacing it and fastening it by aid of the cork at mouthpiece, a new centre is placed in the pipe, which smokes better than a new one by the seasoning the bowl may have had. A bundle of straws which costs 1d., is sold with each pipe, which vary in price from 2s., so that the interior of stem may be changed to new at any time. Those who have been unable to enjoy the "pipe of peace" may now do so with certainty. We trust that the introducers of the Trichonopoly Pipe will soon see the desirability of applying their patent to meerschaums also.

The visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Lord Suffield, R.W.P.G.M. Norwich, terminated rather abruptly, by reason of the death of a brother of Lady Suffield. PELHAM SHERRY.—This wine was specially imported by Messrs. Fryer and Parker in 1871. Since that time, the late Earl of Yarborough selected it from a large number of samples, and it was then shipped for him under the brand of "Pelham," which title has since been registered. It is a wine of genuine good value, soft and mellow on the palate, full of flavour and character, and of great bouquet. It is worthy the notice of our readers, that this firm having less expenses than a London house, are in a position to offer their wines at a much lower price.

CONSECRATION OF THE CRICHTON LODGE, No. 1646.

On Saturday, the 11th inst., an additional link was added to the great chain of Freemasonry by the consecration of the Crichton Lodge, No. 1646, which took place at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, in the presence of some of the most distinguished members of the Craft. The ceremonies of consecration and installation were performed by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary; assisted by Bros. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G. Chaplain; H. G. Buss, P.M. 27 and P.J.G.W. Middlesex; H. A. Dubois, P.M. 1423, and P.G.S.D. Middlesex; and the following brethren:—H. Bungary, 1622; J. H. Hastie, P.M. 1216; George Barsdorff, 1329; S. J. Davis, 1208; H. Hammond, S.W. 1216; R. Scott, 1558; W. E. Bott, 1558; T. Ickstein, 1196; J. T. Bickerton, 1329; S. J. Harvey, J.D. 72; T. Hines, S.W. 72; W. May, 256; G. Hyde, 141; H. Thompson ("Freemason"), 1426, and P.M. 176 and 1158; E. Clarke, P.M. 134; R. R. Davis, P.M. 256; J. Dixon, 1558; Dawn, P.M. 72; W. Semple, P.M. 194; J. Oliver, P.M. Granite; Payne, P.M. 27; H. Martin, J.W. 1329; W. L. Cackett, W.M. 1558; W. H. Fairer, 1429; J. H. Asman, 1329; J. Sugden, W.M. 1529; T. L. Heller, 1329; C. Browne, P.M. 176; A. Stubling, 1329; H. C. Reeves, J.W. 1381; and others.

Soon after three o'clock a procession was formed, and the brethren entered the lodge-room in the assigned order, the junior members being first, and the others according to their respective ranks. All having taken their assigned places, Bro. J. Hervey occupied the chair, and the lodge was opened in the three degrees.

The consecrating vessels from the Grand Lodge occupied a prominent position in the lodge-room.

Bro. J. Hervey, in commencing the proceedings, said it was only five weeks before that in the same building he had been called upon to consecrate and instal the 'Worshipful Master of the Rose Lodge, but since then he had consecrated another lodge, and that day, with the assistance of Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, he was again amongst them for the purpose of acting as Installing Master of the Crichton Lodge, No. 1646. That in itself showed the rapidity of their proceedings, and how persons now appreciated the great principles of Freemasonry, and how ready they were to receive its benefits, as they all knew that they were naturally calculated to confer benefits upon mankind. Looking back to the statistics of the Craft for some years he found that when the numbers of vacant lodges were closed up in 1863 there were then but 942 lodges on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England, while up to the 9th of November last the number was 1649, or an increase of 707 lodges, or something like an average increase of about 50 lodges every year during that period. It was true that during that time several lodges had been removed from the register of the Grand Lodge of England, which arose in consequence of some of them having become extinct, but the great bulk of them were colonial lodges, although seceding from the English roll had joined Grand Lodges in those colonies between 1863 and the present year, but in 1876 there were no less than 1649 lodges in active working order under the Grand Lodge of England. (Hear hear.) That was a great increase in the number of new lodges, and he trusted on behalf of that Craft that they loved so well, that so long as those lodges were properly conducted, and they acted together as Masons, that they would be glad to see them continue to increase in number. (Hear hear.) He wished he could say as much as regarded lodges in foreign countries, for he was sorry to say that their late increase in numbers did not bring with it a corresponding increase in respectability. It was well known that for some past that in France the Sacred Volume had been banished from their lodges, while in some other French Lodges they would admit men whether they believed in the existence of a Supreme Being or not. Therefore, speaking entirely as an individual he thought it would be for the Grand Lodge of England to consider whether they would receive the members of foreign lodges with that state of things before them. He spoke merely as a member of Grand Lodge, but he thought the time would come when they would seriously have to consider whether they would admit foreigners into their lodges as visitors, when they would not admit members of their own lodges under similar terms. This was a subject which must occupy the attention of the Craft, and which we trust would necessarily demand their serious consideration. Having taking the first step to banish the Bible from their lodges, it was only an easy step they were taking to admit those who had no belief "whatever in the existence of a Supreme Being." Whatever these foreign lodges might do, whatever might be the men whom they chose to admit, he hoped no such step would be taken in this country, for if it was so, it would strike at the very root and existence of Freemasonry, and then the sooner the Craft fell to the ground the better. He must say that he found it difficult to introduce new topics into his address, customary on such occasions, but there was one, a very strong one, and one that was usually called charity. Now he contended that that was not solely limited to the giving of alms, but was a thing of a very different description. In talking of charity in their lectures they were told that "Happy is the man who had sown in his breast the seeds of benevolence; he envieth not his neighbour; he believeth not the tale told by the slanderer; he forgives the injuries of men, and endeavours to blot them from his recollection. Then let us remember that we are Free and Accepted Masons, ever ready to listen to him who claims our assistance, and from him who is in want let us not withhold the liberal hand." Now the brethren would admit that there was an exposition of what was charity, of a far wider and more comprehensive range than merely putting their hands into their pockets and giving their money. It implied that charity meant that a man should not envy his neighbour for the superiority of his position, and on the scriptural principle that if a man smote them on one cheek that they should turn to him the other, and this exposition further required them to forgive the injuries of others, and blot them out of their recollection. He wished also to advert to the benefits which were held out to persons joining their Order, and the recent great accumulation of lodges, and it was tolerably well known that some now entered their society for the sake of what they could get out of it. Now he would tell them what a very old Mason said to him when one day they were talking of their charities, and giving them his own words, he said, "Brother Hervey, our charities are our greatest danger, for they induce men to come amongst us from interested motives," and he felt there was great truth in the observation. What took place at their charity festivals appeared in the newspapers on the following morning, and many a man who read it at once said that he should like to become a Mason, for if he died, his children might be got into the Masonic schools, that the wife might get a pension after his death, and if he wanted anything while he was living he might get assistance from them. Those things might induce unworthy members to come amongst them, and therefore there was an absolute necessity for brethren to be very careful whom they introduce into their Order. No man ought to introduce another man into Freemasonry whom he could not introduce into his own house, or any man who could not do credit to the Order to which they belonged. He had at some lodges lately insisted on the impropriety of using blackballs, and an observation had lately been made to him when he was attending an installation, that the Master was going to have a new set of officers, and one or two had made up their minds that he should have no work to do during his year of office. Now the fact was that one man who expected to be Senior Warden has to remain for the year as Junior Warden, and others were only to have one step instead of two. Now that was a principle that could not be too much deprecated. Blackballing might be properly used, but it should never be used for the purposes of spite, malice, or any unworthy motives.

After an opening prayer, and the reading of the petition and warrant,

Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G. Chaplain, addressed the brethren, and said it had been his privilege to assist at the consecration of many lodges in his early days, and to draw up an elaborate address on such occasions, but lately he had given up that practice and confined himself to saying what came to his heart at the time, and as he was coming along that day the first consideration that occurred to him as to the consecration of a new lodge was how it would stand in relation to the great and glorious past, which was the great boast of Freemasonry. The rev. brother having referred to the fidelity, endurance and suffering of their brethren of old, said coming down to the middle ages, it was then that Freemasonry became a light, although a feeble one, in the progress of civilization, and he remembered an old Masonic officer telling him that the Masons were the salvation of Spain, for he had seen much of that country, and the great trials of men there who had suffered in those days. Passing on to W. Bro. Sir Christopher Wren, with his great army of Masons, he said he had set a noble example of character, but had wisely blended it with science. Such was worthy of imitation by the rulers in the Craft at the present time. He would ask what was it that would keep up the high standard of Freemasonry, subject to observation, not only by the brethren of the Craft, but by the outer world? Why it was essentially, good conduct, good working, and good feeling. Their worthy brother in the chair (Bro. J. Hervey) had not said a word too much as regarded good candidates, for if they admitted men into their lodges who were not worthy men, they committed treason to the Craft. For himself he would not have his own brother in the flesh a member of his lodge if he thought instead of being an honour to it he would become an unworthy member. They wanted good government and men of high character in the body of which they were members, and he again said that any man who introduced an unworthy member was a traitor to the Craft and to the lodge to which he belonged. Any man who took office in a lodge should be prepared to carry it out with assiduity and accuracy, for nothing was more unsatisfactory than to see the work carried on in a slipshod manner, and therefore he trusted that the Crichton Lodge would be a model to the Craft, and be the admiration of every brother who attended its working. Above all, let there be good feeling, for if they got a man who imported his private quarrels amongst the brethren factious feelings would spring up, leading to unhappiness, if not to the dissolution of the lodge. He was struck with the observation of their Worshipful Master in his opening address on the subject of charity, and he entirely agreed with what he said, for "charity suffereth long and is kind. Charity envieth not, Charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, helpeth all things, and doeth all things." There was no doubt some Masons looked at Charity as limited to the giving of alms, but if it was limited to that, harmony would soon cease in the lodge, and there would then be but a mere scramble for the good things to be obtained. Little quarrels should be left outside; inside the lodge there should be ease and peace, and they should readily grant to each brother what they wished for themselves. Life was too short for petty quarrels when a good future lay before them, and he could not but feel obliged to the Worshipful Master for his opportune and well timed observations. He also thanked him for the manner in which he had spoken of English Freemasons, and he grieved to read the terrible changes contemplated with regard to their brethren in France. That country had gone through many troubles, but when it entered upon the perilous course of ignoring the existence of God, the great Founder of the Universe, he ventured to say that she had many and much greater troubles in store for her, and when the subject came to be considered in the Crichton Lodge he believed that its voice would be heard with no uncertain sound, but would be to the honour of the Great Master Builder, as the author of their being, and the God whom they adored.

Several anthems having been sung, and portions of Scripture read by the Chaplain,—

The Consecrating Officer made circuits three times round the lodge, each time sprinkling corn, wine, and oil, the operation being accompanied by the delivery of some appropriate moral precepts.

The Consecrating Officer then formally consecrated the lodge to God and his service, and the consecration ceremony was brought to a close by the brethren singing the following anthem:—

"Glory to God on high,
Let Heaven and Earth reply,
Praise ye his name;
Masons His love adore,
Tiled in their mystic lore,
Glory to God. So mote it be."

The ceremony of installation was then proceeded with, and the lodge being resumed to the Second Degree, Bro. J. H. Vockins, the W. Master Designate, was presented to receive the benefit of installation. After the usual ceremonies the lodge was resumed to the Third Degree, and the brethren below the degree of an Installed Master were requested to retire. A Board of Installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. Vockins was installed into the chair of K.S. in the usual form. On the re-admission of the brethren, and the customary salutes having been given, the W. Master appointed his officers as follows:—Bro. Middlemas, S.W.; Griffiths, J.W.; Mercer, Treas.; Weeks, Sec.; Gardner, S.D.; Goos, J.D.; Voisey, I.G.; Goldsmith, Steward; Geider, Tyler.

Bro. J. Hervey then delivered the addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren, and the ceremony of installation was brought to a close.

Several propositions having been made, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, the W.M. presiding, supported by Bro. John Hervey and the rest of the visitors. On the withdrawal of the cloth the W. Master gave "The Queen and the Craft," which was followed by the National Anthem, the solo parts by Bro. Asman.

The W. Master said the next toast he had to propose was "The Most Worshipful Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales." In proposing this toast he was going to say that it was the toast of the evening, for every Mason loved and respected him. He had endeared himself to the heart of every Mason by going about the country, and, like his father endeavouring to do good wherever he could. He (the W. Master) had the pleasure of seeing him installed as Most Worshipful Grand Master of England. That was the grandest day he had ever seen, every word the Prince uttered from the dais appeared to come from his heart. When he left this country for India their only fear was that they might not see him again. They were now all looking forward to the Grand day when they should again see him amongst them as the head of the Craft.

The toast was cordially received, and Bro. Voisey, in admirable style, sung "God bless the Prince of Wales."

The W. Master next gave "The Pro Grand Master the Earl of Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," coupling with the toast the names of Bro. Hervey and Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, which was enthusiastically responded to.

Bro. Asman sung in an excellent manner, "Come into the garden, Maud," which was highly applauded.

Bro. Hervey said they would only have skimmed milk from him, and therefore he should leave the cream of the toast to be responded to by Bro. Simpson. (A laugh.)

Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson said he was very sorry that his name had been associated with bad or skimmed milk, and he confessed his inability to give them the cream of what was called a good speech. He was sure the officers of the Grand Lodge were honoured by being present that night, and they were much indebted to the brethren for the hospitality, warm reception, and kindness they had received at their hands. It was always a pleasure to him to be associated with men who adorned the Order to which they belonged. Freemasonry was becoming a great power not only in England, but throughout the world, and took its place amongst the most eminent of the land. He need not speak of the illustrious heir to the throne, but the Grand Lodge formed the sinews and the very backbone of Freemasonry. He was sure that the Grand Lodge would see with pleasure the creation of every new lodge, which like that of a man taking a wife must be for better or worse, but in proportion to the zeal and ability with which it was conducted it might become an example in Freemasonry or the contrary. He would not, however, travel over that ground, but he augured from what he had heard that the Crichton Lodge would become an example to the Craft. He had been told that it was an educational lodge, and, therefore it was that he augured great things from it—that it would take the lead in Freemasonry—that they would not be mere ciphers for the purposes only of conviviality or counting heads, but as true Englishmen and Freemasons they would not only exalt themselves, but the great body to which they belonged. He wished from his heart success to the Crichton Lodge, and now having given them some skim milk he would leave the cream to Bro. Hervey. (Loud laughter.)

The W.M. said he told the brethren that he thought the toast he was then about to propose was the toast of the evening, but he really meant that to be the toast of the evening, as it was "The Health of Bro. Hervey, the Consecrating Master." He thought the brethren would agree with him when he said that he felt himself in a quandary to give expression to his feelings on the manner in which Bro. Hervey had performed the duties of Consecrating Master. He (the W.M.)

had been present at many consecrations, but he must say he never heard Bro. Hervey speak so feelingly as he had done that evening. He had asked Bro. Hervey to consecrate the lodge; he promised to do so, and nobly he had responded to the call, and he must say that from the very impressive manner in which the ceremony of consecration had been performed, that day he had listened to it with an extra amount of interest he had never felt before. To such addresses as had been delivered by Bro. Hervey and Bro. Simpson it had never fallen to his lot to listen to before, and those brethren who were not present to hear them had lost a great treat. Their thanks were therefore due to Bro. Hervey, Bro. Simpson, and also to Bro. Buss, who was a most able assistant, and at the next lodge he intended to move that they should all become honorary members of the Crichton Lodge. He asked the brethren with all zest and zeal to drink "Long Life, Health, and Prosperity to Bros. Hervey, Simpson, and Buss."

The toast was cordially received.

Bro. Hervey said the brethren in his former observations had the skim milk, they had just had the cream from Bro. Simpson, and then they were going to have the butter. (Loud laughter.) He was glad to be with them that night, as he had long been a member of the Craft. ("Not too long.") He felt that he had been so long before them that night that they must be heartily glad to be rid of him. He rose, however, to return thanks for the compliment paid to him and Bros. Simpson and Buss, and for the cordiality and kind manner in which the brethren had appreciated their exertions. They had gone through the ceremony appointed by the Grand Lodge, but whether it was good, or bad, it was for them to judge; but he believed that they had given them satisfaction. He thanked them for the handsome manner in which they had received them. He turned to a more pleasant subject, and that was to propose "Success to the Crichton Lodge, and the Health of their W. Master." They heartily trusted that the lodge might succeed and prosper, and that at some future meeting that they should see the work of the lodge well carried out, the duties of the officers well performed, and also see them progressing, not only financially, but in the ceremonies of the lodge, and the manner in which they supported the various institutions of the Order. He believed that the work of the lodge would be carried out in a satisfactory manner, and wishing them complete success, he trusted that when he came again amongst them he should see them happy, prosperous, and united.

The W. Master, in responding to the toast, thanked Bro. Hervey for his kind wishes, and the manner in which his health had been proposed. In his selection of officers he believed that he should be ably assisted in carrying out the interests of the Craft in general, and of the Crichton Lodge in particular. Bro. Simpson has said that this was an educational lodge, but it was originally intended to be a lodge of schoolmasters. They had afterwards foregone the intention of making it entirely a scholastic lodge, but they hoped to make it a lodge that should not be unworthy of the name it bore, for they were determined to put their shoulders to the wheel, and although they might not be the ne plus ultra, they were determined that it should be second to none. He hoped that when Bros. Hervey, Simpson, and Buss should again come amongst them that they would find that the remarks which had fallen from Bros. Hervey and Simpson that night had not been thrown away.

"The Visitors" was the next toast, for which Bros. Larham and E. Clarke severally returned thanks, the latter pleasantly alluding to an observation which had fallen from the Past Grand Chaplain that this was an educational lodge. Why its very name proved that it was so, for who, without that education would know, that "Crich" was pronounced "cri," and having complimented them upon it, hoped that its work would be "admirable," and that it would go on and prosper.

The W. Master asked them to drink to the next toast, and in proposing it he hoped his remarks would receive every attention from the brethren, as it was "The Masonic Char-ties." They had heard from their brother the Grand Secretary the rapid strides made in the last thirteen years in Masonry, but rapid as those strides had been, there had been a greater increase of feeling in regard to their charitable Institutions. Some years back it was a great thing to say that they had collected a few hundreds of pounds, but last year he was astonished to find that at the festival of the Boys' School, held at the Alexandra Palace, they had collected no less a sum than £13,000, but this year the subscriptions to the Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and their Widows was £9000 to the Girls' School, £10,000, and the Boys' over £14,000. Having descanted on the advantages of a good education, he coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Binckes, the Secretary of the Boys' School, through whose zeal and energy there had been raised in one year the largest amount ever collected for any of their Institutions.

Bro. Binckes, Secretary to the Boys' School, said it gave him great pleasure, as he always had on such occasions, to return thanks, however imperfectly he might express himself, for the Masonic Charities, and in the course of a long address he said he did not think that a few years ago any one was sanguine enough to believe that their Masonic institutions would ever be attended with that success which they had achieved during the last few years, for it was something stupendous. The success of the Boys' School had been coincident with that of the other institutions, and they had advanced to a prosperity that no one could have anticipated a few years ago, and now all he had to consider was, what was to be done in the future. He was unable to be present at the consecration of a lodge a few days ago, but having read the observations of Bro. Hervey, he looked with apprehension at this tremendous increase in the number of Freemasons, for he feared that a reaction would set in, and that there would be increased demands upon their institutions for relief. He hoped that he might prove a false prophet; he was glad to see their Order prosper and flourish, and he must say that their ranks had increased to an enormous extent, but in a country where panics sometimes set in, he could not conceal from himself, although he wished that his anticipations might not be realised, that they would be flooded with claimants for relief, and it would therefore become their duty to provide for this possible contingency. While enjoying prosperity, he prayed them not to forget that a time might come when those now in prosperity would not be so, and let them do all they could to meet a possible future. He asked Bro. Hervey to go back with him to the last half century, when they had 72 boys and 86 girls in their schools, or about 156 of both sexes, but now they had 100 girls and 190 boys, which was commensurate with the increase of Masonic distress, and he called upon them to help their institutions in their good work. He placed before them a great array of distress, and he looked for their aid, sympathy, encouragement, and their warmest support.

"The Officers of the Lodge" was the next toast, which was suitably acknowledged, and the Tyler's toast brought a very successful and harmonious meeting to a close.

Medical men have long acknowledged ginger to be one of the finest stomachics we possess, and brandy has in so many cases proved so absolutely an "eau de vie," that its value is truly inestimable. Brandy and ginger combined have formed one of the favourite remedies prescribed in cases of diarrhoea, etc., but the amalgamation has been left to chance, and through want of judgment in the combination of the materials, a great part of the beneficial effect is lost, however, a perfect form of the two ingredients is to be found in Bro. Henry Brett's "Liqueur Ginger Brandy," a cordial which must prove invaluable in all cases of weak digestion and where the tone of the stomach requires restoring, as after a chill, or when bathing is succeeded by cold or trembling. The Liqueur Ginger Brandy acts as if by magic, restoring circulation and imparting vital energy instantaneously, in fact, the almost unapproachable value of this delicious cordial was fully tested when first put before the public during the Cholera epidemic, and it has kept the high reputation it then attained. It is an indispensable item in the kit of the sportsman, the tourist and the traveller, indeed it is valuable to the community generally. For those who prefer it there is also a Liqueur Ginger Gin, possessing all the medicinal properties of the spirit, combined with the best Jamaica ginger. Both cordials are protected by the trade mark, registered label, and signature of Bro. Henry Brett.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE P.G.M. FOR NORFOLK.

The installation of Lord Suffield, as P.G.M. for Norfolk, by our Illustrious Chief, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., took place on Monday, the 20th inst., and a most interesting ceremony it was. We commend our report of it to our readers' notice, as we think that it deserves the perusal of all our brethren. Everything appears to have gone off most prosperously, and the arrangements were admirably conceived and carried out. Our Royal Grand Master, both at the meeting for the Infirmary and at the Prov. Grand Lodge, spoke admirably and impressively, and his words would be deeply felt by all present. We wish all prosperity to the Province of Norfolk and its noble head.

THE HERVEY LODGE

The W.M. of the Hervey Lodge has written us a letter, which we publish elsewhere, neither very courteous in tone nor logical in argument, and certainly not very Masonic in phraseology. We pass over, however, all the discourtesy, and something more, because, as we write for the Craft at large, not to please any brother or brethren, we care little for such comments, and nothing at all for such animadversions. We have a higher duty to fulfil, and a more Masonic purpose to carry out, than mere civil speeches, and mutual laudation, and as we are sincere both in our utterances and honest in our statement of facts, and certainly never have professed, and do not now profess, to be "mealy mouthed," such remarks and such a style of Masonic epistolary politeness we treat as they deserve. We can quite understand that the worthy W.M. of that distinguished lodge is just now a little "put out," and we make, as brother Masons, much allowance for the unwise acerbities which crop out in his somewhat remarkable letter. The W.M. of the Hervey Lodge seems to doubt whether we are competent to express an opinion at all on such a "vexata questio." If he had been a Mason as long as we have, or presided as often over a lodge, or studied as carefully the Book of Constitutions, he perhaps would think differently, and write a little more diffidently, and to say the truth a little more decorously. For be it remembered that all the concern we have with the question itself is from a Masonic point of view alone. A statement appeared in a contemporary greatly affecting, in our opinion, the credit of a well-known lodge, and the prestige of our common Order. We asked for information and explanation when we reproduced the statement. The answer is, that the lodge had done so and so, for reasons which seemed good to the lodge, a matter with which we have nothing whatever to do. It is always a bad thing to "give reasons," and never was this truth more exemplified than in the reasons alleged by the W.M. of the Hervey Lodge. All that we have said was based on the simple construction and distinct utterance of the Book of Constitutions. By that valuable code of English Masonic Law, a lodge has no right to defer the payment of the initiation fees beyond the time of initiation, and if there be delay the proposer is always answerable, according to Masonic law. It is no answer to this to say that the lodge thought differently, and preferred to make the candidate of "official" position pay instead of the proposer. In both these points the lodge has made a great mistake, and the sooner the error is admitted the better for all concerned. We also proceeded to point out that such a case ought never to have been brought into court, for it is in truth a reflection on the whole Order. If any lodge is so careless as regards whom it admits, (whether their "official" position be high or not matters nothing), as to require to sue them for their initiation fees, the sooner any such lodge, in the interest of Masonry, is recommended to "mend its ways," the speedier shall we perhaps put a stop to a growing laxity and an increasing haste of admittance, which if persevered in will ere long prove fatal to our good old Order. Now we have written, and write still, in all good feeling to the Hervey Lodge. We have no interests to serve, or purpose to gain, by laying down a too rigid line of duty and decorum in things Masonic, but we have a right to expect that every lodge shall conform to the provisions of the Book of Constitutions, and that every W.M. shall read carefully the sections which relate to any debateable matters. If the W.M. and our good brethren of the Hervey Lodge think that they have complied with the Book of Constitutions, (for that is the only issue between us), we can only remark that their version of it is different from ours. But we are a little inclined to hope and to think that, like a good many other people in the world, having made a mistake, they rather seek to defend what they have done, and on grounds altogether alien from the one real point of controversy. If the W.M. of the Hervey Lodge wishes to imply by his concluding remarks that we ought not to have alluded to the subject at all, then we can only add that he utterly misconceives the use and purpose of a Masonic press, and entirely misunderstands both the status and character of the "Freemason." We claim for ourselves, and shall always exercise, within the bounds of moderation and truth, the right to animadvert on every incident which seems, according to our humble judgment, to militate with the recognized injunctions of the Grand Lodge, or to prejudice in any manner the reputation and interests of Freemasonry. We believe that there is but one opinion in our entire Order as to that grave error in judgment and that entire forgetfulness of the constitutional law which led to so regrettable an action by the Hervey Lodge in a County Court.

WHO IS THE PARTY?

The "Unita Cattolica," from which a most friendly correspondent sent us an extract which we published last week, is, according to him, "esteemed to be the most ably conducted of the extreme Roman Catholic journals" in Italy, and to represent the "views of Cardinal Manning." Our correspondent adds, however, and we agree with him entirely, that "there is something very pitiable in the depths of misrepresentation to which this newspaper has descended." Our distinguished Bro. J. C. Parkinson can well afford to laugh at the outburst of petty malignity and perverse travesty in which the writer of that article has thought fit to indulge, both as regards Freemasonry and himself, in the "Communiqué" to which our attention has recently been drawn. As English Masons we are only concerned with one statement, as the allusion to Bro. Parkinson's diploma, were it not so very foolish, would be most amusing. Those of us who know him are well aware of his high character, and his manly outspokenness of opinion, but we equally are assured that the charges of sympathy on Bro. Parkinson's part with revolutionary or infidel opinions are as ridiculous as they are undeserved. Indeed, it is almost an insult to him to allude to such a libel. But there is, as we said before, a statement which does concern us all alike. It is this, that in 1862 an English Freemason, at the Freemasons' Tavern, in London, expressed the following Masonic sentiments, and sulphureous opinions:—"Lucifer is the apex of the social pyramid, it is he who is the first Craftsman, the first rebel, the first martyr. We revolutionists ought, out of respect and gratitude, to display on our banner the beloved image of the heroic insurgent who was the first to dare revolt against the tyranny of God." This affecting extract is taken from "De Camille Storia della Setta Anti-Christiana," vol. 11, v. 38, according to the foot-note, and if so, the "Unita Cattolica" is only responsible for quoting it. We have in this speech, then, a striking specimen of true English Masonic eloquence before or after dinner. This passage explains those remarkable phrases in the allocutions of the good old Pope, in which he unpolitely terms us "Children of the Evil One," and our lodges

"Synagogues of Satan." The Roman Pontiff and the Roman Curia, and Ultramontane writers clearly place us in the category of Indian "Devil worshippers." Now we feel it right at once, though the statement be most ludicrous and contemptible, to say that any such assertion is a direct and wilful falsehood. We ask the "Unita Cattolica" or Mr. "De Camille" for the name of this most unmasonic orator, though we can safely assure all our readers beforehand that no such words were ever spoken in Freemasons' Hall, and least of all by an English Freemason, even though his name were "Walker." It is a great pity when an otherwise respectable paper like the "Unita Cattolica" descends to wholesale lying, and we almost wonder that Roman Catholics themselves do not perceive the evil and degradation which such deliberate and childish fictions bring upon their entire communion. But alas, just now the love of pseudo-miracles and unreliable legends seems to have taken from the realization of the "abstract importance of truth." We ask again who is the English Freemason who then gave utterance to such accents of blasphemous folly? and, like the Irish Echo, we reply, "No one." He exists only in the imagination of some ardent but unscrupulous Ultramontane. No one in his senses, much less a Freemason, could have said anything so horribly impious, and so grotesquely absurd, and we fear that it must be credited not to Freemasons' Hall or an English Freemason, but to the "Jesuit College," or some other house of assembly for saintly libellers and infidel religionists. If the old adage be true, "Noscitur a sociis," as we hear so much of the "gentleman in black" from Ultramontanes, all we can say is, we wish them joy of the good company into which just now they seem to have fallen.

THE MODERN LADY FREEMASON.

Our American contemporary, the "Masonic Journal," of Greensboro, North Carolina, U.S., in its issue of October 24, reprints an article of ours on the initiation of Countess Hädick, and then proceeds to take us to task for our opinion "there-ant," in a very kindly and genial way. We cannot do less than return the compliment, and reprint, which we do elsewhere, our contemporary's "deliverance" on the subject. We confess that we see no reason to modify any of the opinions we have previously expressed on the subject; neither are we convinced, we feel bound to say, by any of the arguments of our good confrere. The whole point, as we apprehend it, lies in this—can the Grand Orient of Hungary, without some express provision in its laws to that effect, declare an act of initiation performed in open lodge, after the due formalities and conditions prescribed by customary procedure "ab initio," null and void? We feel quite convinced that such a step is "ultra vires" on the part of the Grand Orient of Hungary, and we will add there is no precedent for such an assumption of autocratic power, either in England or the United States, in the history of our common Order. The able writer in the "Masonic Journal" does not appear to us to note the grave and essential difference as between punishing an illegality, and declaring an act to be "null and void." We all agree that the initiation "per se" was illegal, as the rules of the Order regard men, not women; and we must all agree that the Grand Orient of Hungary would have been perfectly justified in suspending the W.M. and officers, and all assisting and abetting brethren, and closing the lodge "pro tem." But can the Grand Orient of Hungary, or any other Grand Lodge, declare an initiation "null and void" which was duly performed in open lodge? We doubt it very much indeed. How does such power accrue, and if existent, what is its effect? It is sometimes necessary to declare a ceremony invalid and informal, and to require it to be repeated according to our "lex scripta," but we know of no case in which any Grand Lodge has ever assumed to itself the authority to declare such a "fait accompli" null and void." It may declare it to be irregular, and highly reprehensible, it may censure the lodge and the W.M., it may inflict the penalty of a fine or of suspension, but can it affect the act itself? Again we say, we think not. What the real position of this principal actress amidst these peculiar Masonic "dramatis personæ" may be is to our apprehension one of the great difficulties of the case. As we view it, however formally initiated, until Countess Hädick receives her certificate she cannot by our national and international Masonic law enter a lodge. Therefore if the Grand Orient of Hungary persists in its refusal to admit of her initiation under any circumstances, and if the Grand Orient is supreme in all such matters, she cannot in Hungary nor, we apprehend, in Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, be received or hailed as a sister legally. If indeed under some other constitution she can be received as a joining member of some lodge, then the fact of such "healing" will become another and special question for consideration. A good deal will also turn upon the laws and customs of the Hungarian Freemasons. Is it necessary to have a Grand Lodge certificate? or will the lodge certificate suffice? and can lodges still grant certificates? All these are matters which crop up, and have to be dealt with, before we can fully adjudicate even on the question of reception. For if she can produce a lodge certificate, and such is valid in Hungary by law and custom, it will be valid elsewhere; and if she produces a Masonic certificate through her affiliation to another lodge in another constitution, we apprehend that it would not be necessary to go into the original question of the legality or illegality of her initiation. But assuming that insuperable difficulties be in the way of her recognition or reception, is it not the best solution of the dilemma to make Countess Hädick's reception a special case? We think it is; our contemporary as decidedly thinks not, and believes "it will never do." We would respectfully ask our friendly critic—why? Does not the very exception prove the rule? Is it not clear that by the Grand Orient of Hungary condoning the past and making a special case of this little incident it puts a stop to any tendency to illegal proceedings, and by no means licences, as our contemporary appears to fear, a repetition of similar acts. So far from establishing a precedent, the Grand Orient of Hungary disavows, distinctly, any similar attempts, but in the interests of peace and conciliation it "heals" the illegal reception, and simply follows out the old adage, "Fieri non debet, factum valet." In this age of reasonable compromises it seems to us absurd always to be claiming the "uti possidetis," or crying out in lachrymose vocabulary, "non possumus," and it is according to our notions both more rational and above all, more Masonic, to take a large and liberal view of questions, whether "burning" or otherwise, which are so sure to come to the surface, and with which we have to deal. Such questions, we feel it right to add, we are of opinion should be dealt with, not with the fiat of an inexorable and unaccommodating Draco-nism, but with the genial sympathy of that kindly old Order of ours, which would always act more in the spirit than the letter, and would always seek to accompany the sterner requirements of law with the softening and soothing attributes of an enlightened and liberal accommodation to the feelings of our brethren, the necessities of the case, the temper of the times, and the welfare of the Craft.

GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND, AND GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND—A CONTRAST.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

While the Wardens of the Grand Lodge of England are deliberating how they shall spend a few thousands of their surplus funds in commemoration of the safe return from India of their respected M.W. Grand Master, the Prince of Wales, the Grand Lodge of Scotland is sunk over head and ears in debt. This deplorable state of things does not arise from the niggardliness of Scotch Freemasons, or their want of loyalty to Grand Lodge which was especially proved at Glasgow a few weeks ago, but wholly and solely from the mismanagement of Grand Lodge officials and Grand Committee. You will scarcely believe it, but it is nevertheless true, which I vouch for as a member of Grand Lodge, that we have not received a single report or balance sheet of financial matters (nor cannot get) either from Grand Secretary, Grand Treasurer, Finance Committee, or Grand Committee, since the beginning of 1873, and now we are close upon the beginning of 1877. Such a disgraceful state of matters would not be allowed to exist for a single year out of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. And what is the result of this disgraceful mismanagement of Grand Committee? It is this, that while in England with a Grand Lodge Roll of 1631 lodges, there is scarcely a dormant Lodge, while in Scotland with a Grand Lodge roll of 575, they have lodges dormant by the score, as can be seen by the Scottish Masonic Calendar for 1876. This state of matters arises entirely from the want of attention by Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodge, many lodges not being visited for eight or ten years, and no more attention paid to them than if they lived in the moon; so much is this the case that it has become a common saying among the lodges, that Grand Lodge only wants the cash, and rather than continue in such a state, lodges quietly drop out of existence, or in other words dormant.

Not long ago a proposition was made to start a new Grand Lodge in Glasgow in opposition to the Grand Lodge in Edinburgh, while others propose the total stopping of the supplies to bring Grand Lodge to a total stand-still. These little matters show how the wind blows and the great need there is for improvement.

The Earl of Rosslyn while on the throne did his best to improve matters, but his efforts have not been followed up by Grand Committee, and things are going from bad to worse. Everything and everybody beyond Grand Committee are kept in a state of total darkness, and, as may be supposed, the most ugly rumours are flying about from lodge to lodge of what the end will be, and the common belief is that the end will be disastrous to Grand Lodge.

The Grand Lodge ought to be the very essence of all that is pure, honourable and business-like, as an example to the daughter lodges. Instead of that, after sixteen years' experience, I can only pronounce it a place of hollowness and rottenness, in fact a huge sham. If we send money we may get a receipt, after shewing a determination to have it. If we write upon Masonic business we may get an answer to one letter in four. The M.W.G. Master says he is aware that the Grand Secretary's office is in a bad state, but he will endeavour to improve it. The M.W. Grand Master has known the same for two years, and things are there growing worse, which is something like proof that it is past redemption. It would be a good thing if the M.W.G. Master would look into the Treasurer's accounts as well.

Sir, I hope that you will give this place in your next impression. I grieve to be compelled to write this, but all parties have had so many warnings to put their houses in order, that advice is no more heeded than the blowing of the wind. Silence would longer be a crime, and before that noble institution of the Craft, the most noble that ever was devised by man, lies crumbling in the dust I, for one, will raise my voice against the mismanagement that is bringing our Grand Lodge to ruin. Should time and space permit I may have something more to say on the subject.

I am, yours fraternally,

ADAM THOMSON,

S.P.G.M. Peebles and Selkirkshire, and Proxy Master for, and R.W.M. of St. John's Lodge, Galashiels.

THE HERVEY LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I regret to find myself once more called upon to address you on the proceedings taken against a defaulting brother of my lodge.

You will forgive me for saying that your editorial remarks on the question scarcely seem to me to be either conceived or written in that spirit of "brotherly love" which you in your opening remarks enjoin upon us; on the contrary, they partake largely of "the abuse of the ignorant" rightly condemned.

Writing of the Hervey Lodge you say, "The various blunders made by that distinguished lodge are too numerous to mention here." Now this, I need scarcely remind you, is a seriously damaging charge. As Master of the Hervey Lodge, I beg to state, that it is a most unfair and untruthful statement, and appears to me must have been made with the view of prejudicing our case should it come, as you intimate, "under the notice of the Board of General Purposes."

I may say that any complaint you, or any member of the Craft, may have to allege against my lodge will be met without hesitation, and I trust that I shall be able to give a satisfactory explanation of our proceedings before any legally constituted tribunal. But I cannot be expected to meet sweeping and general assertions such as you make, and I protest in common fairness and justice against wholesale insinuations.

You further say, "that every step the lodge has taken is constitutionally wrong and illegal." This is a bare assertion, and an attempt to support a foregone conclusion, without knowing anything of the merits of the case. The paragraph raises a question in my mind, and which you will forgive me for saying, it is quite incompetent for you to decide; at all events, it is you rather than the Hervey Lodge who have "made the subject" one "of public conversation or Masonic scandal."

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

G. HARRISON,

TOLERATION AND FATHER FOY.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As "a Free and Accepted Mason," I undertake to prove that Freemasonry is as infinitely superior to Father Foy's Order as light is to darkness, or as the undisguised and always loyal proceedings of honest and candid men are to the trickeries and mysteries of an affiliation, who presumes to think their mere doctrines infallible, and who, like Iago, put money in their purse by preying upon the weakness of those who reject the commands of the Bible and accept their own instead. History informs me that for ages the Masonic brotherhood have maintained their ground in every country to which the glorious institution has reached, and that in none has it been more honoured than in those continental countries where the Roman Catholic religion was that of the State. And why? Its great and Christianlike object is to bind man to man in a brotherhood of kindness and feeling; it relieves the wants of others, careless of its own; it supports the widow and maintains the orphan, acts as the Samaritan to the wayfarer and weary, and, at a word, performs all those offices of Christian charity, duty, and love, which Christ himself insists on as the end and aim of the Godlike mission which it was the will of the Father that he should come on earth to undertake.

In every country has Masonry been welcomed, for its principles are loyal and true, and its utility apparent, and from no country has it been banished as having interfered with the interests of law and order, or having intermeddled with State affairs with which it had no possible concern. But can Father Foy give the same satisfactory estimate of the mission of his Order? or can he point to a single Catholic—Roman Catholic—country in Europe from whence some one Order or other of his Church have not had notice to quit within a certain time, under the penalty of being driven forth as peacebreakers, malcontents, firebrands, and rebels against constituted authority even of the most orthodox kind. If I wished to run my letter to unreasonable length, I might travel back to the Popes themselves, scores of whom by their lives, and actions, ought to bring a blush into the cheek of any Christian man even to name, while at the same period of time the leaders of Masonry were perfecting their great scheme, and endeavouring to undo what the Papacy had done; I might then travel into the history of the Jesuits, and prove the grasping, griping, mercenary nature of their policy, which in its celebrated proclamation of "the end sanctions the means" is at once a test of the purity of the proclaimers and of the apostolic character of their views. Before I conclude I have a few words to say to the Roman Catholic laity, which I hope they will take in good part. Most of them must have either read or heard of Father Tom Maguire, the powerful champion of their faith, in his defence of his Church in his discussion with the Rev. Mr. Pope, which was a battle fought by intellectual giants. As a theologian, who would think of comparing Father Foy with Father Maguire? Well, Father Tom Maguire, the renowned controversialist, was initiated a Freemason in Masonic Lodge 187, Drumkeiren, county Leitrim, Ireland, where he was for a long time parish priest, and I understand the records of the lodge would attest to the membership of other excellent clergymen of the same faith before his time. But that contemptible bigotry which would deny the privilege to Roman Catholics is only part and parcel of that blighting, narrow-minded Ultramontanism which has disgraced this happy country. The respectable and ever loyal body of Freemasons can well afford to treat with supreme contempt, as they do, such an odious comparison which is made between their society—whose principles all over the universe are "Justice, Morality, Friendship, and Brotherly Love"—and that atrocious bloodstained Ribbonism and Fenianism, whose diabolical but priestly patronized practices are, unfortunately for many, now too well known.

I am, Sir, yours obediently,

FREDK. LAMBERT.

ADMISSION OF CANDIDATES.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have duly read "East Lancashire" and "Somerset" on the above subject, and have myself often wondered that a more general system of admitting members was not adopted. Now in the province to which I belong, West Yorkshire, we have a P.G. bye-law, which requires every lodge which has a proposition of a gentleman who does not reside in the town where the lodge is held to apply to the nearest lodge for particulars as to his qualifications, or otherwise, the result of which is read out in open lodge immediately before the ballot is taken. Now why cannot Grand Lodge take this matter up and make a system, which works well in one province, extend throughout the whole of its jurisdiction. By that means such occurrences as named by "Somerset" would be avoided. I should be happy to forward you one of the forms, Mr. Editor, if you think it worth your while to go further into the matter.

Yours fraternally,

November 18th, 1876.

THE DEPUTY PROVINCIAL GRAND MASTER OF SUFFOLK

Our much respected brother, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain of England, Rector of Long Melford, Suffolk, and Rural Dean of Sudbury, has been appointed by the R.W.P.G.M. of Suffolk, Lord Waveney, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, in the room of the late venerated Bro. the Rev. E. I. Lockwood.

There are of course brethren of higher social rank than

Bro. Martyn, but there could not be one more widely known, more universally respected and beloved, more popular in the best sense of the word, than our reverend brother, and we may add no one more thoroughly entitled to fill the important post to which he has been appointed by the noble Lord who rules the Province so wisely and so well.

Bro. Martyn is a very distinguished Mason, and a brief record of his Masonic career will be of interest, at all events to his brethren in Suffolk.

Unlike his predecessor, who was content to walk in the narrow groove of Craft Masonry and rarely attended a meeting even of the Royal Arch, the subject of this notice has seen so much that is excellent in the high degrees, like many of the distinguished chiefs under whom he has served, that he has risen to high rank in all the Orders allied to the Craft, either nearly or remotely, having filled the Office of Grand Chaplain in the Mark Grand Lodge; Grand Aide de Camp in the Grand Conclave of Knights Templar; Grand Prelate of the Order of Rome and Constantine. He is also a member of the Metropolitan Rose Croix Chapter. Many Lodges will rejoice in the new honour conferred on our distinguished brother, for we find he is a member of the St. Andrew's at Gorleston, consecrated by him the other day; the St. Kew, Weston Super Mare; the Apollo and Churchill, of Oxford; the Foundation of Cheltenham, the Royal Gloucestershire, of Gloucester, the Harrow Lodge, the Westminster and Keystone, Alpha, and United, of London; the Prince of Wales, Ipswich; St. Edmund's Lodge, Bury; Stour Valley, Sudbury; &c.

To show in what high estimation Bro. Martyn is held by the magnates of the Order we may mention that in 1875; he was proposed by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and seconded by Lord Skelmersdale as a joining member of the Royal Alpha Lodge, which is limited to 33 members. Last July, when Lord Carnarvon consecrated the United Lodge No. 1629, Bro. Martyn was appointed its first Secretary. In this lodge there are only 24 members, 15 of whom are Peers of the Realm.

Besides being a Past Grand Chaplain of England, Bro. Martyn is P.P.G. Sec. of Oxfordshire, P.P.G.J.W. of Gloucestershire, P.P.G. Chaplain of Middlesex, and Past Grand Principal Sojourner Royal Arch. During the time he was Grand Chaplain the inhabitants of Cheltenham presented him with his portrait in the regalia of Grand Lodge, and we remember seeing it exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1870. It was a speaking likeness, but caused considerable wonderment amongst the uninitiated, and it is said some countrymen were overheard discussing it for some time with a very puzzled air, and at last decided that it was "one of them blown Ritualists."

Some years ago the P.G. Lodge of Suffolk met at Sudbury, and through the bigotry and intolerance of the Rector there, the use of the Parish Church was refused to the Masons, we believe on the ground that they were Atheists. Bro. Martyn immediately suggested that the brethren should attend divine Service at his own beautiful Church at Long Melford, a distance of two or three miles, and conveyances were provided to take them there.

We shall never forget that visit, for Long Melford is a very picturesque village, and its church one of the grandest in Suffolk, and we need hardly say we had a beautiful service and a fine sermon from Bro. Martyn in "The True Masonic Temple" which was afterwards published.

We met Bro. Martyn at the interesting gathering in Gloucester two or three years ago, when the Masons under Lord Sherborn, P.G.M., unveiled the splendid Reredos at the Cathedral, which they had presented, and we could not fail to see how greatly respected and affectionately esteemed he appeared to be by the brethren there.

In a recent number of the "Masonic Magazine," the following passage occurs:—

"We venture to think that if all Provincial Grand Masters made it a point of visiting every Lodge in their Province, where it is a small one, once a year, and where the Province is large, as in E. and W. Lancashire, once in every two or three years, it would tend to uniformity of working, would bring them face to face with the real working Masons, and not merely the ornamental ones, and the result would be a better selection of Provincial Grand Officers than is now often made, the doing away of many abuses that now exist, and it would prevent much of that heartburning and petty jealousy, which unhappily have an existence even amongst Masons. It often happens however that the P.G.M. is a nobleman whose political or other public avocations prevent his paying that attention to the duties of his high office which his station demands. In such cases we submit he should appoint as his Deputy an energetic brother of good social standing, a long purse, and much leisure. Such men, and they are to be found, we are persuaded, in every province, might worthily fulfil the duties delegated to them to the advancement of Masonry in general and their own province in particular."

Bro. Martyn is just such a brother as is here depicted, and the province of Suffolk is to be congratulated on having so good a Mason as its Deputy Provincial Grand Master.

THE PROVINCE OF NORFOLK.

INSTALLATION OF LORD SUFFIELD AS PROVINCIAL GRAND MASTER BY HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES, M.W. G.M.

Monday last was observed as a general holiday in the ancient city of Norwich, which day the Prince of Wales had appointed for the installation of a Provincial Grand Master in the room of Bro. the Hon. F. Walpole, deceased. Strange to say, the date selected was that on which the deceased brother was installed in the same office by Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., a twelvemonth ago; but this fact was not present to the Prince of Wales's mind when he made choice of the day. The announcement that His Royal Highness would visit Norwich was sufficient to attract large bodies of Freemasons and of the general public from all parts of Norfolk and the neighbouring counties, and as he was to be accompanied by the Princess of Wales it was certain that the number of visitors would be larger than if His Royal Highness went alone. On the same day a meeting was to be held in St. Andrew's Hall to further the scheme for raising £35,000 for the enlargement of the Norfolk and Norwich County Hospital, at which meeting both their Royal Highnesses were to be present, and the Prince of Wales himself was to move a resolution. Although this object was not exclusively Masonic, still as the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital is not forgotten by the Freemasons of the province when they meet in Provincial Grand Lodge, a reference to this general subject will not be out of place in the "Freemason" when reporting a Masonic ceremony in this province. The meeting in St. Andrew's Hall was first held, the Earl of Leicester presiding, and on the occasion the hall was crowded with the rank, beauty, and fashion of the county. The splendid hall was magnificently decorated, and the brilliant company, which was for the greater part composed of ladies, whose elegant attire blended well with the gay colours in the pictures of Norfolk celebrities with which the walls are covered, formed a spectacle such as is not often witnessed. The orchestral platform in front of the organ was covered with crimson baize, and this bright colour was modified by a plentiful supply of massive evergreens and numerous devices of bannerets placed in positions which would give the greatest possible effect. On this platform were some 200 or 300 ladies and gentlemen, the ladies preponderating. Among this company were Lord and Lady Stafford, Lord Waveney, R.W.P.G.M. Suffolk; Lady Bayning, Lady Crossley, Lord Sondes, Sir W. Ffolkes and Lady Ffolkes, the Bishop of Norwich, Mrs. and Miss Pelham, Sir F. and Lady Boileau, Sir R. and Lady Buxton, Sir W. and Lady Foster, the Dean of Norwich and Mrs. Goulburn, the Mayor of Norwich and Mrs. Collier, the Sheriff of Norwich and Mrs. Cadge, Mr. Clare S. Read, M.P.; Colonel Duff, M.P.; Mr. J. J. Colman, M.P., and Mrs. Colman, the Archdeacon, and others.

It had been arranged for the Prince and Princess's convenience that the proceedings at this meeting should be very short, as there was much business to be done in the brief space of time they could spare for their visit. They were to arrive at the railway station at one o'clock, then to attend this meeting; afterwards to lunch with the Bishop of Norwich at a quarter to two; at three o'clock the Prince was to install Lord Suffield as Provincial Grand Master; the Princess was to pay a private visit to the Cathedral; and at half-past four a special train was to convey the distinguished visitors to Gunton Hall, the seat of Lord Suffield. The speeches, therefore, at the hospital meeting were very concise, and the result showed that they were entirely to the point. The Earl of Leicester, though not a Mason, certainly made a very Masonic speech, for in stating the claims of the city and county hospital he remarked that the people had lately been asked to subscribe in aid of the sick and wounded in foreign countries. That day, however, they were asked to subscribe to their own sick, and he thought that charity should begin at home, and that the just wants of our own deserving poor should be provided for before assistance was sent abroad. He would urge upon the meeting that the future welfare of this hospital must depend upon voluntary aid. He would be sorry to see the time when the great charitable institutions of this country were dependent in any way upon State assistance or local rates. The Bishop of Norwich made a highly practical speech, drawing attention to the want among the sick of the poorer classes of those aids to recovery, fresh air, privacy and quiet, and their inability to obtain in their homes the best medical skill, trained nursing, and medicine and diet.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—If this Ointment were well rubbed into the throat and chest at the first appearance of hoarseness and difficulty of breathing, many an attack of diphtheria, bronchitis and croup would be at once arrested, and many a bright life spared; all the inflammatory diseases of the throat and air passages are most dangerous, frequently fatal, especially in children and young people, and if imperfectly cured the ill effects they leave behind them often end in pulmonary consumption, that scourge of the Anglo-Saxon race. No mother or nurse but should have these remedies at hand, and in all households. Holloway's medicines should be kept as a safeguard and a protection against the countless ills that flesh is heir to.—Avt.

The Prince of Wales then rose, and was received with loud cheering, which was sustained for some time. He said: Lord Leicester, my lords, ladies, and gentlemen,—I have been requested to move the second resolution, and with your permission I shall now read it—"That it is desirable both for the accommodation of the patients and for the sanitary improvement of the hospital that the proposed alterations and additions to the hospital shall be carried out, and that for this purpose an appeal be made to the county and city to raise the sum of £35,000 for the building and sustentation fund." (Cheers.) Nothing, I can assure you, would have afforded me greater pleasure than to have attended this meeting, the objects of which are so deserving our sympathy and support (cheers), and I felt much gratified, both as a proprietor in the county and as one who has taken a deep interest in everything relating to the county, when it was intimated to me that a wish had been expressed that I should take an active share in the proceedings of to-day, and make an appeal on behalf of so ancient and well-conducted an institution—an institution of such high repute alike in the metropolis and throughout England—as the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital. (Cheers.) That hospital has at all times been honourably distinguished by the great amount of good it has done in the education of medical students, although this had been done at a disadvantage, inasmuch as it has never had a regular medical school with courses of lectures, but the instruction given to pupils in its wards has been so constant and so practical and sound that they have long been celebrated in medical circles for the readiness with which they have acquired the knowledge offered to them. (Cheers.) Among the former surgeons of the hospital I may mention three who in the last generation were eminently distinguished and who achieved a lasting reputation—the names I allude to are those of Martineau, Dalrymple, and Cross. (Cheers.) The first was one of the most successful operators ever known, and Mr. Cross—whose son is now the surgeon of the hospital—was remarkable both for his great skill and his knowledge of the literature of surgery (cheers). It was from these three gentlemen that the hospital derived the reputation maintained by its present officers. Beyond the admirable and practical skill they have displayed, recent events in the hospital have proved that it may also be made a very useful institution for instruction in the art of nursing (hear, hear). Nothing but consummate and the greatest care could have put an end to the former unhealthy state of the surgical wards, but it is, I am afraid, very doubtful whether that skill and care will suffice unless the hospital be enlarged in the manner proposed. At any rate, it is certain that the whole art of surgery and the best nursing may prove of no avail without the provision of such means as are now so urgently required. (Hear, hear.) The able report which has been taken as read, and which has been circulated among you, enters so fully into the wants and requirements of the hospital that I may abstain from addressing you at any great length on this topic, but I trust I may have said sufficient to induce every one in this hall to subscribe liberally towards the object for which we are assembled here to-day. (Cheers.) My noble friend, the Lord Lieutenant of the County, has in the most generous spirit, which cannot be too highly praised, made an offer of £5000. (Cheers.) Nothing could be more handsome. I am sure you will all appreciate his liberal offer, and lend your best endeavours, so that Lord Leicester may be allowed to carry his generous intention into effect. (Cheers.) I am happy to have it in my power to announce that a great step towards this project has already been made, and that subscriptions amounting to £8000 have already been promised. (Cheers.) I feel fully convinced, after this, that we shall not have to wait long for the remainder. (Hear, hear.) An additional number of beds and an improved system of sanitary arrangements are, I assure you, urgently needed, and are essential to the future well-being of the hospital. I trust that you will enable the board of management to carry these two purposes into execution by responding largely to the appeal which I have now the honour to make. (Loud cheers.)

A vote of thanks was afterwards passed to His Royal Highness, which he responded to as follows:—

I have to thank Lord Leicester, and also the Mayor and Lord Waveney, who moved and seconded the resolution, for the kind words they have uttered in reference to myself, and I have to thank the meeting also for the reception that has been accorded to us to-day. I can only recapitulate what I said a short time ago, namely, that it is our wish, and that it will be our endeavour, to identify ourselves with anything that is for the good of the county. (Cheers.) So long as we continue to reside in the county of Norfolk, which I trust will be for a long time (cheers), we shall always be happy to contribute to anything that is for the good of all classes. The object of our coming to this assembly I have already alluded to, and I repeat that we ought to do all in our power to support this excellent institution. (Cheers.) I feel pretty sure when I look round me that there will not be many of you who will be wanting in doing all you can for the benefit of the hospital.

The Royal party retired from the hall amidst the heartiest expressions of loyalty, and, accompanied by several eminent individuals, proceeded to the Bishop's residence to lunch. Shortly afterwards lodge was opened at the Drill Hall of the volunteers in Chapel Field, which afforded spacious accommodation for a large assemblage of the brethren. This hall had been tastefully prepared for the occasion. It was stencilled all round in chocolate colour, and trophies of flags were displayed at intervals on the four sides. The spandrels and the roof were festooned with ivy, flowers, and evergreen leaves. The lower end of the hall was screened. A portrait of the late Bro. Benjamin Bond Cabbell, Provincial Grand Master of Norfolk, was on one side of the gallery, and his arms on the other; while in the centre were the arms of the Provincial Grand Master designate, Lord Suffield, with the Square and Compasses. At the opposite end of the hall was the dais, which was about two-thirds of the entire width of the hall. This dais was approached by a flight of five or six steps. On the dais was erected a canopy of crimson, bearing the Prince's feathers, copied from the tomb in Canterbury Cathedral. At the back was the Royal coat of arms, with the Shakspearean motto, "Love all; trust a few; do wrong to none," with the Prince's feathers, in ostrich feathers, on either side. In the centre of the dais was the throne of the Provincial Grand Master, with the pedestal in front and the footstool, the chairs of Deputy Grand Master and Past Grand Master, and behind were the banner screens of the Provincial Grand Lodge and Lord Suffield, the latter by a strange coincidence being also the banner of Lord Suffield's father when he was appointed Provincial Grand Master. The centre of the hall was covered with scarlet cloth, and the Masonic carpet which was presented by Sir Henry J. Stracey to the Social Lodge was also laid down. The armoury of the Drill Hall was set apart as a clothing room for the Past and Present Provincial Grand Officers, and another room was set aside for the use of the Prince of Wales and Grand Officers. The chairs were very elegant and massive. The body of the hall was seated with chairs placed diagonally from the sides, with a wide carpeted space down the centre; and the brethren were placed right and left, according to the seniority of their lodges. Those represented by banners were—on the right, Union, 52; Social, 93; Unanimity, 102; Perseverance, 213; Cabbell, 8c7; Soudes, 996; and Doric, 1193; on the left, Faithful, 85; Friendship, 100; Philanthropic, 107; United Friends, 313; Sincerity, 943; and Walpole, 1500. Among the brethren present were Bros. Sir E. Lacon, M.P.; Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C.; D. Prov. G.M.; Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C.; A. M. F. Morgan, Major Marsham, J. B. Graver Browne, Rev. H. Evans Lombe, P.S.W.; Rev. J. Cholmeley, P.G.C.; A. Master; Perrott, P. Prov. G.S.W. of South Wales; Emra Holmes, P. Prov. G.R. and P. Prov. G.D. of Suffolk; Major Allen, P. Prov. G.S.W. of Suffolk; W. Clarke, Prov. G.D.C. of Suffolk; Huddleston, Prov. G. Treas. of Suffolk; W. H. Lucia, P.G. Sec. of Suffolk; Boby, P. Prov. G.S.W. of Suffolk; Frazer, Prov. G.S.D. of Suffolk; Hedley Brown, Prov. G.S.W. of Suffolk; Parrie, Prov. G.A. Dir. of Cers. of Suffolk; J. Terry; W. Hammond, P. Prov. G.J.D. of Middlesex; Adams, P. Prov. G.S.B. of Suffolk; F. Binckes, P.G.S., Sec. Royal Masonic Institution for Boys; Long, P.P.G.D.C. of Suffolk; Sedgwick, P.P.G. Reg. of Suffolk; John Nunn, P.G.W.; Rev. H. H. Bridgwater, P.P.G.C.; G. Chamberlin, J. While, H. Bussy, H. Massey ("Freemason"), N. B. Headon, and others.

When filled, as it was, with upwards of 900 brethren in full Masonic Craft clothing, and a large number of them wearing the jewels of the higher ranks of Masonry, and lighted with a myriad of jets, the hall presented a brilliant and unique appearance. At twenty minutes to three o'clock, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master Designate (Bro. Major Penrice) ascended the throne, and the other officers having taken their seats, the lodge was opened in due form. The arrival of H.R.H. the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of All England was now awaited; the following brethren, who had been appointed as special Stewards to attend on his Royal Highness, taking up their positions for this purpose—Bros. W. A. Tyssen Amherst, R. E. Baker, Lieut. Col. Bignold, Sir F. G. M. Boileau, Bart. Sir R. J. Buxton, Bart., Lieut. Col. Boileau, G. Buxton, J. Bond Cabbell, Capt. W. Dods, Sir W. H. B. Ffolkes, Bart. (High Sheriff of Norfolk), R. T. Gurdon, J. S. Holmes, Roger Kerison, G. W. F. Loftus, Rev. H. Lombe, Rev. Dr. Mangan, Capt. W. Massey, Cecil Montgomerie, Capt. Hastings Parker, Paynton Pigott, Thomas Watson, George Wilkinson, and H. Morgan. In a short time the Prov. G.M. of Suffolk, Bro. Lord Waveney, entered the hall, and having taken a seat on the right of the throne was received with cheers. Very shortly after three o'clock the strains of "God Save the Queen," and some truly English cheers from without, indicated the approach of the illustrious Prince and Mason, and in a few minutes afterwards—for he was already "clothed," there was an "alarm"—His Royal Highness, the Grand Master of All England, claimed admission. The order was at once given, and His Royal Highness, accompanied by Lord Skelmersdale, the M.W. Deputy Grand Master, Lord Hardwicke, P.G.M. of Cambridge, and Lord Claud Hamilton, M.P., was attended to the dais by the Stewards.

The Deputy Prov. G.M. Designate at once vacated the throne and handed the gavel to His Royal Highness. It was amid much clapping of hands and cheering that the Grand Master of All England ascended the throne; but this joy and welcome partook of a more Masonic form when His Royal Highness had taken his seat, for then, at the call of Sir Albert Woods, the Grand Director of Ceremonies, they gave the greatest salute in Masonry, and the effectiveness and impressiveness with which this was rendered must have recalled the grander, but not more fervent, display at the Albert Hall. Another "alarm," and it was announced that Bro. Lord Suffield sought installation. His patent was given in and handed to the P.G. Secretary (Bro. H. Barwell), by whom it was read. Bros. Col. Bignold, E. S. Bignold, Wilkinson, Aldis, Baker, Loftus, and J. Reeve were then selected as Stewards to attend upon and escort the Provincial Grand Master Designate to the throne.

When Lord Suffield had ascended the dais, The Prince of Wales, addressing the Provincial Grand Master Designate, said: Brother Lord Suffield, in conferring upon you to-day the office of Provincial Grand Master of Norfolk,

I feel convinced—and I think I shall have the approval of the brethren in this hall—that the choice which I have made is one which will find favour in the eyes of the county. I know that you have been a good and true Mason, and I feel also firmly convinced that the duties which you are about to enter upon, you will carry out in a true and conscientious manner. I feel also convinced that the choice which I have made is one which will confer pleasure and gratification on the brethren of the county.

The necessary Masonic ceremonies were then observed, and Lord Suffield was invested with the insignia of his office, and placed in the chair of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the Prince of Wales taking the chair of Past Master. The formal salutes were given by direction of Sir Albert Woods, and the brethren having resumed their seats, Lord Suffield said: May it please your Royal Highness, Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Ancient and Honourable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons of England, I am deeply sensible, Sir, of the great honour which you have conferred upon this province by your presence here, and upon me in selecting me to fulfil the duties of the office which has been rendered vacant by the death of our late lamented Bro. Walpole. I am fully aware, Sir, of the responsibilities and of the duties devolving upon me. Accepting the responsibilities, it will be my earnest and anxious endeavour to perform the duties of my high office, and I will do as far as in me lies the best I can for the honour and advantage of Masonry in general and of this province in particular. And so, brethren, I hope to merit your approval of the choice His Royal Highness has made. (Cheers.) Circumstances have prevented my entertaining our numerous and distinguished visitors in the customary manner on the present occasion; but I hope before long to hold a Provincial Grand Lodge, to attend the usual cathedral service, and a banquet, when I trust we may be again honoured by the company of those brethren from a distance to whom I can now only offer my most sincere and hearty thanks for their kindness, their courtesy, and fraternal good feeling, which have induced them to come here to-day to assist in the ceremony which has just taken place. (Applause.)

Lord Suffield here proffered the gavel to the M.W.G.M., but His Royal Highness, with great condescension, requested the Prov. G.M. to retain it, and thereupon he proceeded to appoint and invest the Grand Lodge officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. Major Penrice, D.P. G.M.; Lieutenant-Colonel Duff, M.P., P.G.S.W.; Hamon Le Strange, P.G.J.W.; Rev. E. J. Alvis, P.G. Chaplain; Lieut.-Col. L'Estrange, P.G. Treasurer; G. B. Kennett, P.G.R.; H. G. Barwell, P.G. Secretary; J. C. Chittock, P.G.S.D.; R. Wortley, P.G.J.D.; T. Lord, P.G.S. of W.; George Baxter, P.G.D.C.; E. J. Bonfellow, P.G.A.D.C.; Hon. Harbord Harbord, P.G.S.B.; G. Britain, P.G.O.; E. D. Horsfield, P.G.P.; J. B. Bridgman, C. Havers, W. Mills, and J. J. Commins, Stewards.

When the investiture of these several officers had been completed, the M.W. Grand Master, accompanied by the Prov. G.M., the more distinguished brethren present, and attended by the Stewards, left the dais, and as they proceeded from the hall the hearty cheering which rolled on either side of the building almost stifled the trumpets which announced the close of this great ceremonial.

THE MASONIC BANQUETS.

In the evening the various city lodges gave banquets, in which the visiting brethren were invited. At the Royal Hotel three lodges, viz., Social, Sincerity, and Walpole, unitedly gave a banquet, which was largely attended, and was presided over by the W.M. of Social Lodge, No. 93. Bro. J. J. Commins, supported right and left by Bros. J. C. Chittock, W.M. No. 943, and T. Isley, W.M. No. 1500.

After dinner, which was of a very substantial character, Bro. Commins gave "The Queen and the Craft," which was loyally responded to.

Bro. Chittock then proposed "The Health of the M.W.G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. He said—From the time of our earliest recollection we have always been attached to the Prince of Wales as the heir to the throne of England. When he became an inhabitant of Norfolk we Norfolk men became still more attached to him. But when he became Grand Master of English Freemasons what should we Norfolk men think but that we ought to be still more attached to him to find that a Norfolk man should be Grand Master of all England? But although we Norfolk men are exceedingly proud of our Grand Master, I have no doubt that all those who reside in Suffolk or in any other county of England are equally proud of their Grand Master, and I am sure that it would be perfectly impossible that any man could stand in higher estimation among his brother Masons than H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. We know that in Masonry one of the great objects is charity; and when we remember that His Royal Highness has come amongst us this day for the purpose of promoting the maintenance of that noble charity, the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital, we ought to feel doubly grateful to him. It shows that he has that true Masonic virtue which ought to be among us all. We can have, as I said, no better, no greater Grand Master, than we have, and I propose the toast, which I trust you will all receive with enthusiasm.

The toast, as may be supposed, was enthusiastically received, and drank with Masonic honours.

Bro. Commins next gave "The Pro Grand Master Lord Carnarvon; the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale; and the rest of the Grand Officers," which was, of course, drank right loyally.

Bro. F. Binckes responded.

Bro. Chittock, in proposing "The Health of the Prov. G.M., Lord Suffield," said his lordship was highly appreciated by the brethren. They all knew him as a Norfolk man for many years, and there was no man in Norfolk who would be more acceptable as a Grand Master. His name was proverbial among Norfolk men. He had been a long time a Mason, but they had not had an opportunity—except those brethren of North Walsham—of criticising his working. But he had no doubt whatever most of them knew Lord Suffield, and he was sure that his working in Grand Lodge was an earnest of how he meant to do his duty. He was most thoroughly capable of doing it, and he meant to carry out his duties properly. (Cheers.)

Bro. Isley proposed "The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers."

Bro. A. M. F. Morgan responded, and said that a better working Mason or a better man there could not possibly be than Bro. Penrice, who had that day been appointed Deputy Grand Master of the Province. (Hear, hear.) This day was one of happy augury for Masons in Norfolk, for they had had H.R.H. the Grand Master amongst them to instal Lord Suffield—and a better choice as Prov. Grand Master could not have been made; and he trusted that the effect of the day's proceedings would be to give an impetus to Masonry in Norfolk.

Bro. Commins then proposed "The Masonic Charities," and after saying that in Norfolk these charities were not supported so well as they ought to be, he expressed a hope that in the future more would be done in this province to support those excellent institutions.

Bro. Terry, in responding, congratulated the Masons of Norfolk upon the fact that it was in this province that H.R.H. the Grand Master had for the first time since his installation performed the ceremony of installing a P.G.M. They had very much to be proud of, and he hoped that it would lead to Norfolk contributing more to the charities than it had done heretofore. The institution which he represented now supported 253 old men and widows from its funds—giving to old Masons £40 and to widows of Masons £32 per year, whereas only four years ago there were but 180 annuitants receiving £36 and £25 respectively. Thus very much had been done of late years by the Craft to assist the poor and needy brethren, and the widows of such. He appealed to them most earnestly for further funds to increase the good work which the institutions were doing, and suggested that every member of every lodge in Norfolk might at least give 5s. a year, which contribution would give one vote. He then stated that H.R.H. Prince Leopold had kindly consented to preside at the next anniversary festival, and on that occasion he hoped there would be a large contribution from Norfolk.

Bro. Binckes, Secretary of the Masonic Boys' School, also responded, and stated that at that institution 189 boys were at present maintained and educated, and a scheme was now on foot for erecting a preparatory school in connection with this institution for at least 100 boys younger than those now admitted. The benefits received by Norfolk from the various charities were out of all proportion to the contributions sent up, but this state of things he hoped would be speedily altered, and to that end he urged each lodge to do its utmost. Subsequently he proposed "The Three Presiding Masters," a toast which was warmly received.

Bros. Commins, Chittock, and Isley briefly responded, and promised to do all they could to increase the contributions from their lodges to the Masonic charities.

Amongst the other toasts was "The Visitors," to which Lord Claud J. Hamilton, M.P., who entered the room late in the evening, responded.

Several other toasts were given and responded to, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

EMULATION LODGE OF IMPROVEMENT.—A full account of the proceedings at the festival that takes place this (Friday) evening will be given in the Special Edition of the "Freemason," which will be ready early Saturday morning.

The Installation Meeting of the William Preston Lodge, No. 766, took place on Thursday evening. Bro. W. E. Newton, J.W., was placed in the chair of K.S. A report of the meeting will appear in our next.

An ordinary General Meeting of the "London Masonic Club" Company Limited, will be held on Wednesday next at 101, Queen Victoria-street.

PARTICK.—Lodge St. Mary's (No. 117).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the hall, Douglas-street, Partick, on the evening of Wednesday, the 15th inst., for the purpose of electing and installing the Master and office-bearers. The brethren mustered to the number of about 100, exclusive of visiting brethren, among whom was Bro. M'Taggart, ex-P.G. Secretary of Glasgow. After the ordinary business of the lodge the election of office-bearers was proceeded with as follows:—John Bain, W.M.; Wm. Borland, D.M.; J. S. Donaldson, S.M.; John M'Swan, S.W.; Thomas Wallace, J.W.; James Lyon, Treas.; Alfred Lawrence, Sec.; William Chisholm, Chaplain; William M'Farlane, S.D.; Alex. Skene, J.D.; Thos. Miller, Standard Bearer; William Murdoch, Senior Steward; Thos. W. Barclay, Junior Steward; James M'Cready, I.G.; James Bruce, Tyler. The lodge was then handed over to the care of the Junior Warden, and after spending a short time in harmony, during which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly responded to, the lodge was called back to labour and closed in due and ancient form.

ALEXANDRIA.—St. Andrew's Royal Arch Lodge (No. 321).—At a meeting of the Alexandria and Bunnill St. Andrew's Royal Arch Lodge, 321, held on the evening of Friday, 10th inst., the following were installed by the P.R.W.M., John M'Leish, viz.: J. Stewart, W.M.; P. Jardine, S.M.; P. Moir, D.M.; R. M'Cowan, S.W.; P. M'Kennie, J.W.; A. M'Lintock, Treas.; C. Glen, Sec.; J. Campbell, Clerk; W. Guy, B.B.; J. Stewart, S.D.; J. Jardine, J.D.; A. M'Donald, S.S.; J. Barr, J.S.; A. Laurie, S.B.; J. Vance, I.G.; D. Jardine, Tyler. During the past year a good many new members have been added to the roll of this lodge.

GLASGOW.—St. Andrew's Royal Arch Chapter (No. 69).—The monthly meeting was held within the hall, 25, Robertson-street, on Tuesday, the 14th inst. The chapter was opened in the Mark Degree by the M.E.P.Z., Thomas M. Campbell; Comps. J. B. McNair, S.W. and S.O., M.E.P.H.; W. Harper, J.W. and J.O., when Bros. William Lightbody and Mathew Robin, of St. John's, 3 bis, Alexander Currie and John Currie, of St. Vincent, 552, were duly Marked, and their work inspected and approved of, were instructed into the mysteries of the Mark Degree.

LENNOXTOWN.—MASONIC FUNERAL.—The remains of the late Bro. Dr. Allan Marshall, whose death took place at his residence, Lennoxton, on Wednesday the 8th inst., were interred on Saturday the 11th inst., in the Lennoxton churchyard. The doctor had resided in Campsie for upwards of thirty years, and was much esteemed by a large circle in the parish, especially of the working classes, who appreciated his homely and genial manner, as well as his professional ability as a medical practitioner, and a very general feeling of regret has been expressed at his demise. A few weeks previous to his death a testimonial, valued at £50, was presented to him by the parish. The funeral was conducted with full Masonic honours, and notwithstanding the very inclement weather, a large number of people, representing all classes of the community, attended and accompanied the remains to the grave. The Masonic ceremony, which was conducted by Bro. Peter Robinson, Master of Campsie St. John's Lodge, No. 195, was of a very impressive character, and was witnessed by several hundreds of the inhabitants. Campsie parish church choir were in attendance by invitation; and as arranged, sang two appropriate pieces, "Dead March in Saul," and the 15th Paraphrase to "Soldau." After the interment the Masonic brethren retired to their lodge-room, and passed a series of resolutions expressive of the esteem in which deceased was held by them.

FREEMASONRY IN TURKEY.

The installation of the M.E.K.' and officers of the Leinster Royal Arch Chapter, No. 166, Irish Constitution, took place on Tuesday, the 17th October, in the Masonic Temple, Haskieu, Constantinople. On the evening of this date the chapter was opened in the regular form by the M.E.K., Comp. W. Dorrell, who was assisted by M.E. P.K., Comp. H. Arnold, M.E.P.K., Comp. J. Smorsitt and the officers of the chapter. The preliminary part of the evening's business, such as the confirmation of minutes, &c., &c., having been performed, the special business was then proceeded with by the introduction of Comp. H. Wetherill, K. elect, for the benefit of installation. Due consent having been given to the prescribed charges, a conclave of P.K.'s was duly formed, consisting of M.E. P.K., Comp. H. Arnold; M.E.P.K., Comp. J. Smorsitt; and the installing K., Comp. W. Dorrell. Comp. H. Wetherill was regularly installed into the exalted position of K. according to the Irish rite. On the readmission of the companions the announcement and salutation were made. The M.E.K. then proceeded to invest the officers as follows: Comps. J. Rawe, H.P.; W. B. Teadstall, C.S.; T.W. Johnson, Capt. H.; T. C. Dickinson, Sup. Tab.; J. Lindsay, R.A.C.; W. Webb, Capt. 3. V.; W. Dyke, Capt. 2. V.; P. Flucker, Capt. 1. V.; M.E.P.K., W. Dorrell, Reg. and Treas.; and J. Nock, Jan. The usual charges having been given, brought the installation ceremony to a close. There being no other business before the chapter, it was closed by the M.E.K. in peace and concord. Afterwards the companions adjourned to the refreshment room, where an agreeable and sociable hour was spent, during which the inner man was refreshed, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, notably those of "The Newly-installed M.E.K.," "The P.K.'s," and "The Retiring Officers." Comps. J. J. Dunn, W. Dyke, P. Flucker, and others, greatly added to the harmony of the evening by singing a few appropriate songs.

This chapter has been in existence something like nine years, and strange to say, contrary to most things in Turkey, it never was in a better position than at the present time. The finances at their disposal are not very great, but they have the satisfaction of knowing that they have no liabilities other than the first object in Masonry—charity—and should the dark clouds now overhanging that part of the globe be, by the assistance of the T.G.A., dispersed, there is no doubt but that this chapter will become one of the most flourishing in the Levant. The previous Masonic career of the newly-installed M.E.K., and the reputation of the officers whom he has been fortunate enough to obtain, are sufficient proof that no efforts on their part will be spared to make their term of office one of the most successful since the consecration of the chapter.

GRAND COMMANDERY OF NEW YORK.

At the 63rd annual convocation of this Grand Body, held recently, in New York city, the following Grand Officers were elected:—Sir Robert Black, Grand Commander; Sir T. Fondest, D.G.C.; Sir C. H. Holden, G. Gen.; Sir I. C. Chittenden, G.C.G.; Sir J. S. Perry, Grand Treas.; and Sir Robert Macoy, Grand Recorder. The next annual convocation will be held at Troy. At this convocation 52 delegates were present, together with representatives of the Grand Commanderies of the States of Alabama, Tennessee, Texas, Missouri, Georgia, Vermont, Minnesota, Ohio, New Jersey, Illinois, Indiana, New Hampshire, Iowa, California, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maryland, Kentucky, Maine, Connecticut.

GRAND CHAPTER OF INDIANA.

The 31st annual convocation assembled in the Grand Lodge Hall, at two o'clock p.m., on Wednesday, October 19th, and was opened by Lucien A. Foote, Grand High Priest.

The annual address of the Grand High Priest was a very brief business document, containing no points of general interest to our readers.

He reports two new chapters organized during the past year, located at Union City and Bluffton. The report of the Grand Secretary shows a balance in the treasury of 3791.37 dols., and surplus funds loaned to the amount of 5500 dols., making the total assets of the Grand Chapter 9291.37 dols.

The Grand Treasurer was authorized to loan to the Grand Lodge of Indiana, without interest, all the funds remaining in his hands after paying the appropriations of the present sessions of the Grand Chapters.

The following allowances were made: To L. A. Foote, G.H.P., 75 dols.; Wm. W. Austin, Chairman Committee on Foreign Correspondence, 50 dols.; W. M. Black, G.C., 26 dols.

Charters were granted as follows:—

Union City Chapter, No. 94, at Union City; John Commons, H.P.; Thos. Mitchell, K.; Raiford Wiggs, S. Bluffton Chapter, No. 95, at Bluffton, Thos. L. Wisner, H.P.; W. Br Miller, K.; W. W. Angel, S.

The proposed amendments to the rules for the government of subordinate chapters, which were submitted at the last annual convocation, and referred to the Committee on Jurisprudence, who were granted time until this session to make their report, were brought before the Grand Chapter, and a majority and a minority report were from that committee. The majority report against adopting the amendments, while the minority was in favour of their adoption. A motion was made to adopt the minority report, which created a lengthy and rather spirited discussion of the subject, and finally resulted in a partial victory for the minority, by the adoption of the amendments, so far as pertains to Rule 204, which was made to read as follows:—

204. A companion who has been suspended for non-payment of dues shall, on the payment of said dues, and a majority vote of his chapter, at any stated convocation, be restored to all the rights and privileges of membership in his chapter.

The rules for the removal of a penalty, in all other cases not embraced in rule 204, remain as heretofore.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—

Bros. Reuben Peden, Knightstown, G.H.P.; S. S. Johnson, Jeffersonville, D.G.H.P.; Martin H. Rice, Indianapolis, G. King; Thomas B. Long, Terre Haute, G. Scribe; Charles Fisher, Indianapolis, Grand Treas.; John M. Bramwell, Indianapolis, G. Sec.; F. M. Symmes, Crawfordsville, Gr. Chap.; A. D. Williams, Anderson, G.C. of H.; S. B. Richardson, Logansport, G.R.A.C.; W. M. Black, Indianapolis, G. Guard.

The representation at this session was not full, eighty out of ninety-five chapters sending delegates. But little business was transacted, some of the standing committees having nothing before them. Sessions were held Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning, the Grand Chapter closing before noon of the second day.

GRAND LODGE OF OHIO.

The Grand Lodge of Ohio commenced its session at Columbus on October 18. It being understood that the question relative to the recognition of the coloured lodges was to be brought up, there was a large delegation. The question of their recognition was presented last year and laid over until this session. On Wednesday the Committee on Jurisprudence reported the matter back, with resolutions recommending recognition of the coloured Grand Lodge. A point of order was then made that under the constitution of the Grand Lodge the resolutions were not in order, except as an amendment to the constitution itself. The Grand Master overruled the point of order, and held that the resolutions were in order. An appeal was then taken from this decision, and it was sustained by the Grand Lodge, there being about seventy-five majority in favour of the appeal.

He took a particular part in investigations relating to the ancient monuments of Peru and Mexico. To him resorted the chief and most distinguished Masons of South America. He had long suffered from serious illness, during which he persevered in his literary labours.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE BRO. G. WHITE.

The last token of respect which the town of Brighton could pay to its late Chief Constable was bestowed on Friday, the 17th inst; the remains of the late Bro. Geo. White were then interred in the Extra-Mural Cemetery, in the presence of three to four thousand people. The weather was fine, and this, doubtless, favoured the large attendance; but the long, important and valuable services which Bro. White had rendered to the town, as the chief officer of its constabulary, and the hearty esteem which his kindly manners had won from residents and visitors, rich and poor alike, would have sufficed under any ordinary atmospheric condition to call forth a large representative gathering of the townspeople to witness the performance of the solemn rites of yesterday. At the Town Hall and in the Corn Exchange, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, members of the Brighton, Hove, and West Sussex Constabulary forces assembled previous to marching to the residence of the deceased in Prince Albert Street. Half-an-hour later, the mournful procession started for the Cemetery. The hearse was followed by three mourning carriages. In the first, were Mr. G. White, Miss White, Master Yates (grandson), Mrs Hodgson and Mrs. Yates; in the second, Mrs. F. Napper, Mr. L. White, Mr. A. White, and Mrs. G. White; and, in the third, Mr. Hodgson and Mr. F. Napper, sons-in-law, Mr. Penfold, the deceased's medical attendant, and Mr. Thompson, the Chief Constable's clerk. The constabulary representatives were, from Brighton, Superintendents Crowhurst (Acting Chief Constable) and Barnden. Inspectors Terry, Carter, Paul, Woolgar, Dumfries, and Packham; Sergeants Turner and Reed; Inspector-Detective Gibbs, and Detectives Starley and Terry; and about twenty-three members each of the A, B, and D divisions; from Hove, Chief Superintendent Geo. Breach, Assistant Superintendent Geo. Breach; Sergeants Birchell and Bottle; and about twenty men from West Sussex, Superintendents Robinson (Arundel), Farnell (Steyning), Henderson (Horsham), Pratt (City of Chichester), Pratt (County Constabulary, of Chichester), Kemmish (Deputy Chief Constable, Petworth), and Puttock (Littlehampton). Along the route were hundreds of spectators, comprising all classes of society, but the lowest as well as the highest maintained that decorum which was in harmony with the solemn spectacle. At the Cemetery gates, representatives of the East Sussex Constabulary, in addition to members of public bodies in Brighton had assembled.

Among the brethren present we noticed Bro. J. Dickson, Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies and P.M. of the Clarence Lodge (271); Bro. T. J. Sabine, P.M. of the Mount Lebanon Lodge (73); and Bro. J. Hackney of the Abercorn Lodge, and a large number of personal friends of the deceased.

The Freemasons were distinguished by sprigs of acacia in their button holes, and headed the procession as it entered the Cemetery. They were followed by the Guardians of the Poor, Town Councillors, and representatives of other public bodies; while the hearse, mourning coaches, and police brought up the rear. When near the chapel, a halt was made, and the first part of the procession opened up while the coffin, carried by members of the Brighton constabulary, the chief mourners, and the police passed through. The Town Councillors, headed by the Mayor of Brighton, then the Guardians of the Poor, the Freemasons, &c., followed in order to the chapel. There the Rev. J. Image, the Cemetery Chaplain, conducted the first portion of the burial service, the remainder being gone through at the grave. This is situated to the left of the path leading to the upper part of the grounds, near Rastrick's tomb. The outer coffin was of polished elm, and upon a silver plate on the lid was this inscription:—"George White, Chief Constable of Brighton, Died 10th November, 1876, in his 68th year."

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF UNITED STRENGTH (No. 228).—The second meeting of the season of this old lodge was held, not at "The Gate," the home of the lodge in Old Clerkenwell, but at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, the cause of the temporary change being that the old place is under renovation. Bro. Griggs, the W.M., presided, supported by I.P.M. John White, ("Freemason") and Past Masters Joseph Crump, Sec.; Winsland, Treas.; James Terry; Colston Davies, and Hill-house. The officers were Bro. Hill, S.W.; Snare, J.W.; Halford, S.D.; Percy, J.D.; and Todd, I.G. The first business after the passing of the minutes was the raising of Bro. the Rev. — Dawson (rector of St. John's, Clerkenwell), Sandy, Phillip Woodman, J. Woodman, and Knight. It is unnecessary, and it would be out of place, to comment at length upon the work of a brother who has done so well as Bro. Griggs, but it must be said that well as he ever has done in his mother lodge, on this occasion he rose above himself, and gave the degree in a manner worthy of more than credit—and the repetition of the ceremony did not tire and pall upon the attention. The solemnity was greatly heightened by the melodious organ music at the hands of Bro. Hart. The officers also were excellent in their work, and their brethren watched the work with pride and pleasure. The lodge was then resumed, and Bro. Moulsey was tested and afterwards passed. Again was the lodge resumed, and Mr. Joseph Reynolds Green, of Bedford, was initiated, thus adding to the large contingent who have come from the birthplace of the famed dreamer to receive the light of the Craft in the metropolis, where many of them transact business. The lodge had then to discuss a question which none approached without regret—that of removing from the famed Gate, which has been found too small to accommodate the large body of brethren who assemble under the banner of the lodge. Bro. Terry had placed a motion on the paper that that lodge should remove to the hall in Great Queen-street, and well expressed the obligation the brethren had been under to Bro. Gay, the host of the Gate, and said that the brother had done wonders with the circumscribed means at his disposal in having the place so constantly in the hands of the workmen. Bro. Terry gave the results of his inquiries at various houses, and left the lodge to say which place the members would select. Bro. While urged that the lodge, if it could not meet at the Old Gate, should continue to meet in or near that neighbourhood, and, availing himself of the information conveyed by Bro. Terry, moved that the lodge should accept the Guildhall Tavern, City, as a meeting house, a place which was not far from the Moorgate-street Station, and would be more readily accessible than any other. Bro. Halford seconded this, and on Bro. Gay saying, in answer to questions put by the brethren, that the numbers of 228 were too great for the Gate, the motion became the substantive one, and was carried without a dissentient hand being held up against it. The lodge voted two guineas for the "old people's Christmas treat," and was then in due form closed. Over wine and bisuits, there being no banquet, some pleasant little species were made, and good natured badinage was indulged in, and Bros. Maples, P.M. 144; R. C. Davis, 1278; J. Defries, S.W. 45; and the Rev. — Wilson, 625, Glosop, in their speeches, spoke of the warm pleasure of witnessing the good work and sociable feeling prevailing among the brethren.

THE WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—The installation meeting of this, a "banner" lodge, was held on Thursday, the 23rd ult., at Cannon-street Hotel. The lodge was opened by W.M. Pringle, with Bro. Newton, jun., in the Senior Warden's chair, and Bro. Newton, sen., the W.M. elect, in the Junior Warden's chair. It should here be stated that the S.W. had requested the brethren to give the votes they would have given to him to his father, who is his son's junior in Masonry, and Bro. Newton, sen., had consequently been elected over his son's head. This explanation is needed, but as illustrative of the kindly feeling shown by a son in standing aside from a position he would have won upon his merits, in order that his father might become a ruler in the Craft. There were also present Past Masters Captain Kain, B. Abbott, W. J. Miller, George Newman, Augustus Braun, and W. Worrall (Sec.). The visitors included Bros. Francis, P.M. 851, P.P.G.S. of Surrey; Benham, P.M. 1339; Garrod, P.M. 177; J. While ("Freemason"), P.M. 228; Phillips, 1540; Carlton, 1295; Margetson, 90; Brown, 140; Tribbel, 1287; Harris, 1589; and W. T. Rickwood, 192. The minutes of the last lodge meeting were read and confirmed, and then Past Master Miller having taken the chair of W.M., raised Bros. Brierley and George Castle. The new candidate for the Master's chair having been presented in due form, and having answered the questions prescribed by the Book of Constitutions, Past Master Braun taking the chair as Installing Master, all under the rank of Installed Masters were dismissed when the pledge to the Fellow Crafts had been made, and the lodge had been raised to the Third Degree for the duly constituted Board of Past Masters, the usual ceremony was enacted, and according to ancient forms, Bro. Newton was placed in the chair by Bro. Braun. The body of Masters was closed, and the proclamations were made by Bro. Braun with considerable elocutionary power, and the addresses were listened to with rapt attention, the satisfaction of the brethren being shown by the great applause which followed the conclusion. In the course of investing the officers the W.M. called upon Bro. Newton, jun., the Past Senior Warden, to take upon himself that position a second time, but the brother, in a continued spirit of self-sacrifice, said he had no desire to prevent the other brethren from obtaining the promotion to which they had a right to look, and he would for the present retire from office, trusting to the remembrance of the lodge that he was eligible for the Master's chair at a future election. The generous nature of the feelings which had dictated this course of action appeared to be fully appreciated by the members. The officers appointed and invested were S. D. Ewens to the S.W. chair; Dr. Cutmore to the J.W. chair; E. Kidman, as S.D.; W. Drake, as J.D.; W. Drake, as I.G.; and P. Steinman, D.C. P.M. Captain Kain was invested as Treasurer; P.M. W. Worrall, as Secretary; and P.M. Newman as Wine Steward. The lodge agreed, on the motion of Bro. Braun, to grant a warrant for a lodge of instruction. The ballot having been taken for four gentlemen, a fine Past Master's jewel was placed upon the breast of Bro. Pringle, as a token of esteem on his leaving the chair of the lodge. "Work" was finished in the usual manner. The brethren sat down to an excellent and well-served banquet. The usual loyal toasts were given, and then Bro. Pringle, the I.P.M., proposed the toast of "The W.M.," remarking upon the filial manner in which Bro. Newton, jun., had retired so as to enable his father and brother to take the chair. The W.M., in responding to the toast, which was accepted with all heartiness, said he found himself in a very peculiar position, and one which he scarcely expected to occupy—one, too, which he felt he should not have occupied on his own merit. He had frequently, in addressing the William Preston Lodge, expressed his deep regret that he had not joined Freemasonry earlier in life, for he now felt that he had missed a great deal of enjoyment which he might have had if he had sought its light 7 years ago, for he might have spent some of his years with increased profit and pleasure. He could hardly express the peculiar feelings he experienced on that occasion. The lodge had been kind enough to place him in that high position, but it was a position which he did not deserve. No one more than he desired to forward the interests of the lodge, and if he could not come up to the brilliant Master-ship of the Past Masters who had gone before, of Bros. Miller, Newman, Braun, Worrall, and others, it would not be from want of will, but from the loss of those opportunities which never returned. He warmly thanked the brethren for their kindness, and assured them that he would do his best to discharge the duties they had entrusted to his hands. He then proposed "The Visitors," and Bros. Francis and While responded. "The Past Masters" were then toasted, and Bro. Pringle responded, and spoke in admiration of the working P.M.'s, to whose body he was now relegated, and thanked Bros. Miller and Braun for their work. "The Officers" was the next toast given, and Bros. Kain and Worrall responded. After an evening of perfect harmony, the proceedings closed with the Tyler's toast. In the course of the evening Bro. P. M. Braun asked for advice for the following case, which is a worthy one for Masonic charity. The writer says: I am the widow of Bro. —, who was by profession an artist, that is a portrait, landscape, and miniature painter; he was editor and proprietor of the National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans, and at the time of his death was collecting material for another illustrated work, some of the illustrations being at that time already engraved. My husband was G.S. of the Grand Lodge of the State of New York for 29 years, and during that time and before was Master of a subordinate lodge; he was founder of the Lodge of Strict Observance, he originated and promoted the Representative System in the United States and with other countries, and was himself Representative for the Grand Lodges of France, Saxony, and Brazil to the Grand Lodge of New York. He occupied other positions of honour in the fraternity, which may be known by the medals which I have. I hope what I have written will prove to you that my husband was an honoured member of the fraternity to whom I appeal for aid; by various misfortunes I have lost everything; I have never received a farthing from any one, and nothing but the most extreme need would have induced me to ask for aid. I am sixty-four years of age, and much disabled by rheumatism.

WHITTINGTON LODGE (No. 862) held its usual meeting on Monday, the 20th ult., at Anderson's Hotel. Present: Bros. T. Kingston, W.M.; C. Walker,

S.W.; A. Moore, J.W.; J. Walmsley, S.D.; W. A. Blakemore, J.D.; C. E. Packer, I.G.; W. J. H. Jones, P.M. 862; J. Weaver, P.M. 862 and 1319, P.P.G. Org. Middlesex, Sec. and Treas. of the Benevolent Fund; Farebrother, Godden, Bolton, Tate, Roberts, Sedgwick, Brothers, Ward, Brown, Holland, Coll, Collinson, Ross, Boxer, Cox, and several others, also many visitors of distinction. Bro. Kingston, W.M., initiated Mr. G. Mackaness into the First Degree. The report of the Auditors was received with acclamation, it shewing the lodge to be free of all liabilities and a balance in hand. The new bye-laws were read; one in particular appeared to us to be a very satisfactory one, namely, "Should the W.M. expend during his year of office more than the income of the lodge he shall be held personally responsible for the excess." Bro. J. Weaver then occupied the chair, and installed Bro. C. Walker as W.M. for the ensuing year; the ceremony was given in its entirety. The three addresses were listened to by the brethren most attentively, at the conclusion of which Bro. Weaver received great applause. He then delivered an extempore speech respecting the management of this lodge, also charging the brethren to be very careful whom they introduced into Masonry, and not to introduce a person unless he was well-known to be true and trustworthy by experience. The W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. A. Moore, S.W.; J. Walmsley, J.W.; W. A. Blakemore, S.D.; C. E. Packer, J.D.; S. Godden, I.G.; A. J. Bolton, D.C.; J. Farebrother, W.S. The newly-installed Master then initiated Messrs. T. F. Lee and G. Maxwell into the First Degree in such a masterly manner that he does great credit to his tutor, Bro. Weaver, the ceremony being given very impressively. The W.M. then stated he had a very pleasing duty to perform, but he wished it had fallen into abler hands, as he felt he could not do justice to the task he had to perform. It was to present a piece of plate to a worthy and distinguished brother who had safely conducted the lodge through most difficult and trying circumstances; it had been subscribed for by the members of the lodge, and it consisted of a sterling silver tea service and an illuminated testimonial. The W.M. then called Bro. Weaver, who on approaching the W.M. was presented with the service and testimonial. The testimonial had been illuminated by one of the brethren as a labour of love, and ran thus: "Presented to Bro. James Weaver, P.M. and Secretary, as a token of their high esteem and regard, also to mark their appreciation of the ability and firmness he displayed in the conduct of the affairs of the lodge under most difficult and trying circumstances. November 20th, 1876." The inscription on the service was as follows:—"November 20th, 1876. Presented to Bro. James Weaver by the brethren of the Whittington Lodge, No. 862." Bro. Weaver was so thoroughly astonished that he could not give utterance to his thoughts beyond saying, "Brethren, I thank you;" a little later on he expressed himself more fully. Bro. Jones, P.M., proposed, seconded by Bro. Kingston, P.M., and carried by acclamation, "That a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes for the able and impressive manner in which Bro. Weaver had installed the W.M." Three gentlemen were proposed for initiation at the next meeting. Letters of apology were received from the Grand Secretary, Col. Burdett, P.G.M. Middlesex, and others, regretting their inability to be present. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where a most enjoyable evening was spent; the banquet being one of the best Bro. Clemow could put on the table. The usual toasts were observed, and a Past Master's jewel, a very handsome one, was presented to the retiring Master, Bro. T. Kingston. The brethren then separated, having passed one of those evenings that one remembers with the greatest pleasure.

CITY OF LONDON LODGE (No. 901).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, Nov. 20th. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. then initiated Mr. Arthur Wellington Smith, and passed Bro. Micklefield to the Degree of Fellow Craft. He then raised Bro. W. T. Trehearn, of Lebanon Lodge, 1326, to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. This being the evening for the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, the ballot was taken, and it was unanimous for Bro. Geo. Porter. It was proposed by the P.M., Bro. Lawrence, seconded by Bro. Lewis, P.M., and carried unanimously, that a jewel be presented to Bro. H. D'Arcy, the retiring W.M., as a slight acknowledgment of his efficient services during his term of office. The W.M., in a suitable speech, returned thanks, and the brethren then adjourned to the banquet, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Hardwicke, Stilwell, Solomon, Linging, and Inge were passed. The ceremonies were performed by the W.M., Bro. Swallow, who afterwards installed the Rev. Philip Melancthon Holden, S.W. and W.M. elect, in the presence of a Board of Installed Masters, numbering 48. The officers appointed were Bros. Swallow, I.P.M.; White, S.W.; Phillips, J.W.; C. A. Cottebranc, Treas.; Scott, Sec.; Turner, S.D.; Parsons, J.D.; Shand, I.G.; Hutchinson, D.C.; Willis, W.S.; Bishop, A.W.S., and Potter, Tyler. Bro. Swallow concluded the ceremony by delivering the addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was succeeded by the proposition of the usual toasts. After proposing "The Queen and the Craft," the W.M. proposed "The M.W.G.M.," and said that when the brethren considered the graceful manner in which the Prince of Wales accepted the dignity of Grand Master when it was offered to him, and when they further considered the great attention which he had paid, more perhaps than could be expected of one in his exalted position, to the duties of the office, he having so much to do, and when they further considered his great courtesy, his gentlemanly bearing towards all with whom he came in contact, justifying his character as "the first gentleman in Europe," they ought to be proud of having him as Grand Master. He might inform the brethren that H.R.H. expressed himself to Sir Albert Woods as greatly pleased with the installation ceremony at the Albert Hall. The W.M. next proposed "The Pro Grand Master," than whom no one more deserved to be in that position than the Earl of Carnarvon, or would more command the respect of the Craft. His lordship could go into a lodge and perform all the ceremonies. It was a great thing for Freemasons to have for a Pro Grand Master a brother who brought a great mind to the work, as it showed them there was something in Masonry, its system and symbols, worthy of being sought after and enquired into. Speaking of Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, the W.M. said the D.G.M. went here and there in Masonry, consecrating this and that lodge and chapter, and doing all he could to win the good opinion of the Craft. Upon one occasion he had the pleasure of sitting next to his lordship, and he must say he never sat next to a pleasanter gentleman in the whole course of his life, making one feel quite at home in his presence; with the happy knack of saying the right thing in the right place. The other Grand Officers were distinguished by their merit and ability, and gave to Freemasonry a great deal of its prestige in the eyes of the world. Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., responded, remarking that the Grand Officers were always ready to do the best they could for the interests of the Craft at large. Bro. Swallow, I.P.M., proposed "The W.M." The brethren had heard that the Prince of Wales was very much pleased with his reception at the Albert Hall; and the W.M. was no doubt much pleased with the reception he had just met with in the City of Westminster Lodge. If he was not, he ought to be. He (Bro. Swallow) was sure no worthier brother could go on to the chair. He had been S.W. of the lodge, and he had performed his duties admirably. It was by the brethren's unanimous vote he became W.M. He would do his duty as far as lay in his power while W.M., and would do nothing that could offend Grand Lodge or this lodge. He (Bro. Swallow) had had many pleasant evenings with him, and he trusted that his year of office would be a happy and prosperous one. The W.M. in reply said that he only wished he had the power of expressing his feelings as he desired, but they must take the will for the deed. He thanked them most heartily and warmly for the cordiality with which they had responded to the toast proposed by the I.P.M. He could assure them that in his wildest dreams at his initiation, he never could have supposed he should have been placed in the chair with so many pleasing and flattering expressions. He was very glad to have got into the chair, and he would do his utmost to maintain the good character which the City of Westminster Lodge had gained during the last twelve months. If he failed it would not be for want of bringing to bear all the power and ability he possibly could, both in working the three degrees in lodge, but in working the Fourth Degree. In conclusion, he could only say the brethren begged him in thanks. The W.M. next proposed "The Visitors," seventy of whom were present. Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., replied. The W.M. then gave "The Health of Past Master Swallow," and presented him with a valuable P.M.'s jewel. Bro. Swallow was one of the founders of the lodge, and he had done his utmost to make it prosperous, in which attempt he had been entirely successful. Bro. Swallow in acknowledging the toast said he had had many difficulties to go through in connection with this lodge, but the greatest difficulty was to return thanks for the brethren's kindness. However, he should be very short in his speech, for he scarcely knew what to say. He did not know that he deserved all that had been said in his favour; but if he did, he was both surprised and pleased. What he had done for the lodge he looked upon as nothing more than other Masons would have done. He certainly strove very hard for the warrant. He got his power from Marlborough House, and obtained the warrant after nine months' trying. He persevered, and his success encouraged him to say to others that when they began anything they should go on with it, and they would succeed. He had determined to start this lodge, and to make it a success. The charities had been well cared for. As regarded the jewel presented to him, it was a proof that what he had done had given the brethren satisfaction, and he should wear it with some feeling of pomp and vanity. He hoped to see the lodge make still further progress. To the toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary," Bro. Scott replied, and the S.W. responded to that of "The Officers." Bro. James Terry acknowledged the toast of "The Charities," and after expressing his regret at Bro. Little's absence, and thanking the W.M. and the brethren for their sympathy with him in his illness, said it was not more than he deserved. On behalf of Bro. Little, he thanked the body for its support of the Girls' School. Bro. Terry then reviewed the work of all the institutions, and pointed out to the brethren the great progress they had made, not only in the amount of subscriptions received by them, but in the increase of the benefits they conferred. The brethren shortly afterwards separated, having enjoyed a delightful evening, which was made additionally pleasant by some good singing by Bros. Knight Smith, J. Wm. Cattle, and Frank Percival.

ST. DUNSTAN'S LODGE (No. 1589).—The last meeting of this local lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Friday, the 17th ult. Bro. J. C. Dwarber, P.M. 55, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. Wellsman, S.W.; Dalwood, J.W.; A. Tisley, Sec.; J. H. Dodson, S.D.; Bull, acting J.D.; T. A. Woodbridge, I.G.; R. W. Williams, P.G.O. Middlesex, Org.; Gilbert, P.G.T. Middlesex, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, raised Bro. Platts, passed Bro. J. W. Lewis, and initiated Mr. G. A. Pearce. The three arduous and impressive ceremonies were most excellently well performed by the W.M. A notice of motion having been given by Bro. Dalwood, P.M. 860, J.W., that the sum of ten pounds should be voted towards the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, well served by Bro. Clemow. Upon the removal of the cloth the customary loyal and Craft toasts were given from the chair and warmly received. In giving the toast of the evening, viz., "The Initiate," the W.M. stated that as the St. Dunstan's was a local lodge, they were pleased to welcome amongst them that evening a resident in the district in the person of their newly-admitted brother. He (the W.M.) had an objection to large lodges, because very often there were many party and other influences at work, and in consequence perfect harmony was impossible. This would, he hoped, never be the case in No. 1589, and that possibly their initiate that evening had taken a very wise step in joining a new lodge in preference to an old one. In conclusion, he hoped that he, Bro. Pearce, would become a worthy and deserving brother, and would always regard it as one of the happiest days of his life when he became a Mason. The initiate, in reply, stated that he had had a very great desire to join Freemasonry for some years past, but until recently had lacked the opportunity. He was exceedingly impressed with the ceremony, and hoped that as long as he remained a member of the lodge he should discharge the great obligations he had entered into satisfactorily. The S.W., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said it was to him a great pleasure in having the honour to do so. The capabilities of the W.M. that day had been severely tried, because he had had to work the three arduous ceremonies unassisted by any I.P.M., but he had, nevertheless, carried them out to the extreme satisfaction of every one. In conclusion, he said it was an honour to the St. Dunstan's Lodge in having such a Master, whose courtesy and Masonic ability, combined with his happy and pleasant manner, had endeared him to all he came in contact with. The W.M., in his response, said he was extremely obliged to the S.W. for speaking so kindly of him, but he could not take credit for all the good things therein expressed. The Master of a new lodge having no P.M.'s to support him, and the younger officers being not always at his elbow, had always a heavy task to discharge, but there was only one way to get through it, and that was by calling the lodge early and exercising personal punctuality. Hitherto his health had enabled him to pull through notwithstanding the difficulties under which he laboured in the lodge, and he hoped to be able to instal his successor. In giving "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. said it was a toast that always afforded him a great pleasure to propose. On behalf of the lodge he wished to assure them that they were heartily welcome, and at the same time he remarked for the information of the initiate that by visiting various lodges the brethren had an opportunity of becoming conversant with the rituals and of contrasting the different styles. This toast having been duly drunk, Bros. Walls, S.D. Kennington, Dawson, 749, Dodman, 879, and Harwar, St. Clement Danes, severally acknowledged the honour that had been paid them, and complimented the W.M. personally, and the lodge generally, for the excellent "working." "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary" followed, in which the W.M. expressed his very great obligations to the latter brother in particular, whose zeal and assiduity, he said, had been unremitting since the foundation of the lodge. In the unavoidable absence of the Treasurer, Bro. Tisley, the Secretary, replied. He said that the Treasurer had to attend the Lodge of Grand Stewards on the same night as the St. Dunstan's met, but although not present in body he was there in mind. Upon his own behalf he could only say that he was exceedingly pleased at being Secretary to so good a lodge as No. 1589, and if there was anything more he could do to further its prosperity he should be only too happy to do it. In proposing "The Health of the Officers," the W.M. expressed himself highly pleased with them, and particularly complimented the lodge upon having two old Past Masters in the S. and J.W.'s chairs, namely, Bros. Wellsman and Dalwood, who were most excellent officers. The S.W., in reply, modestly said he could only regard himself as acting in the capacity of lieutenant to the W.M., under whose command it was a pleasure to serve. He was pleased that he, the S.W., was—although in a small degree—one of the promoters of the lodge, and it was exceedingly gratifying to him to find that it was progressing so very satisfactorily. The J.W. said he could endorse every word that Bro. Wellsman had spoken, and he further believed that the St. Dunstan's has a representative lodge would shortly equal any lodge in the City of London. In conclusion, as a P.M. of some years standing, he could vouch that the working of the ceremonies as performed by the W.M. could not be surpassed. During the evening instrumental, vocal, and poetical selections were given by Bros. Williams, Harwar, Dawson, Walls, Esson, and others. The proceedings terminated at 10, and the brethren adjourned until the third Friday in January.

WEST SMITHFIELD LODGE (No. 1623).—The first regular meeting since its consecration was held on Thursday, 18th ult., at the New Market Hotel, King Street, West Smithfield. Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., W.M., opened the lodge, supported by every officer of the lodge, punctually at 3 o'clock. The minutes of the Consecration and two emergency meetings were read, put separately and all unanimously confirmed. The work, which was well and ably done, was passing (one at a time) Bros. T. M. Butt, W. Delafous, and W. Snow to the Second Degree, after which Mr. R. Leggett was introduced and initiated into Freemasonry. Some propositions for initiations and joining were given. The lodge was closed and adjourned to Thursday, 18th January, to meet at half past two. There were present besides W.M., Bros. T. W. Adams, S.W.; G. J. Elliot, J.W.; E. Mallett, Assistant Secretary, who acted for Bro. F. Walters, G.J.D. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary, absent through ill health, W.T. Howes, P.M.; S.D.; J. Johnson, J.D.; G. S. Wintle, P.M., I.G. The visitors were Bro. W. Sugg, P.M. 33, &c.; H. Fajia, J.D. 1540; J. Swasey jun. 1423, and more whose names we could not ascertain. It was decided that a lodge of instruction be held in connection with the lodge, and which gave its sanction to its being held under the lodge warrant. A good banquet was provided, and was well appreciated by all who were present. The usual toasts were given and responded to. Songs and some good recitations passed away an agreeable evening very well spent. After wishing each other the compliments of the approaching year, the members separated.

OXFORD.—Apollo University Lodge (No. 357).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 28th ult., in the handsome hall adjoining the Clarendon Hotel. The W.M., the R.W. Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold, K.G., Prov. G.M. Oxon, fully intended to have been present, but was unfortunately prevented at the last moment from attending, in consequence of an attack of rheumatism in the knee, from which he has previously suffered. In his absence, Bro. the Rev. R. W. M. Pope, M.A., of Worcester College, Prov. G. Chap. Oxon, the W. Deputy Master, presided. There was a large attendance of members of the lodge and provincial officers, together with several visitors, including representatives of Grand Lodge, of the Isaac Newton Lodge, Cambridge, of the other local lodges, and of some English lodges abroad, nearly one hundred brethren being present. There were eight initiations, viz., Messrs. Dunn-Gadner, Cooper, Portal, Scratchley, Bright-Smith, Eyre, Kette and Jones, and nine passings, viz., Bros. Brown, Lloyd, Murray-Anderson, Moore, Frankerd, Radcliffe, Simpson, Ivory, and Harter, which is significant evidence of the flourishing state of the Craft in the University. The brethren then proceeded to the election of a W.M. to preside over them at the expiration of Prince Leopold's year of office when their choice fell upon Bro. Col. the Hon. W. E. Jackville-West, M.A., of Christ Church, and Dean and Bursar of Keble College, who at present holds the office of J.W. He will be formally installed at the annual festival next term, when he will appoint his officers for the year. On the proposition of the W. Deputy Master, seconded by P.M. the Rev. H. A. Pickard, M.A., of Christ Church, P.G.C., P.M. Reginald Bird, M.A., and Fellow of Magdalen College, D. Prov. G.M. Oxon, was unanimously re-elected Treasurer for the ensuing year. Bro. G. Norwood was again elected Tyler. Full Masonic mourning was worn, in consequence of the death of P.M. T. H. G. Wyldham, M.A., late Fellow and tutor of Merton College. At the conclusion of the business the brethren adjourned to the Clarendon Assembly Room adjoining the lodge, where a handsome banquet was served, the chair being occupied by the W.D.M., who proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in graceful and felicitous terms. The proceedings were of a very festive and enjoyable character, and some excellent speeches bearing upon the well-being of the Craft were delivered in response to the personal health included in the list. Among the visitors present was Bro. the Hon. J. Hyde Harris, District G.M. of Otago, New Zealand.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—A strong meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the Lion Hotel on the 16th ult. There were present amongst others Bros. J. Hurst, W.M.; J. Hammond, P.M. (Jordan), S.W.; S. Hill, P.M. (Canonbury and Bedford), J.W.; E. Hopwood, P.M. (Faith), I.P.M. and Treas.; W. Hammond, P.M. (Jordan, Lebanon, and Hemming), Sec.; Fox, S.D.; Jessett, J.D.; Hiscox, acting J.; Walls, D.C.; Kent.

A.W.S.; B. Sharp, P.M.; Gilbert, P.G. Tyler, Tyler, Bro. Wilson, P.M. (Etonian), was a visitor. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, initiated Mr. Julius Schmitz into the mysteries of the Order, the ceremony being well performed. The I.P.M., having by permission of the W.M. assumed the chair, then raised Bros. Dr. Hill, Finch, Murphy, and Errington to the degree of M.M.'s effectively. Several minor matters having been disposed of, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to a collation, which was well catered for by Bro. Murphy. Upon the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave the following toasts, neatly prefaced by a few apropos remarks: "The Queen and Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The Pro and Deputy G. Masters, and the rest of the G. Officers, Past and Present," "The M.W.P.G.M., Colonel Burdett," "The Deputy P.G.M., Sir George Elliott, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers of Middlesex, Past and Present." This toast was coupled with the name of Bro. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D., who in reply expressed his thanks upon behalf of the distinguished brethren holding present and past Grand rank in the important Masonic Province of Middlesex. The I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," passed some very high encomiums upon the manner in which Bro. Hurst had performed for the first time as W.M. the ceremony of initiation, which effort, he (Bro. Hopwood) said, was worthy of an old P.M. In conclusion he stated that he was convinced from what he had witnessed that night that the Hemming Lodge would have no occasion to regret having elected Bro. Hurst to fulfil the duties of W.M. This toast having been well received, the W.M. briefly responded. In the course of his reply he said he was so impressed with the proud position which the brethren had elected him to fulfil, that he was determined to spare neither time nor trouble in perfecting himself in its manifold and arduous duties. "The Health of the Initiate" followed. In proposing this toast the W.M. congratulated Bro. Schmitz upon having become a member of the Craft whose proud and excellent motto was "Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth." He was sorry that the newly-admitted brother's profession would not allow of his coming very often among them, but he was sure that he would always look back with interest to the night when he was received into the ranks of the Hemming Lodge. Bro. Schmitz having suitably acknowledged the toast, the W.M. gave "The Visitors," coupled with the name of Bro. Wilson, P.M. Etonian, who had, he said, on so many occasions contributed his valuable services towards the "working" of the various ceremonies in No. 1512. This toast having been duly honoured, Bro. Wilson replied by stating that he was always ready to assist any W.M. who might have occasion to command his humble services in the Masonic ritual. He had attended the Hemming many times, and had invariably been most courteously received. In conclusion he said that whilst he continued to have the honour of an invitation to the lodge he should always feel great pleasure in aiding, to the best of his ability, the officers in the carrying out of their respective duties. "The Health of the Past Masters" followed, and was briefly responded to by Bros. Hopwood and W. Hammond. The S.W., Bro. J. Hammond, who was upon the point of leaving, requested permission to say a few words, which were to the effect that he had to apologise for not being present at the last meeting, when the W.M. had been pleased to appoint him S.W. He could only say that he was exceedingly gratified at the great honour bestowed, and hoped to merit, by attention and zeal in the discharge of his duties, the good opinion of his brethren, so that when the proper time arrived for him to solicit their suffrages for the highest position the lodge could bestow, he should be deemed sufficiently worthy for the distinction. In proposing "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary," the W.M. personally expressed his thanks to Bros. Hopwood and Hammond for the great assistance they had rendered him during the whole course of his connection with the lodge, and he believed that both the funds and general business of the lodge would be well looked after by those worthy officers. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," Bros. Hopwood, Treas., and W. Hammond, Sec., responded. The former said he was exceedingly pleased at holding the office of Treasurer to the lodge, more especially as the funds were in so flourishing a condition. He should endeavour to discharge the duties to the best of his ability, and hoped that at the conclusion of the W.M.'s year of office, he (the Treasurer), would be able to report to the brethren that he had a very handsome balance in hand. The Secretary briefly responded by stating that he also, in conjunction with the last speaker, fully appreciated the honour that had been conferred upon him, and hoped that he should always deserve such kind encomiums as he had that evening received from the W.M. In introducing "The Health of the Officers," the W.M. stated that he was pleased at being able to bear testimony to the admirable way in which the details of the lodge had been discharged by the brethren holding office, or by their substitutes, and in conclusion he expressed an opinion that the present working staff was an excellent one. This toast having been duly honoured, Bros. Hill, Jessett, Walls, and Kent replied on behalf of themselves and their absent colleagues. "The Masonic Charities" followed, coupled with the name of Bro. W. Hammond, and gave that brother an opportunity of making a powerful appeal upon behalf of those excellent institutions. He particularly called attention to the proposed expenditure by Grand Lodge of £6000, as a memorial of the M.W.G.M.'s safe return from his Indian progress, which sum, he thought, might be devoted to the building of preparatory establishments or nurseries for the joint schools, which would, he believed, be a better way of spending the money than the scheme proposed at the last Grand Lodge meeting, inasmuch as there were many more applicants for the benefits of the schools than could be possibly accommodated. In conclusion he reminded the brethren that Bro. Ockenden, who unfortunately was absent in consequence of indisposition, had been elected to represent the Hemming Lodge as Steward at the next festival of the R.M.B.I., and he hoped that the funds of the lodge in February would permit of a handsome sum being voted to head their Steward's list, which amount would, he trusted, be supplemented by many private contributions. In the intervals of the toasts and replies Bros. Hurst, W. Hammond, Jessett, Walls, Schmitz, Knowles, and others, musically entertained the brethren. The Tyler's toast at eleven closed the proceedings, and the brethren adjourned until the third Thursday in January next.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

J. Cavan, of Christ Church, 18°. The following candidates were perfected, the ceremony being admirably performed by the M.W.S., Col. the Hon. Sackville-West, viz.:—Bro. the Rev. H. Deane, B.D., of St. John's Coll., and the Apollo University Lodge, 357, proposed by the M.W.S., and seconded by Bro. Williamson; Bro. W. N. Glencross, of Exeter Coll., and the Apollo University Lodge, 357, proposed by the M.W.S., and seconded by Bro. Williamson; and Bro. O. O'Faherty Wilde, of Magdalen Coll., and Lodge 357. It was intended to have installed the M.W.S. elect (Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold, 30°) as M.W.S. for the ensuing year, but in consequence of his unavoidable absence through indisposition, the ceremony, together with the appointment of officers, was postponed until the next meeting. At the termination of the business a banquet was held at the Clarendon Hotel. The M.W.S. presided, and the proceedings were of a very gratifying and successful character.

EMULATION LODGE OF IMPROVEMENT.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. JOHN HERVEY, G. SECRETARY.

[The following appeared in our Second Edition of last week.]

The annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement was held on Friday, 24th ult., at Freemasons' Hall. There was an immense gathering on the occasion, some 600 brethren being present, many of whom were members of the lodge. Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, presided, as W.M. The officers were: Bros. J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D., S.W.; C. A. Merton, P.G.D., J.W.; W. Smallpeice, Secretary; C. C. Dumas, P.A.G.D.C., S.D.; J. A. Rucker, P.G.D., J.D., and R. Gray, P.G.D., I.G. Bro. Thos. The lodge having been opened in the Three Degrees, the working of the sections was proceeded with, and after Bro. Parkinson had worked his section the M.W. the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, was announced. On entering he was received with hearty applause, and Bro. Hervey resigned to him the seat and gavel of W.M.

By direction of Sir Albert Woods the customary salutes were given. After a short pause a magnificent silver inkstand was brought in, and placed on the reporters' table. This inkstand was intended to be presented to Bro. Hervey, who has been 30 years Treasurer of the lodge.

The testimonial consisted of a handsome silver inkstand, mounted in malachite and marble, and was designed expressly for the occasion by Bro. John Gibson, an architect well-known for his taste in decorative art. The execution of the design was by Messrs. Mappin and Webb.

The Earl of Carnarvon, who arrived shortly after the business was commenced, was loudly cheered on taking the chair. He said: Brethren—I think that I owe you perhaps an apology for interrupting, in the very midst of your interesting proceedings, this lodge, but my excuse is twofold. First of all I have extricated myself with extreme difficulty this evening from the trouble of public business, I have with difficulty snatched some ten minutes to find myself here this evening (hear, hear), and my time is so limited that after having accomplished the task which I have undertaken, I shall with great reluctance bid you farewell. And, secondly, I was desirous to be present here this evening from my high personal esteem and regard for you, our Bro. Hervey (cheers), and for the deep interest which I take in the proceedings in this hall (hear, hear). Brethren, we have met together for a doubly interesting purpose, and the great assemblage which you witness is a proof of the feelings which you entertain for our Bro. Hervey. There are few Masons in the Craft who could command such an attendance as that which I witness to-day; there are very few Masons indeed who will not be proud of the honour which such an attendance implies (cheers). Brethren, it has been my fortune to be constantly placed in business relations with your Bro. Hervey. I have known his workmanship; I have known the principles which masonically have guided him in all the advice that he has offered, in all the works that he has done. It is needless for me to say that I entertain the deepest regard for him in these capacities, and let me go further and say that I have known him now long enough to feel not only a respect for him in all our business relations, but a strong personal regard and friendship for him in the more intimate duties which Masonic life has brought about (hear). But, brethren, it is not this evening in his capacity as Grand Secretary that you have met to do him honour, and to present him with that beautiful testimonial which we have all admired. It is in his capacity as the Treasurer of the Lodge of Emulation, an office which he has held now for the almost unexampled period of, I think, some 30 years, 30 years of usefulness, 30 years of devotion to the Craft, 30 years of unblemished credit and high honour amongst his brother Masons. (Cheers.) Brethren, it is in this capacity you have met to honour him; it is in remembrance of these great services that you to-night offer him a tribute in that beautiful memorial. And, brethren, let me say, lastly, that if there be any body of Masons from whom any one may be proud to receive such an honour as this, it is the Lodge of Emulation. It is the pattern of our working—of our Masonic working. It is the motto which it boasts to set to all other parts of the Craft, and he who has held for 30 years high office and honour in that lodge stands upon a different footing from almost any Mason that I know, and the honour which that lodge does him to-night will be amongst his most vivid recollections, to the very last hour of his life. Brethren, beautiful as that testimonial is, I think the honour which this lodge does our Bro. Hervey in thus publicly marking its sense of his high character and abilities, is even a more gratifying and a higher tribute to his worth than that testimonial in silver and gold that is before us. (Hear.) Brethren, this is a time when many testimonials are given to many persons, and with many objects. We all have experience of them; and sometimes those testimonials are given somewhat indiscriminately. But this testimonial at least is given with the fullest discrimination of character, after the longest trial and ordeal to which a Mason can well be subjected. It is given with the unanimity of the lodge,—the unanimity, I will say, not merely of the lodge, but of all those numberless members outside the lodge who watch the proceedings of the Lodge of Emulation, who respect those proceedings, and who know how high a position the Treasurer of that lodge, who has held office for 30 years, must in the nature of things hold. Brethren, I have been requested to be this evening, even in this informal manner, coming as I do for a short ten minutes among you, the channel of communication between you and our Bro. Hervey. I wish that I could have found words better and worthier for the occasion; but, and our Bro. Hervey will at least feel this, that my words are words of absolute sincerity and truth (Hear, hear, and applause), and that when I present him in your name with that magnificent testimonial of your esteem he will believe me when I say that never was a testimonial given to any Mason who more deserved it than himself, and never was given with a heartier feeling of admiration, of esteem, and of affectionate regard by every single member of the lodge, and outside that lodge by every single member who knows and esteems our Bro. Hervey. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, therefore, in your name, and without further preface, I will venture to place in the hands of our Bro. Hervey—metaphorically, for physically he cannot grasp it—the testimonial by which you desire to record your appreciation of him. (Great cheering.)

Grand Secretary, in acknowledging the gift, said: My lord and brethren,—I will not waste your time by making a long speech. I will content myself with offering my hearty and sincere acknowledgments to the Stewards who have presented me with the elegant gift which you see on the table, and offer my sincere thanks to the noble lord, the Pro Grand Master, for the too flattering terms in which he has presented it. My lord, I cannot but feel deeply gratified to have received this testimonial through your hands. Much as I esteem the Lodge of Emulation, I do not know any member by whom I could have wished to have had it presented to me more willingly than by your lordship. I can assure you I feel it a very high honour you have done me by coming here for the few minutes you have been able to spare, and I thank you. My lord, I am sure I might also convey the thanks of the lodge for your coming away from those duties which we know absorb your lordship's whole time and anxiety, and from which it is difficult to tear yourself even for the few moments you have come here. The brethren will, I am sure, permit me to limit my speech to a short acknowledgment, and to thank them for the gift, and to thank his lordship for the kind and gracious manner in which he has presented it in the name of this lodge. (Cheers.)

The Pro Grand Master then rose and said: Brethren, as public business scarcely allowed me to come here, so it now claims me a most unwilling victim. But under the circumstances I have no option. I shall reinstate now in this chair our Bro. Hervey. I beg you to believe with how much regret, having accomplished this, to me, most pleasant duty, I now retire, and how sincerely I wish the conclusion to your evening may be in every way worthy of its commencement and worthy of the cause which has brought you together.

His lordship was then conducted out of the lodge amidst the same enthusiastic applause which marked his entry, and the work of the evening proceeded.

The following Sections were worked by Past Grand Officers:—

FIRST LECTURE.

4th Section by W. Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D.
5th " " " C. A. Murton, P.G.D.
6th " " " C. C. Dumas, P.A.G.D.C.
7th " " " J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.

SECOND LECTURE.

2nd Section by W. Bro. R. Grey, P.G.D.
3rd " " " H. J. P. Dumas, P.G.D.
4th " " " Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B.
5th " " " F. Fenn, P.G.D.

When the work had been finished propositions for joining the lodge were taken and the numbers were very large.

The Earl of Limerick afterwards rose, and said he trusted that the brethren and the W.M. would allow him to move a vote of thanks to the brethren who had taken part in the lectures. He must express the great pleasure it had given him to see the lectures so admirably worked. In the Lodge of Emulation good working was looked for, but he had never expected to see such accurate knowledge of the lectures as he had seen that evening.

Col. Burdett seconded the motion, and said he was much gratified by what he had witnessed. He agreed with what the Prov. Grand Master had said, and he would take that opportunity of thanking the brethren who had done the work for their performances that evening.

The motion was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. Hervey said, I thank you, Lord Limerick, Colonel Burdett, and brethren, on behalf of the brethren who have taken part in the work this evening, for your kind appreciation of their exertions. I, as an old Mason, certainly feel proud that the Emulation still keeps up its character in the way it has done, and I think that if brethren imagine for one moment that the Past Grand Officers of England are rather ornamental than useful, they will be agreeably surprised this evening to find that there are so many Past Grand Officers who can still work in the manner the officers have worked this evening. I thank you most sincerely for the compliment you have paid the workers this evening, and I trust that those who are present will go away convinced that the Emulation Lodge can turn out some good pupils, and that to some extent they do their work properly. (Applause.)

The lodge was thereupon closed in the three degrees, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet at Freemasons' Tavern, which was presided over by the Earl of Limerick.

The toasts of "The Queen and Craft" having been duly honoured, the W.M. rose and proposed the next toast, namely, "The Health of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England. He said the brethren all knew the interest His Royal Highness took in the Craft, and that he was always ready to be amongst them, unless the pressing exigencies of his high position compelled him to be elsewhere. He might point out in support of the statement that it was only at the beginning of this week that His Royal Highness was taking part in the important duty of installing the Provincial Grand Master of Norfolk. (Hear.) They all joined in the thankfulness at his safe return to his country, and he had no doubt that in a short time the Craft would perpetuate in some substantial form its thankfulness at that return. (Applause.) The W.M. next proposed "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present." They must all have regretted that the Pro Grand Master could not remain longer with them to-night, at the same time they must be pleased that he should have been present earlier in the evening to perform the duty of presenting the testimonial to their worthy Bro. Hervey. They would also be prepared to recognise the ability with which the D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, performed his duties, not only in that office, but as Prov. G. Master of one of the largest provinces in the country. (Hear hear.) They had also several Grand Officers present, and it had been remarked earlier in the evening, that they were worthy of the position they occupied (cheers) in consequence of the accuracy with which they discharged the important duties they had undertaken. They had also amongst them a brother who was junior of some of the Grand Officers, yet promised to emulate them in zeal and diligence. He alluded to Bro. Lord Donoughmore, S.G.W., whose name he coupled with the toast. (Cheers.)

Bro. Lord Donoughmore, in reply, said he must naturally be very much flattered and gratified at the concluding observations of the last speaker, but he felt it would be more in accordance with the feelings of the brethren if he addressed himself now to the preliminary subjects which had been dealt with. He felt he could say something peculiarly useful upon those points, because he happened to know from personal experience that the regret which had been felt at the inability of the Pro Grand Master to remain longer than he did was a matter of the greatest regret. He had frequently expressed during the past three or four days his regret that the pressure of business would render it impossible to remain longer than to present the testimonial, and it was very gratifying to the Earl of Carnarvon that he had been enabled to do this. The other Grand Officers were ever most efficient, and he had this evening from some of them obtained much valuable instruction. Personally he could only say that he felt very proud that his name had been associated with the toast. (Cheers.)

The Chairman in proposing the toast of the evening, said: Brethren, I have to propose to you, "Success to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement," connected with the name of our Bro. Hervey. (Applause.) I think, brethren, it is impossible to overestimate the influence which the Emulation Lodge has had throughout the Craft. Its influence is felt far and wide in promoting accuracy of ritual, and its name is known not only throughout the United Kingdom but far and wide wherever the name of Masonry is known, and I might also say that hardly less known than the Lodge of Emulation is the name of our Bro. Hervey. (Hear hear.) It is difficult, brethren, to speak of a brother in his presence; either one says things which appear merely coming from the lip and not from the heart; or else one goes at too great a length into those qualities which we know one possessed, but which we cannot adequately do justice to in a speech. I will only say this, that I believe that in drinking his health, and coupling with that, success to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement; we drink to the health of the eminent Mason and the noble and true-hearted gentleman. (Applause.)

The toast having been drunk with the greatest enthusiasm,

Bro. Hervey rose to reply. He said: I mentioned to Col. Burdett just now that I thought I must be a very modest man, or I should be altogether spoiled; and I now feel it, my lord, because after the eulogies which the Pro Grand Master was good enough to pass upon me in the lodge, and you, sir, have now endorsed in your speech in proposing "Success to the Emulation Lodge," I feel that associating my name as you have done with it, and in the terms which you have used, are really too flattering and too eulogistic, at any rate, for anybody who is, like myself, a modest man. With regard to the toast you have proposed, "Success to the Emulation Lodge," I am proud always to be associated with that toast, because I believe the Emulation Lodge does good service to the Craft, and it shows, brethren, what is necessary to be done as far as regards the ritual of the Craft; it shows that they must study if they wish to carry out the duties which they have undertaken to perform; and I think no brother ought to undertake duties which he is not prepared to perform. If those duties are not worth studying for, if a brother wishes to bring his lodge to a dead lock, then let him take the office and not perform the duties: but if he wishes to sustain the credit of the Craft, then he ought to study at any rate for the office of which he undertakes to fulfil the duties, so that the Master may not be at fault and that the lodge may not be damaged by his teaching. So I thank you most cordially in the name of the Emulation

Lodge of Improvement for the kind manner in which you have proposed its success. I am sure all those who worked to-night are desirous of rendering all they can to its success; I am sure that there will be no lack on their part to undertake any duties which they might be called upon to perform to support its credit and to increase its renown—according to you, my lord, it is not necessary—but to support it there must be something more done than merely eulogising it as to what it does; and that is done by men who now take the burden of the day—by such men as Bro. Fenn. (Great applause.) I am proud to think you recognize the services Bro. Fenn has rendered to this lodge; I am glad to find by the cheers which just now issued all round the room that these services are appreciated. There is, my lord, another brother, the Secretary (applause), who has carried out duties which are very onerous, because the duties of Secretary to a lodge like this are not performed like the duties of an ordinary lodge; they necessitate attendance on 51 or 52 meetings a year, and they also necessitate a great amount of attention and accuracy in the accounts of the lodge (applause). Now, sir, these are the officers upon whom the credit of the lodge now depends, as to myself I cannot now give that patient attention to the duties of the lodge which I formerly did, but the brethren are kind enough to make allowance for my constant absences, and although I am Treasurer in name, sir, I am not Treasurer in fact. I thank you most cordially for having coupled my name with this toast; I thank you on the part of the lodge for having come here to preside, and I trust many years to come whatever the position of the lodge may be, whether the number of its members be great or small, we shall maintain the same character for work as we now possess. (Applause.)

Bro. Col. Burdett proposed "The Health of the Earl of Limerick," who, he said, took every opportunity of coming amongst the brethren and advancing the interests of the fraternity. He was so often amongst the brethren that they almost knew him personally, and he called upon the brethren to drink to the honour of one who was always ready to lend assistance wherever his services might be required.

Bro. the Earl of Limerick thanked the brethren very heartily for the way they had received the toast. He assured them he esteemed it a very great honour to be present to-night, and see the working of the Emulation Lodge. He regretted that the post he now occupied was not filled by the Pro Grand Master, but he was glad to do anything to join in bearing testimony to the work of Bro. Hervey.

Bro. Tomkins, Grand Treasurer, gave "The Lodge of Union," and said he was sure that nothing would please that lodge more than to observe the prosperity of the Emulation, and to observe the mark of respect which had that day been shown towards an eminent Mason (cheers). He had great pleasure in coupling with the toast the name of Bro. Birch, W.M.

Bro. Birch acknowledged the compliment, and said it was given to but few lodges to have so strong a child as the Lodge of Emulation. (Cheers.)

Bro. Hervey apologised for again addressing the brethren, but he was sure they could all wish "Success to Sister Lodges of Instruction," who, like themselves, were doing the most they could to place the working of the Craft in this great metropolis upon a satisfactory footing, by which means, and by teaching members of the various lodges how to perform their duties, the interest of the Craft must in the result be advanced. (Cheers.)

Bro. Muggeridge replied, and expressed the pleasure he had experienced in witnessing the work to-night, and also at the excellent Masonic feeling which generally existed amongst lodges of instruction. (Cheers.)

The Rev. J. E. Cox, D.D., P.G.C., proposed "Success to the Masonic Institutions." They had heard in the working of the lodge a definition of faith, hope, and charity, and he wished that could be circulated throughout the length and breadth of the world, that those outside the Craft might be able to read, mark, and digest the beautiful precepts which were thereby inculcated. To his mind, if spread abroad they would do more good than many hundred sermons preached Sunday after Sunday, and certainly they would be the means of showing those who were the avowed enemies of the Craft under the pretext of favouring religion, that they knew nothing of the great principles or truths on which the Order was founded. After passing a high eulogy on the Charitable Institutions of the Order the rev. brother concluded by proposing "Success to them."

Bro. Terry replied. He saw congregated around the table that evening some of the most distinguished supporters of the Masonic Charities. As they had had such excellent support he might venture to assert that they deserved as much support as could be extended to them. When he mentioned one fact that during the past year the largest sum that had ever yet been contributed had been raised in support of the three Masonic Institutions, he thought that was evidence sufficient to show that the Craft of the present day were capable of performing their duties. With respect to the Benevolent Institution with which he was more immediately connected he might mention that H.R.H. Prince Leopold, P.G.M. of Oxfordshire, would preside at its festival in February next. (Applause.) On that occasion if any of the brethren or the Grand Officers wished to avail themselves of the privilege and opportunity of accepting the position of Steward, and supporting His Royal Highness, he would advise them to do so. An enormous increase in the Institutions had accrued during the last four or five years, and the large demand made upon their funds justified the brethren in supporting them very liberally.

The Earl of Donoughmore then proposed "The Health of the Brethren who had worked the Sections," expressing the gratification he had felt at what he had witnessed, and coupled the names of Bro. Parkinson and Bro. Fenn with the toast.

Bro. Parkinson, in reply, said he was very glad to have rendered a service that evening, and that all the working brethren were thankful for the recognition accorded to them. They would always refer with pride and satisfaction to the proceedings of that evening, and they rejoiced that they had the opportunity not only of assisting at that magnificent demonstration, but testifying by their attendance to the personal esteem and regard for the unobtrusive excellences of the Grand Secretary.

The toast of "The Stewards" was then proposed, to which Bro. Smallpiece responded, and the proceedings terminated with the Tyler's toast.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF NEW MASONIC BUILDINGS AT CHACEWATER.

"Boscawen" Lodge (No 669), Chacewater, was constituted just nineteen years ago (1857), and notwithstanding that the staple industry of the locality has greatly depreciated since that time, Masonry has continued to flourish. Indeed, looking at all the circumstances, its progress has been more than one might have reasonably expected, and is therefore an apt and happy illustration of the truth of those lines so well known to Freemasons:—

"Thus, midst the ruin of revolving years,
Unhurt, unchanged, Freemasonry appears;
Its towers and monuments may fade away,
Its truth and social life never shall decay."

As the immediate consequence of the prosperity of the lodge the room in which the meetings have hitherto been held has at length been found to be altogether inadequate to the requirements, and in some respects very inconvenient. The lodge is, in fact, the largest in the county, there being 152 members on the roll. The old building was situated at the rear of Bro. Nicholas Paull's "Britannia" Hotel, and in addition to being utilised by the members of the Masonic Craft, was also used by the Oddfellows of the district. Not only was its dimensions too small, but there was another grievance—the Freemasons thought it would be to their advantage to have a room exclusively for themselves. When the building now in course of erection is finished not only will their wishes be realised, but the inhabitants generally will have reason to feel thankful for the reason that in conjunction with the Masonic room there will be another room which will be let for general purposes—concerts, entertainments, and the like. The dimensions of the structure are 30 feet by 25 feet—ground plan. It will consist of a lobby and the room last referred to on the ground floor, whilst the upper portion will consist of a lavatory, and a room entirely for the use of the Freemasons, which will be 37 feet long and 24 feet wide. The contractors are Messrs. Truran, of Blackwater, and the whole work will be under the supervision of Bro. C. Rapson, W.M., architect.

Monday last was the day appointed to lay the foundation stone, and a large number of brethren were present to witness and take part in the interesting ceremony. Among the members of the lodge present were Bros. C. Rapson, W.M.; Lee, S.W.; Pascoe, J.W.; W. T. Davey, P.M.; G. L. Church, P.M.; Chap; S. G. Moyle, P.M.; J. Ninness, P.M., Treasurer; W. Bray, P.M.; J. Paull, P.M., Secretary; J. Edwards, Assist. Sec; J. Hall, P.M.; S. Michell, P.M.; Holman, P.M.; J. Chegwidden, P.M.; Jackson, S.D.; J. F. Hooper, J.D.; J. H. Hodge; Lean, Tyler; O. Matthews, P.M.; W. G. Jeffrey; C. Chapell; W. Opie; J. Penrose; P. Skewes; W. M. Matthews, and J. Buckingham. Among the visiting brethren were Bros. E. T. Carlyon, P.M., P.G. Sec., J. Tregoning, 331, and T. Michell (Tregullow Lodge). The proceedings commenced with a procession made up in the usual order.

Having arrived on the spot where the building is in course of erection—which is the same as that where the old lodge room stood with the addition of extra ground—the ceremony of laying the foundation stone commenced with Bro G. L. Church invoking the blessing of the Great Architect of the Universe on their labours. The work was then proceeded with, those taking part therein being Bros. Hall, W. T. Davey, J. Holman, S. Moyle (who took the leading part in the ceremony and who, in return for the generous way in which he first acted in order to secure a site for the building, was presented by the W.M. with a silver trowel), Paul, Ninness, and Church. Bro. Hodge was to have taken part in the proceedings, but was unavoidably prevented from attending through professional engagements. The stone having been declared by Bro. Moyle "to be duly laid," Bro. the Rev. G. L. Church delivered a brief but very impressive address on the principles of Freemasonry. He commenced by referring to its antiquity, and remarked that Masonry could be traced from the erection of the temple by King Solomon. He had not the slightest doubt that it existed anterior to that, as he gathered from a little publication he was then taking in (which contained an account of what was being done in Palestine to find out the foundation stone of Solomon's temple) that already stones had been discovered with Freemasons' marks upon them. There could be no doubt that Freemasonry dated from an early period, and it was, in fact, one of the oldest civil associations of the universe. Coming to its objects the speaker said that primarily Freemasons were made use of simply for the purpose of constructing and making buildings, especially cathedrals, churches, and other places of public meeting. They were then called operative Masons, but they were so useful and valuable as a body that they enrolled themselves under one great charter about 16 or 170 years ago in England and became speculative Masons; that was to say, they ceased to be operative Masons. The principle was pure and holy.

They never opened a lodge without having before them an open Bible, and they dared not admit into their lodges an infidel or atheist. In short, a man must believe in God or he could not become a Freemason. That was their fundamental principle. Then they fostered, enlarged, and taught those great principles, which entered into the heart of man in all civilized states. First they were taught to remember their duty to God, then their duty to their neighbours, and also their duty to themselves. He had said that they never opened their lodge without first opening God's blessed word; he had said next that their next bounden duty was to do to their neighbours as they would have them do unto themselves; and, in the third place, they had a most important duty—their duty to themselves to conduct themselves in such a manner as to be an example to those who were not members of the Craft. Time would not permit of his enlarging upon the blessings of Freemasonry, but he must speak of the one corner stone that was used every day—he meant charity; charity to their own brethren first, and charity to strangers afterwards. He did not think—nay, he would go further—he must say that there was not a civil society in England which did so much for the fatherless and widows as did Freemasons. They had asylums for the aged, school, for the young, and homes for those who stood in need of them. Such, then, being the principles of Freemasonry could they wonder at its being so largely extended? In former days it was a secret society, and they were proud of their secrets. A Mason would not be a Mason if it were not for those secrets. In conclusion, Bro. Church congratulated Bro. Moyle upon having had the honour of laying the foundation stone of the new lodge at Chacewater. They were at present the highest in numbers in the whole province of Cornwall, and he was vain enough to tell them that he had the honour of holding one of the highest offices in the province, for which honour he was indebted to his predecessors and those who had worked to maintain the honour and integrity of that lodge. He hoped that this was the first of many meetings to be held on that spot.

The brethren then adjourned to their quarters (pro tem.) at the "Britannia" Hotel, where a banquet was provided, which was served up in such a manner as to reflect the highest credit on the host, Bro. Paull, who, with his staff, was unremitting in his efforts to secure the comfort of the brethren. The chair was occupied by Bro. C. Rapson, W.M.

The preliminary toasts having been disposed of, the Chairman proposed "The Health of the Earl of Mount Edgumbe (Provincial Grand Master), and the other Officers of the Grand Lodge of Cornwall."

Bro. E. T. Carlyon, whose name had been coupled with the toast, first rose to reply. He observed that he was most highly gratified with what he had seen there that day, and from what he had heard he had no doubt that they would have a nice lodge-room, and one suitable for all their purposes. He felt sure, too, that the Earl of Mount Edgumbe would be highly gratified to hear what had taken place at Chacewater that day, because he knew full well that his lordship took the deepest interest in all that tended to the good of Freemasonry, all that enabled it to develop itself in a healthy manner, and he was quite sure that what they had that day inaugurated would tend materially to that end. (Applause.) He believed they had commenced that day a really good work, and he must say he was also highly gratified to hear the address of his dearly-beloved Bro. Church. He could truly say that he never heard a better address on a similar occasion. (Loud applause.) He never heard, Bro. Church deliver himself so well, and perform an onerous duty so well as he did that day (Hear, hear.) He looked forward with interest to the time when they might come and meet them in their new lodge-room and take part in the ceremony of consecrating the building. Further, he was certain that Lord Mount Edgumbe would come on that occasion with the greatest possible pleasure. (Applause.)

Bro. Church, who had been called upon, also returned thanks, and in the course of an excellent speech, he said that he must admit that he really felt proud of the offices he had held—first as Provincial Grand Chaplain, and then as Senior Grand Warden. This honour was due to the lodge and not to him personally, inasmuch as it was an honour that became him as one of the old members of "Boscawen" Lodge to deserve. They wanted to let everybody outside know that Freemasonry was not an ephemeral or nonsensical institution, but was in fact the oldest in the land, and was attended with the greatest blessings to all connected with it. (Applause.) As he had before remarked that day, it was an institution founded on the principle of God's Word, and therefore its progress was not to be wondered at.

Bro. W. P. Davey gave "The Health of the W.M., Bro. Rapson," whom he warmly eulogised.

Bro. Rapson, in returning thanks, remarked that he was always willing to do his utmost for the benefit of Freemasonry, for the reason that he felt that it was a good and noble institution. Since he was first initiated in that lodge—about ten years ago—he had always made it a practice to attend the meetings if possible, as he was of opinion that the more they were educated in its principles, the more they would appreciate it.

The toast of "The Visitors" was proposed by Bro. John Paull, and responded to by Bps. E. T. Carlyon, Michell, and John Tregoning. The latter observed that it afforded him very great pleasure to be present. There was only one thing he had to regret in Masonry, and that was that he did not become a brother earlier in life.

Bro. Church then gave "The Senior Past Master of the Lodge, Bro. Samuel Moyle," and in doing so the rev. gentleman said that very many years ago Bro. Moyle used his influence to encourage Masonry, and he had been mainly instrumental in giving them a site on which to erect their lodge-rooms. (Applause.) Bro. Moyle had always been anxious to have a lodge-room, and he (Bro. Church) had not the slightest hesitation in saying that the brethren greatly appreciated the offer, which was one that could not be exceeded in the county of Cornwall; and as he felt sanguine it would be a benefit to the members of the Craft, so he trusted it would be profitable to Bro. Moyle from a pecuniary point of view. (Applause.)

Bro. Moyle, in response, said he felt rather proud when he remembered that he was the first to introduce Freemasonry at Chacewater. That was 19 years ago, and up to the present time 125 members had enrolled themselves. Then, too, he was happy to say he was in a position to provide accommodation for the brethren, and it was still more gratifying to him to know that that day he had laid down the corner stone of a second lodge-room. (Applause.) He trusted that, in passing the building over to Bro. Rapson—who was both skillful and energetic—it would be carried out in a satisfactory manner, agreeable to himself and to the members generally. (Applause.)

Bro. Lee, in suitable terms, proposed "The Building Committee," and

Bro. Church, in returning thanks, expressed a hope that they would pull together harmoniously, and do their utmost to make the temple, they were now erecting an honour to the Craft generally as well as to themselves.

Bro. Ninness said he had always taken the deepest interest in the movement they had in hand, and he sincerely hoped the work would be brought to a satisfactory conclusion. They had had some difficulties placed in the way, but they had been overcome because their hearts were in the matter. They felt determined to succeed if they could, and from what had taken place that day it would seem as if they were to succeed in raising a building suitable for the purposes of the lodge. He took a profound interest in Freemasonry, and would be second to none in the opinion he held of it. Bro. Ninness dilated on its great object—charity, and spoke of the great influence Freemasonry exercised over men's actions. He concluded with some remarks respecting the furnishing of the lodge-room, and mentioned that three or four most important jewels had already been offered.

Bro. Rapson also briefly replied; and one or two other toasts terminated a very pleasant gathering.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND

The Annual General Communication of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Leicestershire and Rutland took place at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Wednesday the 22nd ult., the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl Ferrers, presiding, supported by the R.W.P.P.G.M., W. Bro. Kelly, W. Bro. the Rev. W. Langley, P.P.S.G.W., acting as D.P.G.M., and many present and past Provincial Grand Officers, together with representatives from every Lodge in the province. Amongst the visitors were Bros. J. Terry, Sec. R.M.B. Institution, and Richard Allen, P.P.S.G.W., Notts., one of the founders of the John of Gaunt Lodge, Leicester.

The John of Gaunt Lodge having been previously opened, the Provincial Grand Lodge entered, the R.W.P.G.M. being received with the customary honours, and the usual business of Provincial Grand Lodge was transacted.

The reply of the M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales, to the Provincial Grand Master, officers, and brethren of this province, thanking them for their address of welcome, and for their congratulations on His Royal Highness's safe return from India, was read.

A very favourable Report of the Committee of General Purposes, on the condition of the Provincial Funds, the state of Masonry in the province, and the increase in the number of members during the past year, was presented, after which the proposed bye-laws for the establishment of a Provincial Benevolent Fund, and the formation of a Charity Committee; and certain amendments of existing Provincial Bye-laws, proposed at the previous meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge, were read and confirmed.

Bro. W. Beaumont Smith, P.M., was unanimously re-elected to the office of Provincial Grand Treasurer, a post which he has most ably filled for several years past.

The investment by the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, of his Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year then took place.

A further sum was transferred from the General Fund of Provincial Grand Lodge as a foundation for the intended Provincial Benevolent Fund.

Adopting a recommendation of the Committee of General Purposes, it was resolved that the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys should be the Charity to receive the special support of the province during the ensuing year, and Bro. S. S. Partridge was appointed to represent the Provincial Grand Lodge at the next Boys' School Festival, the sum of ten guineas being at the same time voted as a donation to the Charity.

Apologies for absence from the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Sir H. St. John Holford, who was in Scotland, and from several other Provincial Grand Officers, having been read, the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in due form, and the proceedings terminated with a banquet, at which the R.W. Provincial Grand Master presided.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of Subscribers to this Institution met on Thursday afternoon at the Library, Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Thos. W. White in the chair. There were likewise present Bros. F. Adlard, H. Potter, Major Finney, H. G. Warren, H. Browne, H. Massey (“Freemason”), A. H. Tattershall, Jesse Turner, F. G. Baker, Lieut.-Col. Peters, Robt. B. Webster, Thos. Massa, and R. W. Little, Sec.

There was a long list of minutes of committees, held between the last meeting of the General Committee and the present, read, consisting of the House and Audit Committees, and the Special and Building Committees, and the Court as to the office of Collector.

One petition for the purchase of a child into the school was rejected, the stepfather, who petitioned, and the mother being in a position to support the child. A sister of this girl is already in the school by election.

Seven petitions were received and passed.

The report of the Special Committee on the duties and office of Collector to the Institution was read by the Secretary and received. The Committee confirmed the report, and appointed the Junior Clerk's salary at £50 in accordance with the recommendation in the report.

Notice of motion was given for raising the Senior Clerk's salary to £140 a year, and fixing the Junior Clerk's at £50.

Bro. H. G. Warren suggested an increase in the amount of the securities, on account of the very large increase in the amount of subscriptions.

This was supported by Bro. Jessie Turner and several brethren, and a discussion thereupon ensued.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB COMPANY (LIMITED.)

A Meeting of the Shareholders was held on the 29th November 1876, at the London Masonic Club, Queen Victoria Street, Bro. T. J. Smith, the Chairman of the Board of Directors, presiding.

The Secretary having read the notice convening the meeting.

The Chairman then proposed the adoption of the Report and Balance Sheet. The Report stated that “After very considerable difficulty the Directors succeeded in obtaining premises at No. 101, Queen Victoria Street, which, being in course of erection, could be completed in a manner to adapt them for the purposes of a Club.”

“The Club was opened on the 16th July last under the presidency of the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, and from that time to this it has been well attended, and its comforts appreciated by its Members.”

“The Directors in the first instance allotted only such a number of shares as in their opinion would be sufficient to test the willingness of their brother Masons to support a Masonic Club in London, but having met with so much encouragement and support from the Freemasons in London and the Provinces, they felt quite justified in extending their operations, and in trusting to their Masonic brethren to subscribe for any further shares which it might become desirable to issue.”

“The Directors now contemplate a further issue of 1,000 shares to enable them to clear off outstanding liabilities.”

“Since the Balance Sheet has been made out, the Directors and a few of the Members of the Club have subscribed for 250 shares, and it is anticipated that before long the remaining shares will be taken up by the Members.”

“The present income of the Club from subscriptions and profits upon provisions, is at the rate of £2,485 4s. per annum, and if the subscriptions increase as they have done during the last six weeks, there will be an additional income of £1,250 by the 30th of next September, which without allowing for any increase on the profits from the sale of provisions, will yield an annual sum of £3,735 4s. The working expenses of the Club including servants wages, rent, taxes, coal, gas, &c., are estimated to amount to £3,000 per annum—thus leaving a sum of £735 4s. profit, which would be sufficient to pay 7½ per cent. on the whole of the required capital, and leave a surplus for a Reserve Fund.”

After the usual vote of thanks to the Chairman, the meeting closed.

A report of the benefit of the Printers' Dramatic Pension Fund has lately been issued by the Committee of Management, which shews a very successful termination of their labours. It appears that after paying all expenses, there is a clear balance of £100. The success obtained was mainly owing to the untiring and invaluable exertions of Bro. George J. Dawson.

CHARLES HARBORD, BARON SUFFIELD.

This nobleman, who has just been installed as Grand Master of the Freemasons of the Province of Norfolk, is a son of the third Baron Suffield, the title having been created in 1786. He was born at Gunton Park, Norfolk, in 1830, and married in 1854 the daughter of the late Henry Baring, Esq. (in 1873 Lady Suffield was appointed a lady of the bedchamber to the Princess of Wales), and succeeded to the title on the death of his half-brother in 1853. He formerly held a commission in the 7th Dragoon, but retired in 1852, and is now Lieutenant-Colonel 13th Norfolk Rifle Volunteers, and Lieutenant-Colonel of the Norfolk Artillery Militia. He is a Deputy-Lieutenant of the county of Norfolk, was a Lord in Waiting to Her Majesty the Queen from 1868 to 1872, and is now Lord of the Bedchamber to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. His lordship's heir is his eldest son, Charles, who was born in June, 1855, and is a Lieutenant in the Scots Fusilier Guards. The first peer, who represented Norwich in Parliament for some years, was son of Sir William Mordey, Bart., K.B., who in 1842 relinquished his paternal surname for that of his maternal grandfather, Harbord. — “Graphic.”

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Winter Half-yearly Communication of the Grand Lodge of Mark-Master Masons of England and Wales will be held on Tuesday next at Freemasons' Tavern, Great-Queen-street. Grand Lodge will be opened at 5 p.m., the banquet to be provided at 7 o'clock.

The Lord Chancellor has ordered that the County Courts are to be closed on Dec. 26 and 27.

The William Preston Lodge of Instruction, No. 766, (the sanction for which was unanimously granted a short time back), meets every Friday evening, at eight o'clock, at the Feathers Tavern, Upper George-street, Edgware-road.

THE FREEMASONS' TAVERN.—The management of this well-known establishment, in Great Queen-street, has, within the past few weeks, changed hands, and promise, under the present spirited and liberal directorship, not only to hold its own, but largely extend the field of operation. We note, apart from its Masonic gatherings, four hundred members and friends of the Licensed Victuallers' Protection Society, assembled on Wednesday, and upwards of five hundred of the Scottish Corporation, under the Chairmanship of the Marquis of Hartington, R.W. Provincial Grand Master for Derbyshire, availed themselves, on Thursday, of the admirable accommodation the Freemasons' Tavern affords. Under the able management of Bro. E. Dawkins, the comfort and convenience of visitors and brethren will receive the attention that justifies the fullest confidence.

Sermons were preached on Sunday last on behalf of the Poor Clergy Relief Corporation, in the Parish Church, Streatham, that in the morning by Bro. the Rev. Dr. Cox, and in the afternoon by Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplains.

An express train conveying a large number of brethren from Manchester, to attend the Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons, meeting at Gainsborough, on Wednesday last, while passing through Worksop, at the rate of 50 miles an hour, the crank of the engine broke, and, after going a short distance, some of the wheels left the line, but, most fortunately, the pitching stones at the crossing where this took place turned the engine again on to the line, and it ran as far as Norton-wood, a distance of two miles. Another engine from Worksop took the passengers to their destination. The line was blocked for several hours before the break-down gang from Retford could remove the disabled engine.

Bros. B. Head and W. Pass have consented to act as trustees of the fund now being raised for T. J. Mace.

The next meeting of the United Strength Lodge, No. 228, will be held on Tuesday, the 12th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. After this meeting, the lodge will be held regularly at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street.

A Grand Evening Concert will be given on Thursday week, the 14th inst., at the Bow and Bromley Institute, in aid of the three Masonic Charitable Institutions. The concert, it is announced, will be under the immediate patronage of the three Secretaries, Bros. F. Binckes, R. Wentworth Little and Terry. Several acknowledged eminent artists have promised to appear.

Subscriptions are invited towards a fund which is being raised to enable an old Masonic pupil to enter Holy Orders. He was silver medallist and Maybury prizeman of the Boys' School, and after leaving studied at King's College for three years, gaining several first-class certificates and the College prize for Divinity, and was elected an associate of that college.

MARK MASONRY.—A lodge of Mark Masons will shortly be opened in Chester.

Bro. Colonel Stillwell has resigned the command of the First City of London Engineers, an office held by him for many years.

We (“Whitehall Review”) are informed that Lord Charles Beresford has no intention of retiring from the representation of Waterford, despite all that has been said to the contrary.

Tuesdays “Gazette” announces that her Majesty in Council has been pleased to declare the Most Noble John Winston, Duke of Marlborough, Lieutenant-General and General-Governor of that part of the United Kingdom called Ireland.

THE CONGRESS OF LAUSANNE.

REPORT BY THE GRAND COLLEGE OF RITES TO THE COUNCIL OF THE ORDER UPON THE LAUSANNE CONGRESS.

Translated from the last Bulletin of the Grand Orient of France by Dr. J. T. LOTH, Representative of the Grand Orient of France at the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

Very dear Brethren,

At your meeting of 11th December, 1875, you sent the memorandum, published by the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite, under No. 45 (3rd quarter of 1875), for examination by the Grand College of Rites.

That collection contains the treaty of union, alliance and confederation of the Supreme Councils of the Scottish Rite, assembled to the number of eleven in a Congress at Lausanne, on the 6th September, 1875.

The 18th article of this document, to which the Council of the Order specially calls the attention of the Grand College, regulates the relations existing between the Supreme Councils on the one hand, and the various Masonic bodies and brethren subject to other authorities on the other.

It runs thus:—

Art 18.—1. The confederate Supreme Councils are empowered, after due declaration made, to continue friendly relations with certain Masonic bodies, even though these be not regularly recognised, provided they have been established prior to the present convention.

2. This understanding between a Confederate Supreme Council and other Masonic bodies established within its jurisdiction, is in no wise binding on the other members of the Confederation.

3. All Masonic bodies foreign to the Scottish Institution, not recognising the Supreme Council of their country, are not admitted to relations of any kind with the Confederate Supreme Councils.

4. Degrees similar to those of the Scottish Institution, above the Master's grade, conferred by a local Masonic body, are not recognised by the Confederate Supreme Councils. Consequently brethren dependent upon another Masonic power are only admitted into Scotch lodges up to and inclusive of the grade of Master, and only within the limit of jurisdiction of each of the Confederate Supreme Councils.

5. Masons belonging to bodies not regularly recognised can only enjoy the privileges reserved for members forming part of the confederation by placing themselves under the authority of the Scotch Supreme Council, constituted for the territory wherein they are settled, and by obtaining due recognition of their Masonic title from the Third Degree upwards.

Thus you see, very dear brethren, not only is the Grand Orient of France denied the right to confer the high degrees of Scottish Masonry, and its Masons the legitimacy of their possession of these degrees, but besides this limits are traced beyond which even their Master's degree may be disputed, and that, forsooth, if it is agreed to maintain friendly relations with the Grand Orient, always, however, after declaration previously made, care is taken to stipulate that other members of the confederation are in no wise committed thereto.

We are shocked by such aggression, and may well ask, on reading the resolutions of the Lausanne Congress—which is the greater—the ignorance, from a historic point of view, displayed by the movers or the unbrotherly spirit that inspired those resolutions?

Perhaps, brethren, it would be becoming in the Grand Orient of France, strong in its right, to reply to this manifesto of the Lausanne Congress simply by a disdainful silence. But we cannot hide from ourselves that the resolutions brought forward, and which have been published and made known to Freemasonry at large, have excited our lodges and our Masons, who see in them an infringement of their rights, and look to you for measures of protection. On the other hand it must indeed be acknowledged that present Masonic generations, too indifferent to our history, have not perhaps a sufficiently exact notion of the origin and affiliation of the Scottish Rite, and might allow themselves to be assailed by doubt in presence of the bold affirmations of the Lausanne Congress. It is, therefore, of importance to reduce to their just value the pretensions of the Confederate Supreme Councils, and with this object the Grand College of Rites asks your authority to publish the historical abstract annexed to this report, and for which we are indebted to one of its members, Bro. Brémond. That publication will, we hope, suffice to show how little foundation there is for the claim advanced by the Supreme Council of France to the exclusive possession of the Scottish Rite in France.

The mission entrusted to us by the Council of the Order would be imperfectly fulfilled were we to limit ourselves to the publication of that document, and we deem it not out of place here to recall to mind the state of affairs in France, from a Masonic point of view, prior to the appearance of the Lausanne Congress manifesto. To this end it is advisable to sum up the organisation of the Grand Orient of France. Art. 2 of its General Statutes prescribes:—

"Masonry comprehends lodge meetings of different degrees, under the denominations of lodges, chapters, and councils. The Central Power has, moreover, a superior lodge meeting, which under the title of Grand College of Rites, Supreme Council for France and the French possessions, has alone the right of initiating to the highest degrees of Masonry."

In accordance with the terms of this article and the universality of our legislation, the lodges of the Grand Orient confer the three First Degrees (App., Comp., and Master); the chapters confer the grades of Capitulary (Chapter) Masonry, from the 4th to the 18th Degrees (Rose Croix); the councils confer the philosophic grades, from the 19th to the 30th Degrees (Kn., Kad.); finally, the Grand College of Rites initiates to the 31st, 32nd, and 33rd and last degree of Scottish Masonry.

On its side, the Supreme Council of France practises the same rite, possesses lodges of identical degrees; and Masons dependent on both powers have between themselves cordial and fraternal relations conformable, in all respects, to the principles of Freemasonry. Thrown in this midst, Art. 18 of the Lausanne treaty tends to disturb it and to upset everything by attacking at one and the same time the rights of the Grand Orient of France, which would thus be pointed out as an usurper of the Scottish Rite; the propriety of its philosophical and chapter lodges; and finally the legitimacy of the titles of Masons dependent on it. We know not whether the Supreme Council of France, while participating in this treaty, and perhaps calling it into existence, has well understood all its gravity; but we regret that it has not hesitated to revive a quarrel which might have been considered as extinct, and which can in no way serve the interests of Freemasonry. However, this we do know, that some among its most authoritative members deplore, in common with us, this unseemable attack, and heartily wish for conciliation and peace.

Perhaps, after all, we need not too much complain, but should even congratulate ourselves upon the possible solution, once and for all, of this vexed question of Scottish Masonry, which ever and anon recurs to bring disunion among men who ought only to be animated by the same Masonic sentiments. It was incumbent on the Grand College of Rites to inquire into the motives and object which determined the Confederate Supreme Councils to vote resolutions so little in harmony with historical facts, and so contrary to the spirit of fraternity.

These motives are plainly set forth in the text of the above-mentioned article; they consist of the Supreme Council's claim to priority in possession of the high degrees in France; claims which the Grand Orient, history in hand, has several times made good. As for the object, it is not less clearly defined in the official circular accompanying the treaty in question.

We read in this document (page 13 of the Memorandum): "We are convinced that the Supreme Councils now represented at Lausanne will adhere to the treaty of confederation; under these conditions Scottish Masonry, freely obeying one only law, and so to speak one only will, becomes an immense power."

"It alone, perhaps, is at this day in a position, by its universal organisation, to struggle advantageously against the anti-liberal spirit which menaces the legitimate conquests of modern society. An approaching convention will hold its sittings at Rome in 1878. It will certainly bring together the delegates of all the regular Supreme Councils; and should there, at that time, still exist differences of opinion, details to be settled between the Scottish powers, that convention will generalise the intimate union."

Now let us examine the consequences of these data. Up to this day Masonic dependencies have had, together with aspirations in common, an essential character of national institutions; each was justly jealous and proud of them. None had dreamt of separating the Masonic idea from the patriotic; not one of them had wished to accept laws and regulations promulgated on foreign soil; their mutual relations, though based on a communion of brotherly sentiments, were limited to a reciprocal acknowledgment of regular Masonic powers, affirmed by the interchange of accredited representatives in the name of bonds of amity by the interchange of friendly and fraternal correspondence.

Such national doctrine is affirmed by the Grand Orient of France, which, declaring itself to be French before all, has inscribed in its Constitution, Art. 2:—Freemasonry reminds all its adepts that one of their first duties, as Masons and as citizens, is to respect the laws of the country in which they dwell. The Grand Orient draws up or modifies its regulations, free from all care and untrammelled by outside pressure, and without any other pre-occupation than that of respecting the civil and political laws of its own country. On the soil of France it only recognizes as Masonic laws laws thus freely voted by the representatives of its lodges; it could not accept as such those elaborated and decreed in other lands by delegates of foreign dependencies, and which, if not to-day, perchance to-morrow, will be in contradiction with its tradition and its fundamental law.

Well now! for this eminently national doctrine the representatives of the Supreme Councils at the Congress of Lausanne appear desirous of substituting a cosmopolitan Masonic parliament, composed of delegates from different nations, voting, by a majority, laws which French Masons would be held to obey.

It is sought, in other words, to subject all dependencies to one uniform law, to a will which would thus have at its service an immense power. We are not inventing, we quote. Is that not simply, very dear brethren, the doctrine of the Jesuits which it is sought to impose upon French Freemasonry? Does not that mean the creation of a kind of Masonic pontificate, the head whereof is not yet named, but who would belong, perhaps, to a foreign nation, having its ideas, its sentiments, and who would defend its character, opinions, and interests, political or otherwise, and to whom all the Masonic groups of the globe should owe obedience, under pain of excommunication. The Grand Orient of France is too proud of its independence, too careful of its dignity, too full of respect for true Masonic principles, too faithful, in short, to the sentiments of fraternity, to follow the Confederate Supreme Councils in that path. Already, you have seen, they fulminate interdicts from which the Masons of the Grand Orient of France especially will only be released by making the amende honorable to the Masonic Papacy dreamed of by the delegates of the Lausanne Congress; for, indeed, it is nothing but a dream, that strange combination of a few Masons, misguided by we know not what pre-occupations, which, moreover, we shall not be the first to disavow. In fact, several Supreme Councils, among those even who formed, or who were called to form, part of the Lausanne Congress, have made serious reservations with regard to the resolutions passed by that Congress.

We only mention these facts to show the value and importance of this pompously-styled Congress of Lausanne, and we think that this attempt at confiscating the high degrees, and this experiment of diverting Masonry from its proper channel by turning it aside from its objects for the purpose of leading it towards perilous destinies, ought to be pointed out by the Grand Orient of France to all the Masonic powers of the world, as sources of trouble and discredit to our great family. Silence, moreover, in such a case would be tantamount to the acceptance of an accomplished fact—namely forfeiture.

Such are the general considerations suggested to the Grand College of Rites by the question you have submitted to its examination. If, then, it were allowed, the Grand College, after having demonstrated the grievous effects of the Lausanne treaty, and established truth in this question of Scottish Masonry, to clothe its opinion in the garb of a proposition, we would propose for the decision of the Council of the Order:—

1. That all official relations shall cease between the Grand Orient of France and the Supreme Councils persisting in the resolutions passed at Lausanne.

2. That, in particular, all relations between the Grand Orient of France and the Supreme Council of France, as well as between their respective lodges, do cease from this day, and shall continue so to cease until the said Supreme Council make authentic declaration that, so far as it is concerned, the resolutions passed at the Lausanne Congress do not apply to the Grand Orient of France, acknowledging the latter to be in legitimate possession of the Scottish Rite, and the consequent right of conferring its degrees from the 1st up to and inclusive of the 33rd.

3. That, this notwithstanding, Masons of our dependency remain free to frequent the lodges of the Supreme Council. That our lodges of all degrees be authorised, and, where needful, invited fraternally to receive Masons of the Supreme Council, official relations alone being prohibited between the lodges of both dependencies. That those of our brethren who may find the degrees they hold disputed by a lodge of the Supreme Council of France, or who may be only admitted thereto upon suzerainty, shall give information of same to the Grand Orient of France, when the matter shall be taken into due consideration. The Grand Orient of France, whilst maintaining its priority in possession of the Scottish Rite, does not dispute the Supreme Council's right to confer the degrees thereof; it accepts this Masonic power as a de facto government, and we shall not be contradicted when we say, that a fraternal hand has always been stretched to it. For many years these two Masonic powers lived at peace, devoting themselves, in their respective spheres, to the propagation of the principles of our institution. Why should this accord, which made the force of Masonry in France, be thus disturbed by vain questions of rites and degrees? But perhaps this conflict, afflicting, yet unsought by us, will result in a solution of a nature to satisfy all minds, and which will revive harmony between men whose all absorbing care in these days, and in face of the attacks directed against Freemasonry, should be to unite their efforts with the view of increasing its prosperity. Such is, we feel convinced, the sincere desire of all French Masons, and particularly of the Grand College of Rites, which body is full of confidence in the measures to be taken by the Council of the Order for the attainment of that object.

[A summary of this appeared in the "Masonic Magazine" for November. A translation of the "History of Freemasonry in France" also appears in the November, December, and January numbers.—Ed.]

CONSECRATION OF THE KENNARD CHAPTER AT PONTYPOOL.

On Monday, 13th November, the Kennard Chapter was consecrated at Pontypool. The ceremony was most ably performed by Captain S. G. Homfray, P.G. Standard Bearer of England and P.G.H. of Monmouthshire, assisted by Bros. L. A. Homfray, P.Z. and P. Prov. J. of Monmouthshire, as H., and Captain A. T. Perkins, H. of Avalon Chapter, Wells, and P.G.S.B. of Monmouthshire, as J. The attendance was very good. Comp. Captain Homfray afterwards installed Comp. H. Griffiths as M.E.Z., and Comp. Waite as J., but in consequence of the illness of Comp. Lloyd, his installation as H. was deferred to the next meeting. Over a dozen members were proposed for exaltation, and the chapter was closed in harmony. The companions afterwards adjourned to a banquet at the Crown Hotel, and spent a very pleasant evening.

The "Graphic" of last week might well be termed a Masonic number, containing, as it did, a full page illustration of the Installation of Lord Suffield by H.R.H., the M.W.G.M., a portrait of the former and an engraving of the third figure of the Knights Templar Lancers at the Masonic ball at Cambridge. It also gave a biography of Lord Suffield, which we copy in another column.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Much watchfulness must be exercised as winter advances and the earliest evidences of ill-health must be immediately checked and removed, or a slight illness may result in a serious malady. Relaxed and sore throat, Diphtheria, Quinsy, Throat Cough, Chronic Cough, Bronchitis, and most other pulmonary affections will be relieved by rubbing this cooling Ointment into the skin as near as practicable to the seat of the mischief. This treatment so simple and effective is admirably adapted for the removal of these diseases during infancy and youth. Old Asthmatic Invalids will derive marvellous relief from the use of Holloway's remedies, which have brought round many sufferers and re-established health after every other means had signally failed.—ADVT.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, DEC. 2, 1876.

PRINCE LEOPOLD IN WILTSHIRE.

Our brethren will have read with pleasure the account of our Royal brother's visit to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Wiltshire, under its noble and worthy chief, Lord Methuen, and his able and genial address will have gratified the Craft in general as much as it did the brethren of Wiltshire in particular. It is very agreeable to all loyal Freemasons to note how the members of our Royal Family are "not ashamed" to call us "brethren," to take part in our assemblies, and, in the words of our old song, do not disdain "our mysteries to put a good grace on." May this happy state of things long continue, and be the "decus columenque" of English Freemasonry. We hope our exalted brethren will believe that they do not and cannot give us more pleasure in coming among us, sympathizing with our labours, and sharing in our social gatherings, than we do in seeing them in the midst of our loyal assemblies. We receive them, and ever shall receive them, with that becoming pride and gratification which are, so to say, innate in the bosom of every faithful Craftsman.

THE EMULATION FESTIVAL.

The Annual Festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, which was held in the Grand Lodge Hall on Friday week, was presided over by the M.W. Pro G. Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, supported by the Earl of Limerick, the Earl of Donoughmore, forty of the most distinguished Grand Officers, present and past, and nearly 600 members of the Craft. One of the most interesting features connected with the meeting was the presentation of a silver inkstand to our worthy and distinguished G. Secretary, who has acted as Treasurer of the Emulation Lodge for 30 years. The admirable remarks of Lord Carnarvon, cheered as they were by the large assemblage, must have been peculiarly gratifying to Bro. Hervey, and we will add, that there is no brother in our Order who more truly deserves the regard and attachment and respect of all who know him. The sections were worked by eight Past Grand Officers, who were in past years active members of the lodge, and it was universally admitted that on no former occasion was the work so correctly and so admirably delivered. The sanction and support thus given to this celebrated lodge of improvement by the Pro Grand Master and other leading members of Grand Lodge undoubtedly places it at the head of all Lodges of Instruction, and goes far to authorize its mode of working as the model which should be universally adopted. This distinguished lodge has for some years—under the highest patronage—been extending its influence, and we trust it may ultimately be the means of establishing a uniformity of working throughout the Craft. We say all this, not dogmatically, as we are quite aware that a good deal may be said on archaeological grounds for the existence of slight discrepancies of independent rituals, and we by no means forget the services of instructors like our Bro. Muggeridge, who vary a little from the admirable system of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement. But we feel warranted in asserting that the Emulation working may well be adopted now as the general expression of the ritual and ceremonial of our English Craft.

FREEMASONRY IN BELGIUM.

In consequence of the statement in the "Unita Cattolica," that in Belgium all acknowledgment of belief in the G.A.O.T.U. has been already officially suppressed and erased from the Constitution, we have taken means to ascertain the facts of the case, as we think the sooner we know the exact state of things the better. We are enabled to state that though it is true that some lodges by majorities have determined to commit this act of suicidal folly, all the lodges have not yet made their return, and the Grand Orient of Belgium has not yet, therefore, come to an official decision on the subject.

ANOTHER RELIGIOUS MASONIC PERSECUTION.

"Le Messager d'Athenes" tells us in a recent number that a certain Mr. Arsène Pandis, a priest at Corfu, was about to commence a polemical warfare against the Corfiote and Greek Masons, first of all by publishing in the Greek language Mgr. Dupanloup's famous "Etude." The editor does not say whether this tolerant priest is a member of the Greek or the Roman Church. We presume the former, and if so we shall deeply regret to learn that this rage of fanaticism is extending amongst that otherwise tolerant body, the orthodox Greek Church. Let us hope that Mr. Arsène Pandis will be more happily advised, and prove once again in the history of man that "second thoughts are best."

THE LAST LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

At the last meeting of this important organization of our Order, and which was very numerously attended, various grants of £175 were confirmed, as will be seen by our special report, and new grants were made to the amount of £554. There were 32 cases on the list, two of which were dismissed, or rather one was deferred, and the other dismissed. We shall recur to this report in our next, as the subject, for many reasons, is becoming one which deserves the anxious consideration of the Craft.

THE LONDON CABMEN.

A very important portion of our Metropolitan community is that which is represented by the London Cabmen. When we remember the extent of locomotion, and the number of passengers, ministered to by our friend "Cabbie," we shall all feel, not only how much our comfort as a community depends on this influential section of our great aggregation, but how important it is for the safety and security of society and property that our licensed cabmen should be alike respectable, sober, and law-observing. Now without saying to-day that no improvement is needed in the cab-life and cab condition of London, for that would be a mistaken optimism, we think it may be affirmed that matters are gradually improving in all that pertains to the cab system, and that we may hope ere long to see among us still more decided symptoms of permanent amelioration. The Chief Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police, Col. Henderson, C.B., addressed a crowded meeting of Cabmen and their wives at the fourth anniversary of the London Cabmen's Mission, on Monday, 20th ult., and we take the following interesting extract from the "Times" of his speech, which we think is alike deserving of note and comment, and is suggestive, in our humble opinion, of many most welcome and gratifying considerations: "Colonel Henderson, C.B., speaking on Monday night, at the fourth anniversary of the London Cabmen's Mission, to a crowded audience of Cabmen and their wives, said he hoped the change which had lately been made in their licences in order to save them trouble would be duly appreciated. Six hundred notices of renewal of licences had been up to the present time dispatched to cabmen, and 90 per cent. of those were upon clear licences. With respect to the sobriety of cabmen, he said that, though drunkenness among the body was not on the increase, still, it was not on the decrease, as there were 13,000 cases of drunkenness last year; but he hoped before long to see such a long list greatly diminished, as there was undoubtedly a steady and gradual improvement among the men. With regard to the cabs themselves, he would just mention what an eminent French engineer said who came over to this country to report upon the comparative merits of the railways of France and England. That gentleman said that the Metropolitan Railway of London was as superior to anything of the same kind in France as was the English Hansom cab to vehicles which were used for a similar purpose in his country. Although they had received such high commendation, yet, nevertheless, 3500 cabs were condemned last year. There was one point to which he wished to draw particular attention, and that was the marvellous improvement which had occurred in the return of lost property, since an alteration in a clause of the lost property rules for cabs. In 1870 only 3500 articles which had been left in cabs had been brought to Scotland-yard, whereas during the past twelve months 16,000 were deposited at the same place. The present hackney carriage regulations, he thought, were just both to cabmen and the public. One circumstance had recently occurred which showed the appreciation in which cabmen's honesty was now held by the public. Two persons were the other day disputing about the ownership of a diamond necklace valued at £1000. As the disputants could not agree, one of them threw the necklace into a cab, the driver of which immediately took it to Scotland-yard, for which act of honesty Colonel Henderson hoped he would be handsomely rewarded. In conclusion the Chief Commissioner earnestly hoped that the Mission would long prosper, as it was doing a great amount of good among the cabmen of London." These simple yet striking words require no comment of ours. They will speak home to the minds of us all. May the good work thus happily begun be continued and expanded; until the Chief Commissioner can report a still greater and more enduring reformation, alike in the condition of our cab system and the general morale of the Cabmen. On the whole we are inclined to think that though there are some sad exceptions every now and then, "Cabbie" is often more "sinned against than sinning," and we ought, we think, always to seek to mete out to him that justice and liberality and fair play which we like ourselves, but which we sometimes forget is due from us all to the humblest of our fellow creatures.

WIDOWS OF FREEMASONS.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
If "West York" (page 514, Nov. 18th, "Freemason") will only ask what is generally done about "widows of Freemasons marrying non-Masons" in connection with other bodies, he will find that in the military service in India a widow or a daughter of an officer loses her pension on marriage; and in other services do the same, so that there seems to be no hardship in the case referred to. And as to the "son of a deceased Freemason," if "West York" can clearly prove that the widow of a Mason married before the boy was elected to the Boys' School, then he ought not to have the privileges of a free education.

Believe me, yours fraternally,

AUGUSTUS A. BAGSHAW.

BRO. JOHN CONSTABLE'S DRAWING FOR THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
For several years now I have annually alluded to Bro. John Constable's system of shilling tickets in support of our "Great Masonic Charities," as they are truly called. For 1877 the programme is a more extensive one than any of the preceding ones, as it is intended to render the ensuing year memorable by the raising of one thousand pounds through the excellent medium noted. It is a bold project, but I believe it will be done, and in a few years will not be considered much to do, though just now it is looked upon by many as quite impracticable. Bro. Constable is the originator of shilling tickets for drawings for Life Governorships in our Masonic Charities, and deserves even more support than he has yet received. We cannot understand how there can be any objections to such a scheme, for, as you have pointed out in times past, it is after all but a kind of Masonic "Art Union," if I may so express it, and each shilling goes to swell the amount until ten guineas are obtained, when a Life Governor is balloted for, just as if it were an engraving, and the happy and successful number (a brother, or a lady, or a non-Mason, or a lodge), has the ten guineas paid in his or her name to the society in question. If a brother or a non-Mason, the amount thus obtained would confer two votes at every election for life. In the event of the winner being a lady the extra privileges would be granted, as in the case of ordinary donations, and of course should a lodge be the owner of the successful number, only one vote at each be secured. I cannot, for the life of me, understand the opposition which this capital scheme has received in some quarters, unless, indeed, it is, as I proved it to be last week in one case, an attempt to hide the sheer greed and selfishness of the objectors. Then, again, others stupidly talk as if Bro. Constable was to make his fortune out of the transaction! Once for all let me say, that as in all the former Stewardships (and as, in fact, in all Stewardships), the full amount paid to our friend and brother will be paid to the Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, without any deductions whatever, the expenses being defrayed by Bro. Constable himself. I have promised Bro. Constable to raise one hundred guineas to assist him in his truly Masonic work, and as the money is coming in I pay the sums at once over to him. The contributions are placed in the Consolidated Bank, to bear interest until the festival, and in the event of Bro. Constable's decease, which I pray may be long distant, the Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys has authority to draw the amount, to use in accordance with the purposes intended. In conclusion I have but to say if any brother is deserving of our aid, and has started a plan worthy of acceptance, to collect the odd shillings on behalf of our Charities, that brother is John Constable.

W. J. HUGHAN.

ITALIAN FREEMASONRY.

To Bro. George Kenning, Publisher "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
Though I quite agree with all that has been said in the "Freemason" about the foolish attack recently made by the "Unita Cattolica" on English Freemasonry, and its utter insensibility to the claims of truth, and quite concur in all your remarks about an eminent member of your English Order—Bro. Parkinson—I yet think that there is some ground to be very apprehensive as to the present position and future condition of Italian Freemasonry. Certain facts, I apprehend, are incontestable, namely, firstly, that Italian Freemasonry mixes itself up far too much with politics; secondly, that men of very advanced views on religious matters, to say nothing more, are prominent personages in it; and thirdly, that there is a great tendency in a large portion of it, at any rate, towards what may be termed, without offence, polished Heatenism.

Without at all approving of the complaints of the Ultramontane party, many of which are chimerical, or childish apprehensions or unscrupulous allegations, yet I fear it must be confessed by an impartial English Freemason that there is quite sufficient to excite alarm and justify anxiety.

There seems to be a wish to imitate in a portion of Italy the foolish proceedings of the Grand Orient of France, and to expunge from the constitution and the ritual all acknowledgment of the Most High. As regards politics, it often happens that at the meeting of the lodges the candidature of men of the most advanced type, ultra-republican, is advocated.

Thus, for instance, "Il Picciolo" of Naples, of 20th November, tells us that the brethren (fratelli) of the Masonic Lodge Unita e Liberta held a meeting the day before, and determined to support the political candidature of Signor Biondi Luigi.

Even the profane paper remarks, whose editor is "neither a Mason nor the son of a Mason:" "We do not understand this Masonic lodge interfering in politics; if it does so it is quite clear that it has two professions of Masonic principles, one for the world without, one for the initiates within." We fear that the little incident mentioned at Naples has been reproduced "ad infinitum" up and down Italy.

Of a well-known official of one of the Italian Grand Lodges it is credibly stated that his reply to a Masonic letter recently was, "I cannot attend to Masonic business until after the elections."

Now all this and a good deal more requires attention and surveillance, and if any of your correspondents could give us an actual account of Italian Freemasonry, especially as regards the points I have mentioned, about which I apprehend there is really no doubt, it might do a deal of good.

There is no reason why Freemasonry, and English Freemasonry above all, should not flourish in Italy, inasmuch as the Italian mind is very favourable in itself alike to toleration and freedom of conscience, to culture and refinement, to the elevating studies of art, science, and literature, to the ennobling and sanctifying claims of morality and religion.

It is because I wish well, like our estimable Bro. J. C. Parkinson, to Italian Freemasonry that I pen these friendly lines to-day—and because the facts I state are, I fear, however veiled over, only too well-known to those who are "behind the scenes" in Italy.

I am, dear Bro. Kenning, yours fraternally,

A SUBSCRIBER FROM THE BEGINNING.

THE HERVEY LODGE.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think the Hervey Lodge committed an egregious error in departing from the rules of the Craft, and afterwards exposing the error in a court of justice. Doubtless at the initiation the candidate was told before shewing him their charter or warrant of constitution, that during the evening he would be called upon for the fee, and had he been applied to at the time and refused (which I much doubt, if told, it would prevent him passing in the next degree) the lodge should then have declined to pass him, and the world be no wiser. The suggestion of the D.G.M. of Bath, that the initiation fees be previously demanded, is diametrically opposed to the custom of the Craft, and our greatest virtue—honour.

The discussion cannot fail to convince the fraternity that the rules as laid down require adhering to.

Yours fraternally,

A SOUTH LINCOLN J.W.

SPECIAL GRAND LODGE.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reference to a notice in your paper of the 25th November, of the Pro Grand Master calling a special Grand Lodge on Bro. Simpson's notice of motion, for commemorating the return of our Grand Master, the Prince of Wales, from India, I trust that all M.M.'s will have an opportunity of seeing our beloved Grand Master. I and many hundred others have never had that honour, and I hope that Bro. Simpson will take it into consideration, that we should like to be present to do honour to him upon so auspicious an occasion, and, if I might make a suggestion, why not make the Alexandra or Crystal Palace the centre of attraction, and let us receive our Royal Master there, when all M.M.'s that like to come would have an opportunity of seeing him; and by issuing tickets at 10s. each, it would amply pay all expenses, and not encroach on the funds of the Grand Lodge. Trusting that some abler pen than mine will take the matter up, for if held at the Albert Hall, the space being so limited there, it will be only the P.G.M.'s, P.M.'s, and those high in office, will have the privilege, whilst we of the lower grade will be left out in the cold.

Trusting you will favour me by inserting this letter in your valuable paper,

I beg to remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
M.M.

Duke of Connaught, 1558.

[The favour which our good brother asks for is an utter impossibility.—Ed.]

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As many knights who have a right to attend the Special Convent General, which has been summoned by special direction of H.R.H. the Grand Master for the 8th inst., are unaware why such Convent General has been convened, may I through you state that the "vexed question" of past rank, &c., is the business which will be discussed.

Yours fraternally,

J. E. C.

CANDIDATES FOR INITIATION.

Sir,—

Having for a long time past entertained the ardent desire of becoming a Freemason, I should esteem it a great favour if you would kindly inform me in your next issue as to the steps necessary to being admitted a Member of the Craft.

By doing so, you will greatly oblige, Sir,

Yours respectfully,

J. K. 22.

[In answer to this, one of many similar letters, we have lately received, we can only say that the applicant must apply to some friend who is a Mason who can recommend him to his own lodge. There is no general system of Masonic recommendation or initiation.—Ed.]

NEWGATE.

The following most sensible letter appears in the "Times" of Saturday:—

To the Editor of the "Times."

Sir,—Anticipating a hope which I fear will not be realized—namely, that during my year of office I should not have to be present at an execution, a duty which I am sure all the officials concerned consider a most painful one, and the desire to be present by those not concerned, in my opinion, being a morbid one, affording no reflective satisfaction, I shall feel obliged by your inserting the notice that during my year of office, it is not my intention on any occasion to avail myself of the privilege (if it be one) of issuing tickets to Newgate on such occasions.

Of course, the recognised members of the London Press will, as usual, be present.

Apologizing for troubling you, I am, yours faithfully,

W. G. EAST,

Sheriff of London and Middlesex.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

A Special General Court of the Governors and Subscribers to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Monday in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Lieut.-Colonel Creaton, V.P., presided, and there were also present Bros. Raynham W. Stewart, S. Rawson, Joseph Smith, H. G. Warren, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Hyde Pullen, Dr. Woodman, Henry Venn, Capt. J. Wordsworth, H. A. Dubois, Thos. W. White, Herbert Dicketts, John Boyd, Geo. M. E. Snow, E. Harris, H. Massey ("Freemason"), John M. Stedwell, F. W. Ramsay, M.D., C. A. Lee, George Powell, D. W. Pearce, Major E. H. Finney, Thos. Massa, C. R. Clasey, Thos. Cubitt, J. H. Stead, Thos. Kingston, D. Nicols, James Terry, E. Letchworth, W. Barrett, Thomas Meggy, J. Baxter Langley, Henry W. Hunt, Eugene H. Thielley, J. Marsh, and R. W. Little (Secretary).

The meeting was called in compliance with a requisition signed by Lieut.-Col. John Creaton, P.G.D., Vice-Patron and Trustee, "To receive the Report of the Special Committee upon the Collectorship of the Institution, and to decide thereon."

The report of the Special Committee appointed by the Quarterly General Court, on the 14th October, 1876, was as follows:—

"To investigate and report upon the subject of the Collectorship to a Special General Court."

"Pursuant to the resolution of the Quarterly General Court, the Special Committee held its first meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Saturday, the 4th of November, 1876, when Bro. Lieut.-Colonel Creton, Vice-Patron and Trustee, was voted to the chair, all the members of the committee being present. The subject submitted to the committee having been fully discussed, Bro. Joseph Smith proposed, 'That a Collector be appointed, and that he be paid commission on the amounts he receives.' Bro. W. Hale seconded the proposition, to which the following amendment was moved by Bro. S. Rawson, 'That a person be employed in the office to assist the Secretary in collecting subscriptions and donations.' Bro. R. W. Stewart seconded the amendment, which, on being put, was carried by 5 to 4 votes, and was then adopted as a substantive resolution by the same majority."

"The second meeting of the Committee was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Saturday, the 11th November, when, owing to Colonel Creton's absence through an accident, Bro. S. Rawson was voted to the chair. Bro. J. Symonds proposed, 'That the Secretary having stated, in reply to a question put to him, that he was willing, if provided with further assistance in the office, to undertake the collection of donations and subscriptions as part of his ordinary duties, to undertake the same.' Bro. Stewart seconded the proposition, which was carried by 4 votes to 3, there being seven members present. Bro. Symonds proposed, 'That in the event of the above recommendation being agreed to, the Secretary be allowed an additional clerk.' The proposition was seconded by Bro. Dr. Ramsay, and carried by 3 to 2 votes."

"The Committee held its third meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Saturday, the 18th of November, when Colonel Creton presided, five members being present. Bro. Symonds moved, 'That it is the opinion of this Committee that the several resolutions passed at the two preceding meetings on the 4th and 11th of November be recommended to a Special General Court for adoption.' Bro. Stewart seconded the proposition, which was carried unanimously."

"The Chairman, as a Trustee, convened a Special General Court, to meet at 12 o'clock noon, on Monday, the 27th November."

"J. CRETON, Chairman."

Bro. John Symonds, after this report had been agreed to be taken as read, said that in moving to agree with the Committee in their report he thought it well to state that the recommendations in that report having been only agreed to by a majority of one, it was thought more courteous to the minority that the committee should simply make the report a resumé of the proceedings, leaving the argument for or against the recommendations to be stated in the speeches at the Special Court. It would, therefore, be his duty to state completely, and yet as briefly as he could, the reasons which induced him and those who concurred with him in making those recommendations. In the first place, let it be understood that they did not propose to abolish the Collector; they simply proposed that the Secretary, who was already the collector of the greater portion of the contributions, should become the collector of the whole. There was an increasing tendency on the part of the brethren to make the Secretary the collector of their contributions, instead of employing an officer who was called the Collector. In the four years ending 1872 there was a sum of £21,004 collected, of which £7155 was paid to the Secretary, and £13,849 to the Collector. But in the 3½ years ending September, 1876, of £33,009 collected, £18,144 was paid to the Secretary, and only £14,865 to the Collector; so that out of a yearly average during the last 3½ years of £8800 collected, £4836 was collected by the Secretary, and only £3964 by the Collector (hear, hear). He thought this tendency to send the amounts direct to the Secretary would go on increasing; and if so, and the brethren adopted Bro. Joseph

Smith's view, there would probably be this curious, and to the so-called Collector, who was to be paid only on what he received, this unpleasant anomaly, that whilst the prospects of the Institution might continually increase, his emoluments might continually diminish. But there was this further great difficulty, how were they to define what the Collector was to receive, and what he was not to receive? When Bro. Joseph Smith at the first meeting of the Special Committee, after a considerable amount of conversational discussion, formally moved that a Collector be appointed, and that he be paid a commission on the amount he received, he (Bro. Symonds) drew his attention to these difficulties; but as he (Bro. Symonds) did not think Bro. Smith clearly apprehended the point he (Bro. Symonds) raised, he ventured to present in the form of three short enquiries, and had sent them to Bro. Smith in a brief note which he would venture to read:—

"3, Ingram Court, 25th Nov."

"Dear Bro. Joseph Smith,—

"I am afraid I did not succeed in committee in putting so clearly before you as I could have wished the difficulties which to my mind attend the appointment of a Collector 'to be paid only upon what he receives.'"

"I therefore venture to submit for your consideration the three enquiries annexed, that you may, if you think fit, answer them at the meeting on Monday."

"Yours faithfully and fraternally,

"JOHN SYMONDS."

"Joseph Smith, Esq., P.G.P., &c., &c., &c."

"If a Collector be appointed, distinct from the Secretary, to be paid commission only upon what he receives:—

"Is it contemplated that he should have free access to correspondence and Stewards' lists (country as well as London), so that he may ascertain the names of brethren who may announce an intention to contribute, and may at once write to or call on them?

"Or is he only to apply to brethren whose names are given to him by the Secretary?

"If he apply for a subscription or donation (writing or calling, perhaps, several times), and it is afterwards paid at the office, is it contemplated that he should receive commission thereon?" Now, they could not get Bro. Smith clearly to define where the line should be drawn; he said it was a matter of detail; and if he once agreed to the detail that the Collector should be paid only on what he received, the mode of settling what he should receive could be settled afterwards. There he (Bro. Symonds) joined issue with him; he thought the settlement of the point was of the very essence of the question, and if they did not adopt it the Collector would be continually endeavouring, if they did not endeavour to settle that point before the election of the Collector, to circumvent, if he might say so, the Secretary, and get all the honour in his own hands. He would mention, by the way, that Bro. Smith, in the course of conversation, proposed to limit the collection to London, leaving out the country; but on his (Bro. Symonds) asking whether that did not seem to imply that the brethren in London were of an inferior grade to those living in the country, requiring a special officer to look after them, Bro. Smith withdrew the limitation, and the resolution now stood as in the report."

Bro. Joseph Smith observed that this was a resumé of all that was done on the committee, and it was not necessary for Bro. Symonds to go into that."

Bro. Symonds said that the statement he was making would serve to elucidate the proceedings of the committee. He had already said he thought that detail was of the very essence of the question; detail in point of fact was the principle. That was the point. He thought Bro. Smith did not clearly understand where the difficulty rested—that the Collector was to be paid only on what he received. The difficulty had arisen in the Boys' School. Bro. Harris had been paid after a fashion. There also had been some difficulties about whether he was to be paid on what he received. He endeavoured to get all he could in his hands. Let him give a case which suggested the point. A brother not long since wrote to Bro. Binckes asking what amount was required to be paid to make him a Vice-President. Bro. Binckes wrote in reply stating that the further payment would be 40 guineas. Not hearing from him after this, Bro. Binckes called on him to know whether he had received the letter. The brother said he had; but that he would like to give the subject further consideration—would Bro. Binckes call again after a short interval? After an interval Bro. Binckes accordingly called again. The brother said he was still unsettled, and he must think over it a little further. Afterwards the brother wrote saying that he had decided to give the 40 guineas. Bro. Harris got wind of the fact; called on the brother; sent in his card as Collector; and received the subscription in a cheque payable to Bro. Binckes or order. Did he (Bro. Symonds) blame Bro. Harris for that? No; he thought it was only natural he should in the position he occupied follow the course he pursued. If he (Bro. Symonds) had been in Bro. Harris's position he should have done the same thing. If the brethren were to put him in the Collector's place to be paid on the amounts he received he should feel it his duty to himself and his family by every possible means on every possible occasion to intercept every possible donation on its way to the Secretary. (Laughter.) Now, that would be the continual result of their appointing a Collector in the mode proposed. Did he blame Bro. Binckes for not allowing the Collector to have the means to prevent the subscription coming direct to the office? Did he blame Bro. Binckes for not letting the Collector have the information that would enable him to do so? He did not blame him; and he did not think the brethren ought to blame the Secretary of the Girls' School for doing all he could also to circumvent the Collector in getting his emoluments. If, therefore, Bro. Joseph Smith passed his resolution with regard to the duties of the Collector, the General Committee, of which Bro. Joseph Smith himself was a member, ought so clearly to define what the Collector was to receive and what he was not to receive, that there would be no chance of the Secretary subjecting himself to a charge or suspicion of, on his own motive, interfering with the Collector's emoluments. But he, Bro. Symonds, still believed that the best way, better for the Institution, would be to make the Secretary the Collector. The Secretary was now the Collector of the greater part of the subscriptions; let the Collector get in the remainder, and allow him a certain sum. It was not intended that the additional clerk, whom they proposed to give to the Secretary, should be the Collector. It was contemplated by himself, Bro. Symonds, and, he believed, all those who concurred with him, that the entire responsibility should be thrown on the Secretary, who might for the subscription send his head clerk or junior clerk, or go himself. Then again, the Secretary, he might say, had expressed not only his willingness to take that responsibility, but he believed that there would be less loss by lapse of subscriptions than there was at present. This plan admitted of easy trial. The Special Committee, after considering the question of appointing a permanent Collector, thought the plan of having a clerk might be tried. If, after a short period, even a twelve-month, this plan was not found to succeed, they would give the junior clerk the stipulated notice, and they would then proceed to appoint a Collector. But if they appointed a Collector as a permanent official they would hardly, except for gross misconduct, discharge him from his office until he thought fit to retire. Having made this statement he, Bro. Symonds, did not think he had omitted anything. He thought he had stated all the reasons that occurred to him in favour of the amalgamation of the offices of Secretary and Collector. He hoped that those who justifiably sought to reject the report would not succeed, but if they did he trusted they would give him and those who concurred with him, credit for having done what they believed to be their duty, and that they were actuated by an honest desire to promote the best interests of the Institution (hear, hear). He begged to conclude by moving that the Court agree with the Special Committee in their report, and that it be referred to the General Committee for execution."

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart seconded the motion, and said he must endorse every word that had fallen from Bro. Symonds. He did so after having carefully investigated the matter with Bro. Symonds. There was just cause of complaint on the part of the country subscribers who contributed their money with the belief that it would be paid to the Secretary, and that no commission would be deducted. He knew, however, that commission was allowed on it to the disgust of the country brethren. To use a vulgar phrase, it was doubly sweated; a commission was paid on the collection in the country, and another to the London Collector. He (Bro. Stewart) also desired to have credit for wishing to serve the Institution. He thought that if the money was paid to the Secretary they would save a large amount of money, and by that saving they would be enabled to put three additional children in the Institution, instead of squandering it away. No doubt Bro. Smith had the same idea of benefiting the Institution that he had. It was not likely they would be able to get a Collector to do the London work because it would not be worth his while; and if they got a man who collected for other institutions he could not do his duty to all. Let them try the proposed scheme for a twelvemonth, and see whether it would answer.

Bro. Joseph Smith, in moving his amendment for continuing the office of Collector, said he hoped they would not think he was actuated by a desire to raise a factious opposition. (No, no.) They were all anxious to do the best they could for the Institution, and if they believed their views were right there was no harm in stating their views in opposition. (Hear, hear.) He had never taken an active part in the management of the Boys' or the Girls' School; he devoted his time to the Benevolent Institution. The Boys' and Girls' Schools were so well managed they could take care of themselves without him. But when he did take part in it, it was when he thought the brethren were going to sell the Institution, and he then made a motion, which after all turned out to be the right course, and he had a committee appointed. At a former meeting there was a feeling in favour of doing away with the Collector, and he had a committee appointed. They met, and consisted of nine brethren. After their deliberation, they were just as near a result as before. At the meeting of the Committee there were four on each side, and the Chairman gave his casting vote. At the next meeting there were seven; there were three on one side and three on the other; and the Chairman again gave his casting vote. It was a new feature to do away with the Collector, and he did not think they would get the same amount of money by the new proposition. He had moved that a Collector be appointed, and paid only on such sums as he collected. This was the principle the brethren had to decide. He had a great objection to giving a Collector commission on what he did not receive, and he thought the brethren in the country had good ground for complaint when a Collector was so paid. He did not care what poundage they gave a Collector; and he did not care if they had another clerk in the office. If they wanted him let them have him; but if they had a Secretary or clerk, unless they gave him an inducement in the shape of a commission he would not try to collect the money. The clerk might be sent out on a fine day to collect, and might think it a good opportunity for taking a holiday. The payment of subscriptions was not like the payment of taxes. If brethren promised subscriptions to Stewards you might wait a long time before the brethren promising sent the subscription to the office. If a Collector called on them they would pay. He did not stand alone in his opinion; he had canvassed, and found several brethren entertained the same views. He thought the Charities would lose by the proposed plan.

Bro. H. G. Warren seconded the amendment. He was one of the minority in the Special Committee who voted for a Collector. When he entered on his duties he expected they were to enquire into something, and take evidence upon it. The resolutions which were come to were without the slightest attempt to get at any evidence whatever. (Cries of dissent.) (Order, order.) Bro. Symonds had gone into a statement of what took place at the Committee, and he, Bro. Warren, had a perfect right to do the same. The only title of evidence was a statement by the Secretary, which he thought would astonish the brethren as much as it had astonished him, Bro. Warren, that they had 150 annual subscribers, and it had not been usual to look up the subscriber of one year for his subscription for the next year. With the embryo life subscribers it became a rule in some lodges that before they took office they should become Life Governors of the Charities, and consequently those who had subscribed for one year were, in the course of three or four years, life subscribers. But surely out of the number of Stewards they had, they ought to have more than 150 annual subscribers. They ought to have had evidence of that; and he would like to have asked Bro. Muggeridge how often he had to call upon them. Nothing of the kind took place. He would pass that over. As regarded the payment of commission, he perfectly agreed, as he believed every one present did, that they should not pay for work not done; they should fix a sum to be paid as commission on money collected, and pay no more. He would not put the Stewards' Lists into the hands of the Collector in the first instance. It had been usual not to let the Collector have those lists until after the first meeting of the Stewards at least. It was so when he was a Steward; but this was not a matter of so much importance as that they would find it difficult to place it all in one man's hands, unless they did it by making the Secretary the manager, and the sole manager, of the Institution. (A Voice: "So he ought to be.") That was a matter of opinion; he was not going to discuss that. He did not see the difficulty discovered by Bro. Raynham Stewart of getting a Collector, or that they could not get rid of a Collector with as much ease as they could get rid of a clerk. It did not matter what the title of the officer was; they could dismiss one as well as the other. There was a difficulty as regarded payment, and this belonged solely to the General Committee; but as it was raised at the Special Committee he would not be much out of order if he stated that there was a proposition to pay not only a salary, but commission. (A Voice: "No; it was abandoned.") It was not abandoned; it was only abandoned in so far as he stated that this being a matter for the General Committee they could not go into it; and the brethren said they should not press it. (A Voice: "It was abandoned.") Then he was perfectly satisfied with that. He was of opinion with Bro. Smith that if they sent out clerks to collect money in which they had no interest they would not find the same amount come in as they did when they had a Collector.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford said that this was a matter which agitated the provinces in past years very considerably, as he knew perfectly well when acting officially for a large and important province. He had listened most attentively to what Bro. Symonds had said, and he felt that after that very lucid and clear statement he was bound to give his support to the Committee. He had said to Bro. Joseph Smith on more than one occasion that he for one should be quite prepared to consider the question of the employment of a Collector as regarded the London brethren, if they so wished it, and it would be convenient for them. But as there were many difficulties in the way, he thought they were going to do the right thing by taking steps to prevent an abuse which had existed for years, and had prevented worthy brethren from becoming Life Governors because they would not pay a percentage for what the Collector had not done; they would not pay money, that is, to the institution for work never executed. The proposed plan, he believed, was not only the most business-like and straightforward, but would give large additional subscriptions from the provinces. He would mention a case, a true case, which a brother at the end of the table would confirm. In a province with which he was connected they sent up some years ago £2000 for the Girls' School, and on that they had to pay the Collector a sum which would amount to two life governorships, and not a sixpence of the whole subscription had passed through the hands of the Collector. He would ask if that was not an abuse? He believed the proposal made by the Special Committee would prevent such an abuse; and as Freemasons did not like anything which was an abuse, he hoped that the brethren would give their hearty support to the Committee. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. G. M. E. Snow attacked the existing system, and contrasted it with that of the Merchant Seamen's Orphan Asylum and the Licensed Victuallers'.

Bro. Dr. Ramsay supported the original motion.

Bro. George Powell asked the Chairman whether the new plan was to be permanent or tentative.

The Chairman said tentative.

Bro. George Powell said he thought it was worth a trial. He also said he deduced from what Bro. Warren had said, that some of the opposing brethren had not been treated quite with courtesy on the Committee, and Bro. Symonds seemed to imply that the opposing brethren had not the interests of the Institution at heart. (No.)

Bro. Henry Venn thought the opinion of the Committee was very evenly balanced; but he believed that after the long experience they had had of a Collector, they could not do better than give a trial to the new feature.

Bro. Symonds, in replying upon the different arguments, said that with regard to want of courtesy that had never been suggested, and he had never meant to say that brethren not entertaining his own views were not solicitous for the welfare of the Institution. Bro. Smith had said several times in the course of his speech that they were going to do away with the Collector. They did not propose to do away with the Collector. They proposed to make the Secretary the Collector, as he was now the Collector of the larger portion of the subscriptions. The Committee were precluded from going into an enquiry on the subject by Bro. Smith proposing that a Collector should be appointed. They were rather in a hurry. Bro. Smith was taking his observation about going into detail in very good part, and he (Bro. Symonds) did not intend certainly to deceive him, and he thought it desirable that Bro. Smith should define what he meant. If they adopted what Bro. Smith proposed by his amendment, if a Collector was to be paid only on what he received, and he applied several times for a subscription, and that subscription was after all paid to the office, they would be bound by the resolution, and could not give him a sixpence commission. There seemed to be an impression that if the subscriptions were collected by the Secretary personally, or through his clerks, there would not be an inducement to them to get the subscriptions in if there was no commission paid. Bro. Little had never been paid by commission; Bro. Binckes was so paid at one time, and a certain small salary as well. That was afterwards altered, and a suitable salary was paid to him.

The amendment of Bro. Joseph Smith was then put and negatived, and the original motion of Bro. John Symonds was afterwards put and carried by a large majority.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

CONSECRATION OF THE ERA CHAPTER, No. 1423.

On Saturday last, November 25th, at the King's Arms Hotel, Hampton Court, a seventh chapter was added to the Royal Arch Masonic roll of Middlesex. The interesting ceremonies of consecration and installation were exceedingly well performed by the M.E.P.G.S. of Middlesex, Comp. Col. Francis Burdett, aided by Comps. J. Boyd, R. W. Little, P.G.H., and H. G. Buss, P.G.T. of Middlesex. The chapter was opened by the M.E.P.G.S., assisted by Comps. Boyd, acting H.; Little, acting J. Amongst the numerous and brilliant gathering present were Comps. Stedwell, P.G.J. of Middlesex; Roebuck, P.P.G.H. of Middlesex; Cubitt, P.Z., P.S.E. of Middlesex; Woodman, P.Z., P.G. D.C. of England, and P.P. First A.G.S. of Middlesex; Laxton, P.Z., P.G.R. of Middlesex; W. Hammond, P. Second A.G.S. of Middlesex, M.E.Z. 185; Thiellay, P.Z., P.G.D.C. of Middlesex; Sabine, P.Z., &c., M.E.Z. designate 1423; Mason, P.Z.; B. Sharp, P.Z. 84, &c.; Keily, P.Z. 214; Levander, P.Z. Burdett; Pearce, P.Z. 1293; Dr. Davison, M.E.Z. of 404 and 1293; J. Wright, H. 946; E. Hopwood, J. 1326; Dr. Ernest Brette, N. Royal Middlesex; Baxter Langley, Third Principal designate 1423; Dunham, 70; Baldwin, 73; T. C. Walls, 185; and Shackleton, 1326. The founders having stated that they fully approved of the companions, mentioned in the warrant, to be the Principals, viz., Comps. Sabine, as M.E.Z.; Thiellay, as H.; and B. Langley, as J., the chapter was formally consecrated.

That impressive ceremonial being ended, the installation of the Principals was immediately proceeded with, and carried out most effectively and efficiently.

The only officers of the new chapter invested were Comps. Mason, as N., and W. Hammond, as D.C.

The M.E.Z. appointed Comps. F. Walters, P.Z., &c., as S.E., and Wilkins, P.Z., as P.S., and stated that the other appointments would be made at the first regular meeting.

The names of several joining companions having been read, the chapter was duly closed, and the Provincial Grand Convocation opened by the M.E.P.G.S., Comp. Colonel F. Burdett, assisted by Comps. R. W. Little, P.G.H., and Stedwell, P.G.J.

The other officers of P.G.C. present were, Comps. Buss, Treas.; Cubitt, S.E.; Laxton, R.; W. Hammond, 2nd A.S.; Sabine, S.B.; Thiellay, D.C. The minutes of the previous Provincial Grand Convocation having been read and confirmed, the M.E.P.G.S. invested his officers for the year ensuing as follows: Comps. Dr. Davison, H.; Boyd, J.; Little, S.E.; Levander, N.; Buss, Treas. (unanimously re-elected); Pearce, R.; Sabine, P.S.; W. Hammond, P.A.S.; Dr. E. Brett, 2nd A.S.; Holden, (by deputy), S.B.; Keily, Std. Br.; Mason, Org.; J. Wright, D.C.; Gilbert, Janitor.

The report of the auditors having been postponed the P.G.C. was closed, and the companions adjourned to an excellent banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and R.A. toasts were briefly given by the M.E.P.G.S., and warmly received.

The toast of "The G.O.'s of England" was acknowledged by Comp. Woodham, P.G.D.C., in a few well-chosen words.

"The Health of the P.G.S. of Middlesex" was proposed by Comp. Roebuck. In the course of his remarks he said that the name of their M.E.G.S. was not only deservedly honoured in Middlesex, but in every other province in the kingdom. He was pleased to see him in such excellent health and spirits, and he fervently hoped that he would be spared many years to rule over the convocations and lodges of the important Masonic province of Middlesex.

The M.E.P.G.S., in reply, stated that he was exceedingly gratified that Royal Arch Masonry was slowly gaining strength in the province, but he thought that many other lodges in Middlesex might bestir themselves, and establish chapters for the advancement of the degree. He then said that he was greatly indebted to many distinguished companions present for the able assistance that they had rendered him since he had had the honour of being appointed P.G.S. He hoped that they would always support him in paying allegiance to the S.G.C. of England, and in conclusion he expressed himself greatly pleased and proud at holding the position he occupied in the province, and also that it had afforded him very great pleasure at being able to preside on that particular occasion.

"The Health of the Second and Third Provincial Grand Principals" followed.

Comp. Dr. Davison, in the course of an able reply, expressed his thanks to the M.E.G.S. for having done him the honour of appointing him to the high position of H. in the P.G. Chapter, and hoped that he should discharge his duties to the satisfaction of all.

Comp. Boyd, Third Principal, in answer to repeated calls, made an amusing speech. He said that he thought the observations of the prophet might have sufficed for the present, but as they had so warmly called upon him to say a few words, he would endeavour to get out of the difficulty as speedily as possible. He then went on to tell them that he was exceedingly gratified with the rank that had that day been conferred upon him by their M.E.G.S., and that he would try in every way to merit the distinction, and respectfully hoped that the appointment would meet with the approbation of the companions of the province, and concluded his speech by stating that he admired the Craft, but was proud of Royal Arch Masonry.

"The Health of the Subordinate Officers" followed.

In concluding his remarks in connection with this toast, the M.E.P.G.S. said he wished them all long life, good health, and prosperity.

Comp. Little, S.E., in the course of his response said that he was glad that that day had given another chapter to the Royal Arch roll of Middlesex, which now numbered seven. When the Grand Chapter of the province was first formed there were but three chapters, and he hoped that the good work would continue to progress. In conclusion, after returning thanks for "The Present and Past Grand Officers," he stated that he had great pleasure in informing them that the funds of the P.G. Chapter were in a highly satisfactory condition.

The toast of the evening, viz., "The Era Chapter," gave the M.E.P.G.S. an opportunity of indulging in an excellent speech. He said that to a certain extent the Grand Chapter of the province had met under the auspices of the promoters of the Era, and he personally was proud at being able to preside on the occasion. He was sure that under the direction of so able and experienced a chief as Comp. Sabine, supported by those excellent Comps. Thiellay and Langley, the chapter must flourish. It was very gratifying to him to see such worthy companions inaugurating a new era in the history of their lodge by founding an "Era" Chapter. (Laughter.) In conclusion he sincerely hoped that the chapter that had that day been formally consecrated would soon become one of the most flourishing in the Province of Middlesex.

In the unavoidable absence of Comp. Sabine, M.E.Z. Comp. Thiellay made a neat reply, in which he stated that under the auspices of Comp. Sabine, the First Principal, he felt confident that the Era Chapter must prosper, and concluded by saying that he hoped the P.G. Chapter would never have occasion to regret having enrolled under its distinguished banner No. 1423.

The M.E.P.G.S. then proposed, in very complimentary terms, "The Health of Comp. Walls," for services rendered during the evening's proceedings, which honour was briefly acknowledged by the companion mentioned.

The companions shortly afterwards separated.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF EAST LANCASHIRE.

The half-yearly meeting of the above Provincial Grand Lodge was held in the Commissioners' Rooms, Middleton, on Wednesday, the 22nd November, under the auspices of the Imperial George Lodge, No. 78. Obituary.

BRO. THE DUKE DE SALDANHA.

THE death of that distinguished Mason is announced, His Excellency Marshal the Duke of Saldanha, Portuguese Ambassador at this Court, a member of the 33rd Degree in Portugal, and one of the Chiefs of Portuguese Masonry.

We need not here allude to his biography generally, as it has been given in the "Times" and other of our contemporaries. It is in the Duke of Saldanha's capacity as a Mason that we find the key to the "Times" reference to his being the representative of the secret societies. The English officers during the Peninsular War had widely spread Masonry and protected the lodges, while they saved from the clutches of the Inquisition the Masons condemned to the flames of the Auto da Fé. One of those so saved was the famous Hippolito José da Costa. These men maintained liberalism in Portugal and Brazil, and Saldanha had joined the ranks of the Craft. He was additionally obnoxious to the clerical party as being a grandson and representative of the great statesman the Marquis de Pombal, who expelled the Jesuits from Portugal.

The "Times" and "Pall Mall Gazette" have not explained this part of Saldanha's life. Saldanha, then Count de Saldanha, was not living in England, but in Paris. Although Emperor Don Pedro was a Mason, the parties around him were indisposed to Saldanha as the head of the Constitutionalists and Masons. The Portuguese Masons had been received with great kindness by the brethren in Plymouth, and none the less by those in France on their removal thither. Thus it resulted that in Paris a great point of union for these unfavoured leaders was the distinguished R. C. Chapter of St. Louis de Martinique, in which Saldanha took an active part. As the main body were stationed by the French Government at a distance from the Spanish frontier, the Dunkirk Lodges became their protectors. Thus was formed among the Portuguese and Anglo-Portuguese what was called the northern party, including Bro. Saldanha, General Count Villafior (afterwards Duke of Perceira), Bro. General Cabrera, Bro. Colonel Henry Clarke, Count de Falkenberg, Bro. General Sir Thomas Stubbs, (afterwards Baron Villa Nova de Gaya), Bro. Lionel Tavares Cabral, (afterwards Minister), Bro. Julio Gomez de Silva Sanchez (afterwards Prime Minister), and others.

Bro. the Duke of Saldanha leaves the Duchess, an English lady, to mourn his loss, in company with so many who had benefited by his services.

We cannot go into the political history of the Duke of Saldanha, as that belongs to other biographers. We are only Freemasons.

The "Graphic" has the following:—"His Excellency the Portuguese Ambassador at the English Court died on Tuesday, at his residence in London. He was born about 1790, and was therefore about eighty-six years of age. The Duke had taken an active part in public affairs in Portugal during the last fifty years. He was Minister for Foreign Affairs under King John VI., and took a prominent part in opposing the usurpation of Don Miguel. After the failure of that opposition he retired to England, where he remained till 1834, when he returned to Portugal, and became one of the chief counsellors of Don Pedro in his war against Don Miguel, in which he acted as General and Chief of the Staff, and signed, with Don Pedro, the decisive capitulation of Evora. The Duke afterwards became Minister of War and President of the Council; but after his retirement from office he, in 1836, was concerned in an unsuccessful reactionary movement, and was again exiled to England, where he remained until 1846, when another revolution brought him back to power. From this he was dispossessed in 1849 by the second dictatorship of Costa Cabral, whom the Duke in turn overthrew in 1851, and remained in office during the minority of Don Pedro V., until 1856. In May, 1870, he headed a military outbreak, which resulted in a new Ministry being formed under his presidency. He retained office until February, 1871, and has for some years represented his country at the British Court."

BRO. HENRY MELLON.

We learn with sincere regret of the death of Bro. Henry Mellon, which sad event took place on Saturday last. He was for many years connected successfully with the theatrical profession, but had, previous to his death, retired from the stage some little time, owing to his very indolgent health. Bro. Mellon's sufferings were very acute, but we are informed he bore them with great patience. He has left a sorrowing widow to mourn his loss.

MASONIC BALL AT CAMBRIDGE.

This ball was given by the Isaac Newton University Lodge of Freemasons, under the presidency of the Rev. J. W. Cartmell, Fellow of Christ's, W.M., the list of stewards being headed by the Earl of Hardwicke, P.G.M., and Bro. G. Ainslie, P.M., being Hon. Secretary. The Lodge was founded in 1861, the Duke of St. Albans being the first Master, and since that period the chair has been occupied by many distinguished members of the University, and several hundred members have been initiated. The first quadrille was danced by all the brethren in Craft aprons, those entitled to provincial rank wearing the distinguishing purple and gold. The members of the higher degrees afterwards assumed their respective dresses, separate sets of Lancers being allotted to the Mark Masters and Royal Ark Mariners, the Royal Arch, the Rose Croix, the Knights Templar, and the Knights of Malta.

The engraving represents the third figure of the Knight Templars' Lancers, when the knights cross their swords over their partners' heads. The dress is a white tunic and mantle, with a red cross. The head of the order in England is the Prince of Wales, and the engraving will remind its members of the Prince's reception as Grand Master, when he was received under the "Arch of Steel" by more than 400 knights. The Earl of Limerick is second in command, and Sir Patrick Colquhoun, Q.C., Grand Chancellor. The Cambridge Preceptory is presided over by Professor Kalley Miller, and among the Past Preceptors are the Rev. Dr. Bryan Walker, the Rev. A. B. Frazer, and the Rev. J. F. Hardy, of Alpine fame. The dress of the Knights of Malta is a scarlet tunic and black mantle, each of which bears the white cross of the order.—"Graphic."

Grand Lodge having been formally opened, Grand Secretary read the minutes of Quarterly Communication of 6th September, which were then confirmed.

Lord Skelmersdale then said that the next business on the paper was the nomination of M.W.G.M. for the ensuing year.

Bro. Gould, W.M. 92, P.M. 153, 570, and 743, rose and said: M.W.G.M. in the chair, I beg to propose Bro. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., for re-election as Grand Master for the ensuing year. (Loud applause).

After a short pause Lord Skelmersdale said: Has any one the name of any other brother to nominate?

This question was received with considerable merriment.

The next business on the paper being the nomination of a President of the Lodge of Benevolence, Lord Skelmersdale said: Bro. John M. Clabon, P.G.D., is appointed by the Grand Master as President of the Lodge of Benevolence. (Cheers.)

Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., was re-elected Senior Vice-President of the Lodge of Benevolence, and Bro. James Brett, Junior Vice-President, no other brothers having been nominated at the Board of Masters.

The election of 12 Past Masters to serve on the Board being the next business, Bro. Hervey announced that the names of 12 Past Masters only had been given in, and consequently there would be no election. The names were Bros. Charles Atkins, P.M. 27; Henry Bartlett, P.M. 147; Herbert Dicketts, P.M. 25; Henry Garrod, P.M. 749; C. F. Hogard, P.M. 205; W. T. This was put to the Grand Lodge and confirmed.

The following report of the Board of General Purposes was brought before Grand Lodge.

"To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England:

"The Board of General Purposes have to report that their attention has been called to several instances of the issue of circulars on the part of proposed new lodges, prior to consecration, inviting members of the Craft to become joining members of such lodges.

"The Board have the special directions of the Pro Grand Master to make it known, that such proceedings meet with his lordship's entire disapproval, and entail the risk of the withdrawal of the warrant.

(Signed) "JOHN B. MONCKTON,
President.

"Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., 21st November, 1876."

To the report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 17th day of November last, showing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £4086 15s. 10d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for petty cash, £75; and for servants' wages, £96 15s.

Bro. Monckton said that this report being in the hands of all the brethren, he begged to move that it be taken as read.

This having been seconded, was put and carried.

Bro. Monckton said that there being nothing in the report to be confirmed on the part of Grand Lodge, he should content himself by moving that the report be received and entered on the minutes.

This motion also having been seconded, was put and carried.

Two appeals were then brought on. The first was an appeal of the Sussex Lodge, No. 354, Kingston, Jamaica, against the judgment of the District Grand Lodge of East Jamaica, directing the lodge to rescind its minute of the 28th of July, 1875, accepting the resignation of a brother until certain charges alleged against him had been enquired into.

Bro. Æ. J. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, said that in the ordinary course of his duty he should have to state to Grand Lodge the facts of this case, and the way in which the appeal came before them; but it had been intimated to him that there would be present in Grand Lodge some of the members of the appealing lodge for the purpose of supporting their claim. In that case they would be heard first, and he would state his case subsequently.

Lord Skelmersdale having inquired if any such brethren were present, and receiving no response.

Bro. McIntyre proceeded. He said this was not a very pleasing case to deal with on account of some complication of facts that might have to be stated; but he thought the result at which they must arrive was one which to some extent he must deplore, because he could not shut his eyes to the fact that some of the brothers of the appealing lodge had behaved in a manner which was extremely disrespectful to the District Grand Lodge of Jamaica, and they had not, as far as he could judge from the papers which had been laid before him, carried out the principles of the Craft. On the other hand, when he stated the facts Grand Lodge must come to the conclusion that the appeal must be allowed and the decision of the District Grand Master reversed.

The facts of the case were that the brother, who was J.W. of the Sussex Lodge of Jamaica, had had certain charges preferred against him before the Deputy District Grand Master of Jamaica, which shewed that he had been guilty of a violation of his obligation as a M.M. Somehow or other, probably by letters, it had come to the knowledge of this brother that this charge would be preferred, and accordingly before the charge was brought before his lodge the brother tendered his resignation as J.W. of the lodge. One of the senior brethren, a P.M. of the lodge, who was then in the chair, moved that it should be referred to a family lodge to consider whether this resignation should be accepted or not. It was agreed by the members then present that the family lodge, or lodge of emergency, should be summoned. A lodge ought to have been summoned in due course by the S.W., as the Master was absent. He did not summon the lodge, and the P.M. who had moved the resolution that a family lodge should be held, wrote to the Secretary and caused the summons to be issued. A discussion arose as to whether that brother should be allowed to resign his office of J.W. The S.W. who had neglected his duty took the objection that as he had not summoned the lodge it was not properly summoned, and could not go into the investigation; and upon that it seemed to be conceded by the brethren then present that no business could be transacted at that lodge, and the lodge broke up. After that the S.W. did summon a lodge of emergency, but on the evening before the lodge, which was called an informal lodge, met, a letter was read from the District Grand Master, which contained the charges made against the J.W., and that letter was not brought under the consideration of the lodge at all, but was kept in the possession of the Secretary or the S.W. On the 9th August, when the lodge of emergency assembled, it turned out that the J.W., in addition to his letter resigning the lodge, had sent a letter on the 28th July resigning his position as member of the lodge. On the 9th August, when the lodge met, the Master was not present, nor a P.M. of the lodge, and the brethren put into the chair a brother who had never been a Master of an English lodge, but had been a Master of a lodge under the Scotch Constitution. He, although a member of the lodge, was not a Past Master of any English lodge. In that respect the brethren seemed to have violated the constitutions, because if there were no P.M.'s of the lodge present the S.W. was to rule the lodge. In this state of things they received the second letter from the J.W. resigning his membership, and by their bye-laws, if a brother resigned and had paid his dues, he was allowed to resign. They then entered upon their minutes a resolution that the resignation should be accepted. They did not go into the matter referred to by the District Grand Master to consider the conduct of the brother who was impugned. In this respect the lodge behaved in a manner which was illegal and improper. But the lodge having accepted the resignation, and having caused that to be entered on the minutes, various protests were made, and an appeal was made to the District Grand Master, and referred by him to the District Grand Lodge. He (Bro. McIntyre) thought there could not be a doubt about this, that the lodge having behaved in the way it had, it was perfectly competent for the District Grand Master to have summoned the officers of the lodge before him, and to have dealt with them as he might be advised. But what he did was this,—he summoned the officers of the lodge, and when their minutes were produced before him, he required them to rescind the resolution at which they had arrived, and expunge from their minutes the resolution which was therein recorded, that they had accepted the resignation of the J.W. It appeared to him (Bro. McIntyre) that inasmuch as the S.W., backed up to a considerable extent by the Secretary and the brethren, chose to evade their duty, which was to receive the correspondence of the District Grand Master, and have the matter discussed by the lodge, they behaved in a manner disrespectful to him, which might have brought down on them the condemnation of the District G.M. and the District G. Lodge. But it was quite competent for them, however contumaciously they might have behaved, to have received the resignation of the brother, and record it on the minutes. He had often laid it down in Grand Lodge, that if a brother chose to resign his position as a member, no lodge could hold him. A brother had a right to resign, and there was no need of any resolution for accepting his resignation. His resignation itself was a fact, and he ceased from the moment of his tendering it to be a member. The notion of the District G.M. seemed to be that if a brother ceased to be a member of a lodge, the District Grand Lodge and the District G.M. had no power over him. He thought the District G.M. was mistaken. While a man continued to be a Mason under the English Constitution, while he held a certificate of Grand Lodge of England, he was amenable to the Grand Lodge of England wherever he might be; he was amenable to the district or the province in which he might be residing at any time, so long as he resided there. When he resigned he excluded himself, by his resignation, from a lodge; but the District G.M. had power over him while he held his certificate, and could summon him before him to produce his certificate, to hear any charge against him; and he could adjudicate upon the charge in any way, even to suspending him from his functions in Masonry, or he might summon him to the District Grand Lodge to be expelled. Therefore, although this case must be decided in favour of the lodge, however badly they might have behaved to the District Grand Master, he might still deal with the brother, who could not be allowed to avoid an investigation into his character simply by resigning his lodge. The brother must be dealt with afterwards by the District Grand Master as he might think fit, but in the meantime the appeal must be allowed.

Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., seconded the motion, but said it would be a most disastrous thing for the best interests of the Craft if in allowing this appeal it were not clearly understood what was the position which Grand Lodge took with regard to questions of this kind. The Mason was taught at the moment of his initiation that Masonry is free, that is to say, a man was free to accept or to decline the obligation; but when he had taken it he could not by any resignation of office or membership of his lodge divest himself of the character of a Mason, or renounce the duties which he had solemnly taken upon himself. He remained for all time a Mason, as long as the authorities of Freemasonry did not expel him from the Order, and as long as he was a Mason he was bound by the obligation which we all acknowledged, and which he himself had solemnly sworn to perform. Therefore, whether the brother was a member of this lodge or no lodge at all he was amenable to the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of the district in which he might happen to be at the moment. In affirming this appeal, he trusted it would not be understood that Grand Lodge at all denied, but rather that it supported the jurisdiction over a brother under those circumstances. With regard to membership of a lodge, Masonry was a voluntary association. A man might, as Grand Registrar had said, remain in a lodge no longer than he pleased. He could not be continued by force to be liable for his dues. But for all that his status of a Mason could not be altered, and he was still, whether a member of a lodge or not a member of any lodge, amenable to the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge or the locality in which he was residing. He would conclude with one remark. By the courtesy of Grand Secretary, he had had an opportunity of perusing the papers in this matter. They were very lengthy, and raised many nice points of Masonic law. This Grand Lodge did not intend by its decision to derogate from or affect the status of the lodge complaining. That must be dealt with by the District Grand Master of Jamaica. Grand Lodge was merely called upon to express an opinion on the formal complaint that had been made by the appeal. They would decide that, and let all other matters remain without any expression of opinion.

The resolution was then carried, and the appeal allowed.

The next was an appeal of the British Lodge, No. 334, Cape Town, against the judgment of the District Grand Lodge of South Africa, directing the installation of a brother as W.M. to be proceeded with immediately on his return to the colony, and that his Mastership should date from the 24th June last.

Bro. McIntyre explained the circumstances of this case, in which a brother on his nomination as Master had had the voice of the lodge against him, but, as at the following meeting the minutes had not been confirmed, the lodge declared him elected. The District G.M. on the appeal of some of the brethren had confirmed this, but the Grand Registrar advised the reversal of the decision, and allowed the appeal.

Bro. Monckton seconded the motion, which was put and carried.

Bro. Binckes, with reference to his notice of motion, explained that he had not been informed of the proposal of Lord Carnarvon to have a special Grand Lodge for considering the report of the Special Committee on the commemoration of the Prince of Wales's return, and said that he should not have given his notice at the Board of Masters if he had known of the meeting at the Pro Grand Master's. He, therefore, withdrew his notice.

Leave was given to withdraw the notice, and Grand Lodge was then closed.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

URBAN LODGE (No. 1196).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, 28th ult., at St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, when Bro. J. Tickle, W.M., presided. There were likewise present among other brethren Bros. J. Simpson, S.W.; Edwin Legge, J.W.; R. H. Pearson, P.M., Treas.; J. E. Carpenter, P.M., Sec.; R. H. Blanchford, S.D.; S. Lehmyer, J.D.; R. H. Marston, D.C.; John Heath, I.G.; J. Dionysius Loverdo, J. Pearson, P.M.; J. Redding Ware, P.M.; W. Creswick, John Dicks. Visitors: J. Bell, 1178; G. Davis, 167; John M. Wike, P.G.D.; W. C. Madderer, 504; J. E. Middleton, P.G.S.; G. Gardiner, 749; and H. Massey ("Freemason"). After the usual formalities Bros. Buck, Milburn, and Butler were raised; and Messrs. Robert Cheadle, James Fenn Beck, and Reuben Charles Green were initiated. The election of W.M. for the ensuing year was then taken, and Bro. J. Simpson, S.W., was unanimously chosen to fill the chair in succession to Bro. Tickle. Bro. Robert Henry Pearson was unanimously re-elected Treasurer; and Bro. W. Steedman, Tyler. Bro. Tickle in acquainting Bro. Simpson of the choice of the brethren, said it afforded him very great pleasure to do so. He could assure him that it was an honour and a dignity to which he need not say certainly all the younger brethren aspired. He felt confident that Bro. Simpson would appreciate the honour the lodge had done him in unanimously electing him, and he knew that he (Bro. Tickle) would have in Bro. Simpson a very worthy successor in the chair. The brethren too would support him as well as they had supported their present Master. Bro. Simpson in reply thanked the brethren for the honour they had done him, and he trusted he should perform his duties with honour to the lodge and credit to himself. The W.M. in addressing the Treasurer said that the brethren were pleased with the way in which Bro. Pearson had performed his duties as Treasurer, as they were glad to have such a brother in whose hands they could place the financial concerns of the lodge. Bro. Pearson said he appreciated the honour conferred on him, and would promise to take great care of the cash, which he was always ready to receive. He would not run into debt, but during the present year the W.M. had been very generous, and the balance in hand was not so large as he would like it to be. He hoped by next year to have a larger balance, and he would do all in his power to increase it. The W.M. afterwards gave his authority for forming a lodge of instruction, to be called the Urban Lodge of Instruction. Before the brethren adjourned to banquet, Bro. R. H. Marston, P.M., D.C., appealed to the lodge on behalf of an old actor (Bro. H. Mellon), late a member of Mr. Phelps' Saddlers' Wells Company, who had requested him to bring his case before the brethren at this meeting. Bro. Mellon, however, died on last Saturday week, and the widow, with whom he (Bro. Marston) had been in communication, as she was in great distress, would feel grateful for any assistance which the lodge might feel inclined to bestow. A sum was then voted from the fund of benevolence, and at the banquet table a further grant was made by the voluntary donations of the brethren. On the motion of Bro. J. Pearson, P.M., seconded by the S.W., a Past Master's jewel was unanimously voted to

Bro. Tickle, W.M. Lodge was then called off for refreshment, and the brethren sat down to a very nice banquet, at which the W.M. presided, and, assisted by Bro. Loverdo, W.S., was unremitting in attention to the comforts of the brethren. The toasts were admirably proposed, and the brethren were treated to other than the set phrases which they are accustomed to hear. In introducing the first toast, the W.M. said the toast of "The Queen" was paramount in all assemblies of Englishmen, and not the less so in the Urban Lodge. It has been said that "Kings make reigns; and Queens make eras," and when English history—the history of the present reign—came to be written, he ventured to think that the Victorian era would not be surpassed by any that had preceded it. The health of our beloved Queen needed not many words of adulation from him, and he would therefore simply give the toast of "Her Majesty the Queen,"—the leader of English, in fact, he might say of modern society. The toast of "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," led the W.M. to say that His Royal Highness was an English gentleman as well as the Grand Master of Freemasons, and it was his qualities as an English gentleman that had made him so popular, and endeared him to Englishmen. He did not think he was travelling out of his province when he said that of all the Princes of Wales who had figured in English history there had been none so popular as the present Grand Master. After "The Health of the Pro Grand Master" had been honoured, the W.M. proposed "The Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers," and coupling with it the name of Bro. John M. Wike, P.G.D., referred to this well-known name in connection with the Masonic Institutions. Directing the brethren's attention to the numerous jewels on Bro. Wike's breast, he said they represented a Stewardship for these Institutions as many as fourteen times, and he ventured to say there never came within the Urban Lodge such a representative of the Charities as Bro. Wike, who had filled in past times not only the office of S.G.D. of England, but that of S.G.W. of his (the W.M.'s) native county, East Lancashire. Bro. Wike, in acknowledging the toast, said he must plead guilty to both these indictments; he had held the offices referred to, and he had done all that in his power lay for the promotion of the cause of the Masonic Charities. It was this one word "Charity" which enabled him to say something in response to the toast. There could not be a Mason who did not own that it was one of the greatest ornaments of the Order to have such institutions connected with it as the Benevolent Institution and the Boys' and Girls' Schools. That it was proper, that it was right; to relieve those brethren who from various circumstances were no longer able to support themselves, that it was their bounden duty to care for the widows of the brethren when the brethren had departed this life, was so evident a proposition—it was a duty so consonant with every principle of religion and morality—that he did not care to say one word concerning it. That it was their duty to go further, and not stopping at relieving existing wants, providing for the wants of the coming generation, was also an evident fact. In this the brethren might take credit to themselves, and stand forth without a blush before the world and say that such institutions did not exist outside the Craft. There were no such schools anywhere, simply because they were not charity schools supported by almsgiving; but the children were put into them as the children of our unfortunate brothers, and not as those receiving a pittance or dole. The brethren were improving those schools while they were increasing them year by year. Long might they continue to be the pride of the Order, nay, he might almost say, the reason why our organisation existed. But the word "charity" taken simply in that sense, was not the only sense in which Masons understood it, nor was it for charity in that sense that Masonry existed. The "charity" of Freemasonry was not simply the charity which consisted of putting one's hand in the pocket, that the man who had money should give it to the man who had none. He was bound to believe, as every Freemason believed, that Solomon was a Freemason, and that Freemasons had existed ever since; and he also believed that the Apostle Paul was a Freemason, or he would never have given such a definition of the word "charity" as he did. It was that definition of charity they ought to strive to inculcate in all the new initiates. The "charity" which was the bond of Freemasonry, which had kept Freemasons in existence, and would keep it in existence, was the charity which was represented by the shorter word "love." When a man became a Freemason the precepts of the Order taught him to be a little more loving and generous than the hard world he saw around him; he saw that he was to discover something good in men. In the "outer world" men set up a round god in the shape of a sovereign and worshipped it; but when he entered Freemasonry he found it something better. He found in it that he was taught to believe not the worst of a man, but the best; and he found when he advanced to the higher degrees of Freemasonry that he was not to believe even when a thing looked bad in a brother, but that he was to seek for a favourable interpretation, and even to believe that there was something good though he did not see it. That was the charity we should strive after, and which would keep us together as long as the world lasted, so long as we were actuated by the noble sentiment of thinking the best of each other, of believing everything that was good and repudiating everything that was evil. So long as we shewed our faith in this principle so long would Freemasonry flourish, and so long would the brethren assemble at their monthly meetings and be enabled to drink the health and do honour to the heads of the Order. (Hear hear.) In giving "The Health of the Initiates," the W.M. contrasted the present position of the lodge with the position it was in as regarded the number of its members when he was initiated five or six years ago. He thanked Bro. Wike for the noble sentiments he had given utterance to, because he thought he had thereby instilled into the minds of the three brethren who had just joined thoughts which not only did honour to Freemasonry, but would do honour to the Initiates if they would only follow them. He believed these brethren would take advantage of the sentiments of Bro. Wike. For, what was Freemasonry? He had often told his private friends, in reply to their enquiries, that Freemasonry was a gigantic charitable institution. Some people said it was a sentiment, but this was not the fact, for it was a practical thing applied to real life. The W.M. concluded by proposing "The Health of the Initiates" who severally responded. "The Visitors" was the next toast, to which each of those brethren was called on for a reply. Bro. Wike proposed "The W.M.," who, he said, presided at the banquet table as well as he did in the lodge. He had filled the chair with the approval of every member of the lodge, and he was now quitting it with the regret of every member of the lodge. Under his presidency the brethren had felt themselves well cared for in the lodge and in the hours of refreshment. When he left the chair he would bear with him the thanks of every member. He hoped he would be as well succeeded as he had been well preceded. Nothing was so healthy a sign in a lodge as the ability of its officers, and there could not be a stronger testimony to the merits of the W.M. than the able assistance he had had from these brethren. In the course of his reply, the W.M. said he hoped that leaving the chair he should leave it with the goodwill of all the brethren. If anything had occurred during his year of office that had hurt the feelings of any of them it had not been his fault. It had been his earnest desire to do justice to all, but in doing justice to all he felt he could not consult the wishes of all. With respect to the Treasurer's remark in lodge regarding the liberality of the W.M., and its effect on the funds, he felt that when the annual account came to be made up the balance of the present W.M. would not be far behind that of the I.P.M. They had not reached the audit yet, and he dared say there were some funds to come in which would brighten the prospects of the lodge, and lighten the heart and sweeten the tongue of their Treasurer. "The P.M.'s" was the next toast, which was responded to by Bros. Pearson, Carpenter, Marston, Ware, and the Treasurer. Bro. Simpson responded to the toast of "The W.M. elect," and said he would endeavour to perform his duties with satisfaction to all the brethren. The Tyler's toast concluded a most agreeable evening. Lodge was then resumed, and afterwards closed, and the brethren separated.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. R. PAWSON HOOTON.

The installation meeting of the above lodge was held on Saturday last at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. There was a large gathering of the brethren on the occasion, and among the brethren present were three honorary members of the lodge, Bro. John Hervey, G.Secr.; Bro. James Terry, P.G.D.C. Hertz; and Bro. H. Gustavus Buss, P.G.W. Middlesex. The lodge was opened by Bro. R. P. Hooton, W.M., assisted by Bros. W. S. Whitaker, S.W.; James Cowan, J.W.; John Clarricoats, Treas.; Montagu Scott, Sec.; T. S. Hellier, S.D.; Nelson Reed, J.D.; Thos. Brown, D.C.; George C. Searle, Org.; C. A. Brock, Steward; George Briggs, I.G.; and W. Steedman, Tyler. There were several lay members present, besides visitors: Bros. W. Porter, W.M. 1269; H. Bartlett, P.M. 147; C. J. Hogg, P.M. 58, P.G.S.; Edward Terry, S.W. 1319; Thos. Loveridge, P.M. 28; W. M. Medcalf, 1086; James J. Chapman, 1541; George Luscombe, 879; W. Barber, 754; Bertram Noakes, S.D. 92; W. Stoltenhoff, P.M. 21; John Bumper, 1426; S. Earl, 186; J. G. Shearman, W.M. 28; G. H. Caviot, 1426; and H. Massey ("Freemason"). The W.M. passed Bro. Philip Bullock to the Second Degree, and raised Bro. George Chaffey as a Master Mason. Afterwards Bro. Hooton installed Bro. W. S. Whitaker in the chair, and the following brethren were appointed to office:—Bros. R. P. Hooton, I.P.M., P.M. 765; James Cowan, S.W. (Lodge Commercial, 180, Oban); Thos. S. Hellier, I.G. 1580, S.W.; J. Clarricoats, Treas.; Montagu Scott, P.M.; Sec.; Nelson Reed, S.D.; G. Briggs, J.D.; Geo. A. Brock, I.G.; Thomas Brown, D.C.; Fred. Morgan, W.S.; George Carew Searle, Org.; and W. Steedman, Tyler. Bro. John Hervey delivered the charge to the W.M.; Bro. Terry the charge to the Wardens; and Bro. Montagu Scott the charge to the brethren. Subsequently the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a splendid banquet served by Bro. Jennings, the manager of the tavern. The customary toasts followed. Bro. John Hervey responded to the toast of "The Pro G.M., the D.G.M., and Grand Officers," and said that in returning thanks for these eminent brethren he might say they needed no words of praise from him, inasmuch as they were doing their work excellently, and this fact was well known and appreciated by all the brethren present. This lodge bearing the name of the Pro Grand Master, all the members must feel that they were part and parcel of the Pro Grand Master, who, although he was not present, was watching over them, thinking of them, and rejoicing in their success. As far as the Present and Past Grand Officers went, he believed they had shown that they were not wholly ornamental on more than one occasion, for even on the 24th November eight of those brethren worked the Sections in the Emulation Lodge of Improvement in a manner which ensured the gratification of all who heard them. For himself, he (Grand Secretary) had hoped and trusted to come to the Carnarvon Lodge that evening for more reasons than one; first of all, because he expected to see the present W.M. installed, and secondly, because he knew that he should receive a cordial and kind reception from every member of the lodge. He anticipated it because he consecrated the lodge twelve months since, and he looked forward with much pleasure to this visit. That pleasure had been enhanced in several ways, by the excellent working of the I.P.M., which convinced him that during the past year all the work had been done well, and to the satisfaction of every one. He saw in the lodge a spirit of kindness and cordiality throughout, such as should pervade every lodge in the Craft; and it rejoiced him to see that the lodge had made such progress during one short year. He saw round the table an immense gathering, which spoke well for the lodge, for its members, and for the officers. It was immensely gratifying to him to see the brother who was appointed S.W. last year now installed as W.M., and the other officers also advanced a step. It was a proof that they would reflect credit on the Craft and honour on the lodge of which they were founders and first officers. He was almost astonished to find himself there, and yet not among strangers, although there were many strangers to him present. So many being present showed how the Craft had progressed and the lodge had progressed, because there were many brethren who had come into it recently, and who had joined it, he believed, under the expectation that they were entering a society which was based upon that which was not only good, but noble, and that would conduce to their gratification as a grand body. It was often asked why and for what benefit Freemasonry existed. He thought they might look round the table and say that they met together—men who were total strangers to each other for the time being; but they rubbed their shoulders together and knocked off those corners which existed necessarily outside the lodge. They came amongst each other probably as strangers, but they went away as friends. Although probably taking up too much of their time, for which he apologised he must say he was pleased to come among the brethren of the lodge, and was gratified by the compliment they had paid him. He trusted that the success which the Carnarvon Lodge had achieved during the past year might not only be equalled but exceeded in years to come. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Hooton proposed "The Health of the Worshipful Master," who, he said, was initiated only three years ago, and was a living proof of what might be done by aptitude in acquiring Masonic knowledge at lodges of instruction. The W.M. was very naturally proud of the position he occupied, not only as Master of a lodge but of a lodge so young in the Craft as the Carnarvon Lodge. All the brethren knew, but more especially those who were immediately connected with him in Masonry, how assiduous the W.M. had been since his initiation. He had attended lodges of instruction night after night, and as a result he was the pride of the younger brethren. It took him (Bro. Hooton) seven long years to attain the Master's chair; but that was a long time ago. He hoped the W.M.'s example would be followed by the junior members of the lodge, and if they only devoted time, study, and thought to their work there was nothing that might not be achieved in Masonry. The W.M. in reply, said it was with feelings of mingled pleasure and regret that he rose to reply to the toast that had just been proposed by the I.P.M., of pleasure at finding himself the occupant of his present honourable position, but of regret at his inability to find words to express his feelings of gratitude. Bro. Hooton had just said that he (the W.M.) had only been initiated three years ago; but he did not wish to arrogate to himself any distinction on that ground. He must explain to the visitors that it was owing to the confidence the brethren had placed in him that he had now the honour of occupying the Master's chair; for there were many brethren quite as competent as himself who had had to serve their seven years of office before reaching that position. He was fully sensible of the honour they conferred upon him, and he was also alive to the important duties which devolved upon him. It was essential in every candidate for the Master's chair that he should feel himself competent to perform the duties. It was doubly important in the Carnarvon Lodge that the W.M. should thoroughly understand his duties before he attempted to perform the ceremonies in the presence of brethren who also knew how to perform those duties, and who attended lodges of instruction the same as he did. If not, they must feel vexation and disappointment when they saw the ceremonies performed in a negligent and inefficient manner. He hoped they would not have that complaint to make of him, but that he would give them satisfaction. When the time came round for him to cede his office to other hands he hoped he would hand over the warrant of the lodge to his successor "without spot or blemish," well knowing that his brethren would say in the generosity of their heart, "Well done, good and faithful servant." (Hear, hear.) The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the I.P.M." He said it would ill become him to say much of so distinguished a brother, but he thought he could not speak higher in his favour than by saying that he had had fifteen initiates in his year, and that they had all been initiated, passed, and raised by him. Bro. Hooton had not only performed these ceremonies, but he had performed them well. The I.P.M. deserved all their sympathies and all their thanks, and he retired from the chair with great honour. The lodge had been pleased to vote him a Past Master's jewel, which he (the W.M.) had now the honour to place on his breast. (Cheers.) Bro. Hooton in reply said he rose to return thanks with no ordinary amount of pleasure and satisfaction. It was a very proud distinction to be the Master of a lodge of Freemasons, and if it were possible it was a still greater distinction to be Master of such a lodge as the Carnarvon Lodge. He had during his year of office endeavoured to the utmost of his ability to carry out the duties of his office. If he had succeeded it was a sufficient proof that he had endeavoured to do so, and he could lay the flattering unction to his soul that he had performed his work with credit to himself and satisfaction to the brethren. As regarded the formation of the lodge he had taken some part in that, and the brethren could testify that he had striven to maintain its dignity. He felt satisfied that the brethren were pleased with what he had done by awarding him the massive and elegant jewel which had been just placed on his breast by the W.M. To be of any value such a present should mean something, and it was, because it meant something that he highly prized it, and should highly prize it to the latest period of his life. It recorded that he was the first W.M. of such a highly distinguished lodge as the Carnarvon Lodge, a lodge which he hoped might be ever more successful in the future if possible than it had been in the past. Every expense of the lodge had been defrayed during its first year. There were twenty-three honorary members, two joining members, and fifteen candidates. He must thank the officers and brethren of the lodge one and all for their kind co-operation with him in performing the work of the lodge. Without good officers a Master could do nothing, but with good officers he could defy the world. Twelve months ago he undertook the office of W.M. with anxiety, care, and thought. He then made a promise to carry out his duties, and that he had done so he was satisfied by the satisfaction of the brethren and the testimony of a good conscience. One of his last acts was to write to the Pro Grand Master for his permission to the lodge to bear his coat of arms, feeling sure that the lodge would not sully those arms. In reply he had received a letter from Lord Donoughmore, S.G.W. of England, as follows:—"Colonial Office, 15th Nov., 1876. Sir and Brother,—I am directed by the Earl of Carnarvon to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of Nov. 13th, and to state that his lordship has great pleasure in complying with the request therein with regard to the use of his arms by the Carnarvon Lodge. With reference to the second portion of your letter, whilst fully appreciating the kind expressions in which your invitation is couched, his lordship much regrets that he will be unable to avail himself of it. The pressure of public business at this moment, and for some time to come, will be so great both in this department and elsewhere, that his time is more than fully occupied. I am, sir and brother, faithfully and fraternally yours, Donoughmore, G.S.W." Bro. Hooton concluded by observing that the jewel which had been presented to him bore Lord Carnarvon's arms, and that the lodge had the authority of his lordship for using them. "The Visitors" was the next toast, to which Bro. Stoltenhoff and others responded. The W.M. then gave "The Masonic Charities," reminding the brethren of the definition of charity in the lectures, and that they would be called upon to vote a sum out of the £56 in the benevolent fund towards the Benevolent Institutions. Bro. Terry responded. He was certain that among all the members of the Craft there were none who had determined more thoroughly to apply themselves to the interests of the Masonic Institutions than the members of the Carnarvon Lodge. Proof has been given of this (he continued) by your balance sheet this evening, you having placed away in your first year's existence a sum of over £50 to benefit the Institutions: and I congratulate the Master of this lodge as well as its members on having done all they could to enhance the prosperity of the lodge, and to consider the wants of those who are less blessed than themselves. From what I can learn from your remarks this evening, before a very long time, brethren, you will be called upon to vote away a portion of your invested funds; and I venture to hope that the cause of the aged may not be overlooked in connection with the Institutions for the boys and the girls, and more especially so, sir, as in February next the Benevolent Institution will have the honour of having as its chairman for the first time His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master for Oxford; and as the Secretary of that institution I think you will agree with me that it is a very pardonable ambition on my part to endeavour on the first occasion of His Royal Highness presiding to have as large a Board of Stewards as it is possible to congregate together, with the view to having the largest amount of subscriptions ever announced on behalf of that institution. That can very readily be done if a similar plan is adopted to that which has been adopted in the Cripplegate Lodge. When I had the pleasure of giving my reply for the Masonic Institutions on the occasion of the installation meeting of that lodge, within four minutes afterwards the sum of £55 was placed on a Steward's list to represent the old people at their festival in February next. I am certain of this, that the Carnarvon Lodge is desirous to do all it can. I know the spirit of emulation exists among all its members. Subject to the condition of their own funds and their own wants, they are desirous of doing all they can when the time comes for the allotment of the money for each institution. But though you may think of the Boys' School and the Girls' School—two noble institutions that are doing admirably their duty by providing for nearly 400 children—after doing all you can on their behalf and for their welfare, do not let those who have borne the heat and burden of the day, those who have been like ourselves in prosperous circumstances, when the day of adversity has overtaken them, be forgotten; do not let it be considered that because those poor old men and poor old women who have had the misfortune to outlive their day and generation, have none of those who knew them in their day of prosperity to assist them, that it is not our duty to do so. On their behalf I venture to appeal to the Carnarvon Lodge, one of the most prosperous in the Craft, whenever the claims of the Masonic Institutions are brought before them, not to forget the Benevolent Institution. I know well I am speaking now to a very sympathetic body of brethren. I know I have but to ask, and you will give. I have not, but I venture to hope that between now and February next I may have, the honour of receiving the name of some member of the lodge representing you as Steward at our festival; I know then that the members of the lodge will rally round him and do their duty to the lodge for the sake of the Earl of Carnarvon, the Pro Grand Master, whose name and arms you bear. I thank you, sir, very much indeed for proposing, and I thank the brethren for having very kindly responded to this toast, and I have only, in conclusion, to hope and trust that every success may attend this Carnarvon Lodge and all its members; and the best wish I think I can utter for your happiness and prosperity, is this, that largely may you give to all the Institutions, and never have any occasion to find among your members, or any of your descendants, those who may have to ask for a return of the kindness you bestowed on the charities of the Order. (Hear hear, and cheers.) Bro. James Cowan, S.W., responded to the toast of "The Officers." Considering the very recent period when his latest honours had been conferred upon him, when he had not yet recovered from his blushes, he hoped the brethren would not think his reply was inadequate. For himself, as well as the rest of the officers, he would say they considered it their duty to obey the W.M. Twelve months ago he expressed himself in that hall to the effect that it was the happiest and most glorious moment of his life that the office of J.W. had been conferred on him. On that occasion Grand Secretary invested him with the collar of J.W. He had recently had conferred on him the collar of S.W., and he considered that while it was his privilege to wear that collar he was to qualify himself for the discharge of the duties connected with the office of S.W. While in that office he should use his best endeavours to maintain the dignity of his chair, and he trusted his exertions would meet with the W.M.'s approbation. He thanked the W.M. for the graceful opportunity afforded him, by coupling his name with the toast of "The Officers," of acknowledging the kindness of the W.M. in raising him to the distinguished position he now occupied. The other officers also replied, and the Tyler's toast having been given, the brethren separated. A splendid musical entertainment was given in the course of the evening by Bros. Willcocks, Brown, Cotton, F. Willcocks, Pearce, Reed, Clarricoats, Russell, Medcalf, Earl, Searle, Morton, and Dafforn, the accompaniments being played by Bro. G. C. Searle, Organist. Bro. Montagu Scott gave his recitation of "Solomon" and Daniel.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge (No. 540).—The 29th day of November witnessed another of those pleasant gatherings for which this lodge is so justly famous, it being the anniversary banquet. It was a day long to be remembered in the annals of the lodge, for it witnessed the installation, as W.M., of a descendant of one of the original founders of the lodge, who, as he inherits their revered name, so too inherits the respect and esteem in which they were ever held by the lodge. The now I.P.M., Bro. Capt. Green, after the minutes had been read and confirmed, proposed, and Bro. W. J. Nash, P.M., seconded, a grant of £25, which Capt. Green is raising for Bro. Warren, who is an old member of the lodge, and who has recently been obliged, from old age and failing sight, to resign the post of station master to the London and North-Western Railway Company at Bedford, a position which, we believe, he has held ever since the opening of the line. Bro. Green then vacated the chair, when the installation ceremony was very ably performed by Bro. Dr. Prior, P.M., and Secretary of the lodge. The newly-installed W.M., Col. Stuart, P.G.S.W. of England, P.G.H. England, &c., &c., then proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. Capt. Green, J.P., I.P.M.; W. Finlinson, P.M., S.W.; Capt. Colburn, J.W.; Rev. C. Brereton, B.C.L. and R.D., Chap.; Prior, M.D., P.M., Sec.; Alderman Sergeant, P.M. Treas.; Alderman Bull, J.P., Steward; Coombs, M.R.C.S., &c., S.D.; J. Allen, J.D.; H. Thody, I.G.; Piper, M.A., Org.; G. Reynolds, Tyler. The other P.M.'s of the lodge present were Bros. Capt. Polhill-Turner, M.P., D.L.; W. F. Nash, J.P.; G. P. Nash, Cuthbert, Billson, Trapp, and Rev. Fawcett Ward, M.A., late of Louth, Lincolnshire. Amongst the brethren were Bros. Alderman Hurst, Wicks, Peck, Lane, Lambie, Stafford, Roe, Thompson, Whittaker, Kilpin, Roberts, Leslie, and Dr. Rhys Williams, Ast. G.S. Wks. England. Amongst the visitors we noticed Bros. Haydon, P.G.S. England; Ballard, of Prov. G.L. Cambridgeshire; Aldermen Cumberland and Hazlegrave, P.M.'s of 475; Chambers, 475; Seward, 147; Richardson, P.M. 455; Roe and Game, 353; Hillhouse, 228; and Dunkley, of Tunbridge Wells. The banquet was excellent, doing as much credit to the host as the arrangements generally did to the Steward, Bro. Bull.

BIRKENHEAD.—Mersey Lodge (No. 477).—The November meeting of this flourishing lodge took place a few days ago, at the spacious Masonic Chambers Argyle-street. Bro. F. G. Adams, W.M., presided, and there was a large attendance of the brethren. Mr. George Lloyd, of Balls-road, Cloughton, was impressively initiated by the W.M., and several brethren were raised to the Third Degree. Bro. T. Barrow, of the Rock Lodge, was admitted as a joining member.

DEPTFORD.—Royal Oak Lodge (No. 87).—The regular meeting of this well-established lodge was held at the White Swan Hotel, 217, High-street, Deptford, on Thursday, November 23rd. Bro. H. J. Tuson, W.M., opened the lodge. The minutes of the previous meeting were read, confirmed, and signed by the W.M. He passed Bros. Whibley, Sanders, Fowler, and Davis to the Second Degree, raised Bros. Abbott and Michaels; and Bro. G. Andrews, P.M., D.C., raised Bros. Buchele and Wildermuth to the Third Degree. The work was ably done. Several important notices of motion were agreed to. The initiation and joining fees were raised each to ten guineas. The services of the W.M. were accepted as Steward to represent this lodge at the festival for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons. He headed his list with ten pounds, and the lodge will supplement that amount with a similar sum. He also received the promise of a good support from the members. It was unanimously decided to support the scheme to be introduced by the South Eastern Masonic Association for securing the election of all candidates approved of for all the Charities, Bro. Wm. Andrews, P.M., Treas., being elected as the representative from this lodge. Business ended, the lodge was closed and adjourned till January. There were present Bros. J. J. Pakes, S.W.; J. Baxter Langley, J.W.; W. Andrews, P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, G.J.D. Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; G. T. Limn, S.D.; R. Hannan, J.D.; J. G. Vohmann, I.G.; H. J. Fisher, Org.; G. Andrews, P.M., D.C.; A. Macers, W. Simmons, J. G. Thomas, R. J. Harvey, W. O. Lockhead, H. W. F. Fellows, and others. The long list of visitors included Bros. C. Relph, P.P.G.S.D. Kent, P.M. 188, P.M. 77; J. Roper, P.M. 147; B. Beaver, 700; T. Gambrell, 1194; R. J. Dart, 192; G. Brown, P.M. 169; R. W. Robinson, 879; D. Smith, 1326, and others.

PAIGNTON.—Torbay Lodge (No. 1358).—This successful lodge held its usual monthly meeting on Tuesday, 28th ult., at the Town Hall, Paignton. As on this occasion a Past Master's jewel was to be presented to the I.P.M., Bro. W. E. Warren, a large number of Past Masters, visitors, and members of the lodge assembled to do him honour. Bro. J. Couldrey presided, and was supported by Bros. W. E. Warren, I.P.M.; J. T. Goodridge, P.M.; J. J. C. Piller, P.M.; Rev. R. Bowden, P.P.G.C.; Jas. Greenfield, P.P.G.D.; C. H. Law, P.P. G.W. Herts; and J. Piggott, W.M. 328. Among the visitors were Bros. S. Burton, S.W. 328; R. C. Smith, 328; J. Salter, 328; Wakeham, 328; P. Warren, 1254, Semper Fidelis, Exeter; Willey, Exeter, Brent Lodge, 1284; and Valentine, Teignmouth 303. The W.M. opened the lodge, and the minutes having been confirmed the chair was occupied by P.M. Bro. J. T. Goodridge, who proceeded to initiate Mr. Thomas Hamlyn into the mysteries of the Craft in his usual happy manner. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. S. R. Higham, a candidate for the Third Degree, having proved his proficiency, was entrusted and retired. The lodge having been opened in the Third Degree, the chair was filled by P.M. Bro. the Rev. R. Bowden, who raised Bro. Higham to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason in a manner that left nothing to be desired. The W.M. having resumed the gavel and closed down the lodge, in eloquent and complimentary language addressed the I.P.M., Bro. Warren, and begged his acceptance of a handsome Past Master's jewel, not only as a mark of the esteem and respect in which he was held by the brethren of the lodge, but for the zeal he had evinced for Freemasonry from the formation of the Torbay Lodge, of which he was the active founder, as well as for the efficient manner he had discharged the office of Worshipful Master during the past year. Bro. Warren, he remarked, was at his post every lodge night, and whatever work was to be done he was always found equal to the occasion, his rendering the various ceremonies being as nearly perfect as possible, and his ruling being as firm and as dignified as it was urbane and felicitous. The lodge felt a debt of gratitude to the W. brother for the exemplary manner in which he had discharged the great and onerous duties appertaining to his high office, and the brethren desired to mark their appreciation of his abilities and conduct whilst at their head by requesting him as W. Master to present him with the jewel voted him, and at the same time to wish him, on their behalf, long life, happiness, and prosperity. The I.P.M., Bro. Warren, said he could not adequately thank them all for their fraternal good will and kindness, manifested in the tangible token of their esteem so flatteringly bestowed upon him. His aim and object had been throughout his Masonic career (and he had filled almost every office) to do his duty conscientiously as in the sight of the Great Architect of the Universe, whom we all acknowledged, and he believed he had been so blessed with the hearty co-operation of his officers and brethren in the lodge that his duties had been rendered comparatively light. He felt, and should always regard with pleasure, the unvaried kindness and brotherly love he had received at their hands. A kind word and deed had cheered him more than once in his difficulties, and helped him in his path of duty, at the same time he also felt that he had had more honours showered upon him than he deserved. His aim also had been to rule justly and equitably, and to deserve their approbation. If their kind present meant anything, it meant that he had been successful in so doing, and the inward satisfaction of knowing that his duties had been performed in an acceptable manner was sufficiently a reward, but to be honoured as they had honoured him was more than he expected. The handsome jewel he should wear with pride and pleasure whenever in lodge, and of all his possessions he should treasure that, as the visible expression of their inward feelings of brotherly love towards him. The Torbay Lodge was, he might say, founded at his instigation, and although at the time a young Mason he had exerted himself to obtain a meeting of the brethren in the neighbourhood. This meeting was attended by distinguished members of the Craft, happily of one heart and one mind, and the Torbay Lodge became a reality, and his prayer was that from year to year it might increase and prosper even more than it had hitherto done. He would ever cherish the remembrance of this day, and hand down their valuable present to his children as an incentive to them to do their duty. Two brethren were proposed as joining members, and the lodge having been closed the brethren adjourned to an excellent spread in their clothing room, and the evening was spent in a pleasant and harmonious manner, the speeches being pertinent and pregnant with Masonic fervour.

MOLD.—Sir Watkin Lodge (No. 1477).—The members of this lodge met at their lodge-room in the Market Hall, on Monday, the 20th ult. There was a good muster of the brethren. Bro. J. Salmon, P.J.G.W., presided, and performed the work in his usual effective style. Mr. A. Howard was initiated, and Bros. Hughes and James were raised.

CHISLEHURST.—Chislehurst Lodge (No. 1531).—The regular meeting of this new and flourishing lodge was held on Saturday, at the Bull's Head, Chislehurst, and, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, a goodly number of the brethren assembled to discharge their Masonic duties. Among those present were Bros. George Guest, W.M.; W. Kipps, S.W.; Gloster, J.W.; James Griffin, P.M., Sec.; Hutchings, I.G.; Hunt, W.S.; Grant, Tyler, and the following members of the lodge:—Bros. West, Williams, Wain, Hollis, W. O. Goldsmith ("Freemason"), Hooker, Samuels, Hayline, Dana, and Luck, and visitors, Bros. Thompson, 1475, and Dowsett, 79. The lodge having been duly opened, the minutes of the last lodge meeting were read and confirmed, and the usual routine business was disposed of. There being no special business for consideration, the brethren with true Masonic spirit devoted an hour in working several of the sections, in which they exhibited much proficiency. The lodge was afterwards opened in the superior degree and then closed down, when, at the request of the brethren, the S.W., Bro. W. Kipps, undertook to represent the lodge at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The lodge having been closed, refreshment was served, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M. and heartily responded to. In proposing the toast of "The M.W.G.M., His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," the W.M. alluded to the gratification that every member of the Craft must have experienced at the enthusiastic reception His Royal Highness met with in India; and his safe return to his native country was a source of congratulation to every one. They all knew that the Grand Master took the deepest interest in the welfare of the Craft, and was ever ready to appear amongst them when circumstances permitted, as was evident by his recent visit to Norwich to install Lord Suffield in the important office of P.G.M. They could not but regard it as a high honour to be presided over by the Heir Apparent. The toast having been duly honoured the W.M. gave "The Pro G.M., D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," all of whom, he said, were entitled to the thanks and confidence of the Craft. Speaking of the Earl of Carnarvon he pointed out that only the previous day his lordship had severed himself from his important public duties in order to attend to a Masonic call, he having been present at the festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement. The next toast was "The Health of Viscount Holmesdale, the Prov. G.M. of Kent," who, the W.M. said, took the liveliest interest in the well-being of the province as was shown by the communications they had received from him and the close watch he kept over their proceedings. This toast, as also that of "The Rest of the Prov. Grand Officers," was heartily received. In reply to the toast of his health the W.M. regretted that the lodge had not much business to transact, but said there were accidental circumstances to account for this. They were, however, a very harmonious body; in fact, a pattern in this respect, and he believed they carried out the principles of Masonry in the highest sense. In reply to the toast of "The I.P.M. and the other Officers," Bro. Griffin, Secretary, expressed his regret that Bro. J. Coutts, P.G.P., the I.P.M., was prevented by illness from being present. They always welcomed him, and were glad to see so able and genial a worker amongst them. (Cheers.) Much sympathy was expressed by the brethren for Bro. Coutts, who was one of the founders of the lodge, its first W.M., and present I.P.M. and Treasurer. Replying to "The Masonic Charities," Bro. Kipps expressed the pleasure it would afford him to represent the lodge at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and said when he had previously acted as Steward on behalf of the lodge at the charities he was able to take up a good round sum. From the subscriptions he had received from the brethren during the afternoon, and the promises of support he had received from those who were not present, he had every reason to believe he should be able to hand in a considerably larger sum than before. "The Visitors" and other toasts followed, and a most agreeable afternoon was spent, the Tyler's toast concluding the programme.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—The most satisfactory success continues to attend this lodge, which held its monthly meeting at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on the 28th ult. Bro. Joseph Bell, W.M., presided, and amongst the largest gathering of officers, members, and visitors yet seen at the Dramatic were Bros. B. B. Marson, P.M.; W. J. Chapman, S.W.; Lindo Courtenay, J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treas.; H. J. Loveday, Sec.; W. Sandbrook, J.D.; J. Atkinson, I.G.; A. Collinson, Steward; G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; J. Hocken, P.M. 673; D. Saunders, B. Richardson, H. Leslie, F. Amey, Dr. Whittle, W. Coates, P. Shrapnell, W. Hildyard, H. P. Squire, C. Leighton, P.M. 1325, and others. Messrs. J. L. Shrapnell and John Hill being balloted for and duly elected, were initiated by the W.M. in the most satisfactory manner, and Bros. Leslie, Amey, Walton, Burgess, Dale, Cooke, and Lablache were passed to the Second Degree with equal efficiency. The W.M. read a letter from Bro. Loveday, the Secretary, tendering his resignation of that office in consequence of his removal to London in January to fulfil a professional engagement at the Lyceum Theatre. General regret was expressed that the Dramatic Lodge should lose so amiable and valuable an officer as Bro. Loveday. After a vote for charity, the brethren adjourned to banquet, and a pleasant evening was spent.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (Time Immemorial).—A regular meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, Nov. 30th. The lodge was opened at a quarter to eight by Bro. Carey, W.M., supported by the following:—Bro. Jas. Dutton, I.P.M.; Dr. Hopkins, Past G.J.W., Chaplain; Cater, S.W.; John Dutton, J.W.; Rubie, Secretary; Abraham, as M.O.; Major Preston, as S.O.; Brown, as J.O.; Murlis, S.D.; Radway, J.D.; Falkner, Reg., as I.G.; Bigwood, Tyler. There were also present as visitors Bros. Munro, P.M. 119; Amor, 119; Moutrie; and many members. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A unanimous ballot was taken for Bro. Amor as a joining member. A candidate for advancement, who was expected, sent a note at the last moment, satisfactorily explaining his inability to attend. The bye-laws were read, also a circular announcing the meeting of Grand Mark Lodge on Dec. 5th. Bro. Dr. Hopkins reported that he had represented the Cumberland Mark Lodge at Grand Lodge meetings at Bristol and Birmingham, on both of which occasions he had occupied the chair of G.S.W. Bro. Munro thanked the brethren for their kind reception of him as a visitor, and invited them to attend the Carnarvon Lodge at Keynsham, on Dec. 14th. Bro. Amor also expressed his gratification on his admission as a joining member. Bro. Captain Moneypenny congratulated the lodge on its present thriving condition and prospects, which appeared very different from what they were when he last attended a meeting a considerable time ago. Bros. Brown and Howes proposed three candidates for advancement, and Bros. Radway and Dingle gave the name of another. No other business offering, the lodge was closed at a quarter to nine, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment.

NEWPORT.—Keystone Lodge (No. 109).—By far the largest gathering of Mark Masons ever held in the province took place at Newport, on Monday, the 27th ult., at the Masonic Hall, under the auspices of the Keystone Lodge, for the purpose of advancing duly qualified brethren, and installing Bro. W. Wattaris as W.M. for the ensuing year. The lodge was opened by Captain

S. Geo. Homfray, P.M.M., in the unavoidable absence of the W.M. Several brethren were duly advanced, and the beautiful ceremony of the Mark Degree was magnificently rendered by the presiding W.M., who is also the D.P.G.M. of the province, and P.A.G.D.C. of England. The installation of Bro. W. Watkins was then proceeded with, and it is not too much to say that this grand ceremony was given to perfection, and after being duly installed, Bro. Watkins invested his officers, viz.: Bros. L. A. Homfray, as I.P.M.; Captain S. Geo. Homfray, D.C.; Captain A. T. Perkins, S.W.; R. J. Chambers, J.W.; Walter West, M.O.; Jas. Horner, S.O.; P. Evans, J.O.; Rev. J. H. Jakes, Chaplain; J. Campbell, Sec.; W. Pickford, Treas.; W. H. W. Homfray, Registrar; H. J. Groves, Org.; A. McMahon, S.D.; H. Richards, J.D.; A. Taylor, I.G.; H. Fletcher, Tyler; and W. Hopton, A. Tyler. The lodge was then closed in due form, the brethren being impressed that such a meeting augurs well for the future of Mark Masonry in the province.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Mother Kilwinning (No. 0).—On Friday, the 24th ult., the brethren of the Mother Lodge resident in Glasgow and vicinity inaugurated a series of meetings proposed hereafter to be held monthly in various districts of the town, for the purpose of bringing them periodically in closer fraternal intercourse than what has hitherto subsisted. The initial meeting was held in the house of Bro. Charles Scobie, Roseneath Cottage, Paisley Road, where about forty assembled, under the presidency first of Bro. J. A. Ferguson, Proxy Senior Warden of the lodge, and afterwards of Bro. John Clark, Treasurer for the associated Glasgow brethren. In the course of a specially pleasant evening, the Secretary (Bro. John Walker) briefly explained the object of the gatherings thus auspiciously commenced, as above indicated, and which met with the hearty approval of all present. It is a part of the scheme, moreover, that short papers on subjects more or less directly bearing on Freemasonry shall be read at each of the future meetings, thus usefully blending the intellectual with the social element amongst the brethren when monthly they "assemble a." Before breaking up it was announced to the meeting that the annual reunion of the Glasgow-resident members of the Mother Lodge was fixed to be held this year on the evening of the 8th December, in Lodge St. John's Hall, No. 213, Buchanan Street. Bro. Captain McCosh of Dalry is to occupy the chair, and it is expected that Bro. Colonel Mure of Caldwell will also be present.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. John (No. 34).—The regular meeting of this ancient lodge was held in St. John's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on Tuesday, the 21st ult., Bro. D. M. Nelson, W.M., presiding, supported by Bros. Sellars, S.W.; Brownlie, J.W.; William Bell, I.P.M.; Fletcher, P.M.; Smillie, P.M.; T. B. Bell, S.M., and a large muster of members and visiting brethren. After the minutes had been read and approved of, Mr. James Cuthbert received the E.A. Degree, Bro. Bell, I.P.M., officiating. Bro. D. McGlashan was then admitted to the lodge as a joining member by Bro. D. M. Nelson, W.M., and Bro. Cuthbert. Arthur and Galloway received the Fellow Craft Degree, the ceremony being gone through in a most careful and impressive manner by Bro. Bell, S.M. The lodge was then called to refreshment, and the usual toasts given and responded to most enthusiastically. During the evening some most excellent songs were given, the songs of Bros. Rogers and Leslie, the celebrated solo vocalists and duetists, being most effectively rendered, to the admiration of all present. The W.M., before closing the lodge, notified that Bro. Rutherford, photographer, had presented three very handsome photographs, framed, taken at the last annual excursion of the lodge of those brethren that were present on that occasion. It was then proposed and carried that this present should be recorded on the minutes. This brought the meeting to a close.

GREENOCK.—Lodge Greenock St. John (No. 175).—The annual general meeting of this lodge was held on the evening of Monday, 27th ult. Bro. Alex. McMaster, W.M., occupied the chair. After some routine business the following office-bearers were elected for the ensuing year: Bros. Pollock, W.M.; Urie, D.M.; Alex. McMaster, P.M.; Anderson, P.M.; Duncan McIntyre, S.W.; Archibald Cameron, J.W.; William Wright, jun., Sec.; James Rodger, Treas.; Rev. John Balfour Robertson, Chap.; John R. Fleming, S.D.; David Anderson, J.W.; Norman Buchanan, 1st Senior Steward; Charles J. Sergeant, 2nd Senior Steward; Stevenson Stewart, I.G.; Alex. Cruden, Tyler. The newly-elected R.W.M., Bro. Pollock, having been duly installed, took the chair, and presided with much ability throughout the remainder of the evening. The other office-bearers were then installed, and took up their respective positions in the lodge. The various reports were handed in and adopted, and after other business was transacted, hearty votes of thanks were accorded to Bro. McMaster, for his long services in the lodge, and to Bro. Urie, for acting as Depute Master so efficiently, which compliments were duly acknowledged. After a cordial vote of thanks to the other retiring office-bearers, responded to by Bro. T. N. Douglas in appropriate terms, the lodge was duly closed by the W.M. The meeting, which was a very large one, was of an exceedingly cordial and enthusiastic character. St. John, 175, is in a very flourishing condition, and much of the prosperity and success which attends it is due to the fact of its being fortunate in always possessing any number of able and hardworking brethren ready to fill the chair, as well as the other offices, and to the devotedness, competent knowledge, and conciliating courtesies of the indefatigable Secretary, Bro. Wm. Wright, jun., who is well supported by the painstaking and judicious Treasurer, Bro. Rodger.

CAMPBELL.—Caledonian St. John's R.A. Lodge (No. 195).—The annual meeting of the members of this lodge was held on Friday evening, the 24th ult., in their lodge-room, Lennox Arms Hotel, Lennox-town, W.M. Peter Robertson presiding. Graham; S.M., Andrew Hosie; S.W., James Gray; J.W., David Rodger; Treasurer, Francis Paterson; Secretary, James Martin; Chaplain, John Morrison; S.D., James Ewing; J.D., James C. Hugh Park, Chaplain; Matthew Kirkwood, S.B.; William Leashman, S.S.; John Kinnabrough, J.S.; James Stewart, Tyler. After the election was over, and the various office-bearers duly installed, the lodge was closed. The brethren afterwards assembled in their lodge-room, when an elegant supper was partaken of, the W.M. in the chair, while the Senior and Junior Wardens acted as Croupiers, members of various lodges being present, including Lodge Star, 219, Glasgow; St. John's, 34, Glasgow; St. Andrew's, 176, Denny; and others, when a most enjoyable evening was spent, the company adjourning at 11.30 p.m.

VALE OF LEVEN.—Alexandria and Bonhill St. Andrew's R.A. Lodge (No. 321) celebrated its twelfth anniversary on Friday evening, the 24th ult., by a supper and ball in Dalmonach Hall, Bonhill. Fully 100 were present. Bro. Stewart, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. Moir, Turnbull, Hodge, &c. Letters of apology were read from Bro. Smollett, P.G.M., Arch. Orr Ewing, and John Orr Ewing. AN ACT OF MASONIC DEVOTION.

Bro. Hubert, in his December number of the "Chaine L'Union," gives a gallant example of Masonic devotion on the part of Bro. Lebouleiller, of the R. F. Dieppe, of the French Mercantile Marine, on the 29th of August last. It appears that the French vessel Louise de St. Servan, Captain Chevallier, was struck by a tornado while on the Bank of Newfoundland, and sinking. Capt. Lebouleiller rescued the captain and crew, in all 21, by a desperate effort, in a heavy sea; but when he got them on board he found he had not sufficient provisions for them if he remained there, the Louise having foundered almost immediately after the crew was taken aboard the R. F. He therefore gave up his own fishing and returned to France with the crew he had saved, entering the Gironde September 26th. Those who like to read this narrative in the simple French will find it in an early "Masonic Magazine."

THE GRAND LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

We called attention in our last number to the amount distributed at the monthly meeting of this valuable body, which, assuming it to be the normal maximum of monthly relief, would reach to something like £7000 per annum. This at 3 per cent. is the interest £230,000, and represents a large capital and a serious charge on our resources. It may be questioned however, whether that amount, even large as it is, answers to the actual charge on our resources, and as by the last published quarterly accounts of Grand Lodge, it seems that the sums paid by the Fund of Benevolence, in the quarter ending March 31st, reached to £1772 2s. 8d., and that this total by no means represents the amount voted, we feel sure that we are not wrong in fixing the yearly expenditure at the very least at £7000 per annum. How then is this large amount expended? and is the best done with it that might be done? are questions which will occur to every brother. We wish that we could say, in our opinion, that the replies to these two queries could be perfectly satisfactory. But we feel bound to say we do not think that they are. Several noteworthy points crop out when we begin to dive beneath the surface, and to realize the claims for relief, on the one hand, and the "Benevolence" afforded on the other. First of all, it is very noteworthy that a large number of applications are always only just within the "minimum" of the term of subscription insisted on by the Book of Constitutions. Two-years-and-a-half is a very common period of subscription, three years, very frequent, four years may be said to be exceptional, and though, of course, we have here and there ten, fifteen, twenty, or thirty years, yet we fancy that if the average membership of the list of the applicants for the last Lodge of Benevolence was taken, it could only amount to something under four-and-a-half years, if quite so much. But, of course, we speak from memory, and do not profess, except relatively, to claim correctness in our figures, but we believe we are not far out. The next point to be noted, is the absence from lodge life which many of the applicants display, sixteen years of non-subscription we often have to deal with, and though the case be a bad one, as it often is, yet we cannot think that after so long an absence from the work and payments of Freemasonry, a brother has a right to ask our aid. We should be quite ready to add a provision to our laws, that no one out of Masonry for ten years, and who has not subscribed to a lodge for two years previous to his application (except the lodge is prepared to make it a special case), on special grounds, shall come for relief. As it is, too many who do nothing for Masonry reap the benefit, while the industrious and zealous brethren bear all the burdens. This is a growing evil, and deserves to be noticed and remedied. Another point is, the frequent applications we have from brethren who have known existing incomes, in some cases increasing, and who because they are in difficulties come to the board. It is really quite impossible to understand how such can claim the benefit of our Masonic charity, which is for those in decayed and distressed circumstances, to whom such help is really invaluable. Can such a claim really be considered as a claim for Masonic "charity"? We think not; and we feel sure that such a contingency of relief, and such an application for aid do not properly come under the consideration of the Lodge of Benevolence. The evils arising from such claims being substantiated, as a right, are so serious and manifold, as hardly to require animadversion, and we feel that we are doing no more than our duty in calling the attention of W. Masters of lodges to an innovation most unreasonable in itself, and fraught with harm to the best interests of our Order. And having said this, as we felt it our duty to do, we feel bound to add, how greatly we rejoice to think that the wisdom of our Masonic forefathers provided this means of Masonic charity, inasmuch as in itself it is a right noble institution, and well represents the unchanging character of our goodly and chivalrous Order. Many a poor brother receives a "solatium" in hours of adversity without which he has really nothing but the workhouse before him. Many a destitute friendless man has the "right hand of fellowship" extended to him in an unexpected term of bitter earthly adversity, and the liberality of our brotherhood, and the kindness of the brethren who compose the Board of Benevolence make certainly, often most truly still the poor "widow's heart to sing for joy."

THE PRESENT ASPECTS OF THE MASONIC STRUGGLE IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM.

To all sincere Freemasons, to all members of the Anglo-Saxon family of Masonry, the position of Masonry itself in these two countries must be one of extreme anxiety. It is hardly possible to overrate the result of the foolish appeal to the lodges which is now proceeding in both lands, as in the present "temper of the times," and the "animus" of a large and important section of the fraternity, there can, we are disposed to think, be little doubt, humanly speaking, what the response will be. Our readers are aware that in both France and Belgium the question whether the belief in the "existence of God, and the Immortality of the soul" shall be retained in the constitutional laws as a condition of acceptance, as an official avowal, is now submitted to the lodge. In Belgium, as we informed our readers last week on excellent authority, some of the lodges have already voted by large majorities that the "words shall be expunged." In France the process is proceeding, but we have not yet heard of any actual voting. In perusing the official report of the meeting of the Grand Orient at Paris in September, and of the speeches pro and con, we cannot be insensible to the grave nature of the case. Let us listen to these remarks of Bro. Beke, who spoke with great moderation and effect. We give the actual French, with a translation for the benefit of some of our brethren who do not read French with facility.—"L'article 1. En disant (ce que vous ne pouvez changer): que l'immense majorité des Maçons répandus sur la surface du globe croit au grand Architecte de l'Univers et à l'immortalité de l'âme, ne porte en rien atteinte à cette liberté de conscience, puisque le paragraphe 3 dit: que la Maçonnerie regarde la liberté de conscience comme un droit propre à chaque homme et n'exclut personne pour ses croyances. Je veux vous dire, mes FF., à ce sujet ce qui s'est passé dans une Loge il y a peu de jours. Un prof.: présente: les rapports sont excellents, ce prof.: a contribué pour une somme importante à la création d'écoles laïques; il est donc admis à l'unanimité à subir les épreuves maçonniques. Dans les questions qui lui sont posées, on lui demande: s'il a jamais prié? sur sa réponse que dans des moments douloureux de sa vie, il a quelquefois adressé des prières à l'Etre suprême, il est gratifié de 27 boules noires, et l'initiation lui est refusée! Je vous demande, mes très chers FF., si ce n'est pas là de l'intolérance?" Article 1. In saying (that which you cannot change) that the immense majority of Masons spread over the surface of the globe believes in the Great Architect of the Universe and the immortality of the soul, in no way interferes with that liberty of conscience, since Paragraph 3 says that Masonry looks upon liberty of conscience as a right peculiar to the individual, and shuts out no one for his belief. I wish to tell you, my brethren, with respect to this subject, a fact that has taken place in a lodge within a few days. A profane presents himself; the reports of him are excellent; this profane has contributed an important amount to the lay school, he is therefore unanimously admitted to undergo the Masonic probation. In the questions which are put to him, he is asked if he has ever prayed? On his reply that in mournful moments of his life he has sometimes offered up prayers to the Supreme Being he is presented with 27 black balls, and initiation is refused to him. I ask you, my very dear brethren, if that is not intolerance?" and we think that all of our readers will answer at once "Yes, a great deal more." One fact, they say, is worth a thousand arguments, and surely we want nothing more to convince us what this present agitation is tending to, and what must be the inevitable end, of the recent ill-advised decision of the G. Orient of France. It is a matter to all Anglo-Saxon Freemasons of very deep regret, as if these words are taken out of the constitutional laws of French Freemasonry there will be but one course open to all Anglo-Saxon Grand Lodges, as far as we can see—that of non-recognition of the G. Orient of France and Belgium. And for this reason, they have by a Masonic "coup d'état," removed, the great and cosmopolitan teaching of Freemasonry, and in so doing have separated themselves from a million of Anglo-Saxon Freemasons. When Bro. André Rousselle in his eloquent address thus expresses himself, we can only feel the greatest astonishment that so able a man can permit himself to be so deceived by his own theory. "Vous invoquez d'abord l'interprétation fautive et mensongère qui pourrait être faite de notre vote par les Grands Orient étrangers, et qui aurait peut-être pour conséquence d'isoler la Maçonnerie Française au sein de la Maçonnerie universelle. Vos suppositions ne me touchent guère, parce qu'elles sont purement gratuites et ne reposent sur aucun fondement. Aucune parole, aucun acte des Grands Orient étrangers ne vous autorisent à leur prêter si généreusement de pareils sentiments d'excommunication ou d'ostracisme. Après les débats aux quels nous nous livrons en ce moment, aucun homme intelligent et honnête, ne pourra dire sérieusement que le Grand Orient de France a voulu bannir de ses Loges la croyance en Dieu et en l'immortalité de l'âme, alors, au contraire qu'au nom de la liberté absolue de conscience il déclare solennellement respecter les convictions, les doctrines, et les croyances de ses membres. Nous n'entendons pas plus nier qu'affirmer aucun dogme, afin de demeurer fidèles à notre principe et à notre pratique de la solidarité humaine. S'il plaisait aux Grands Orient étrangers de nous calomnier, en travestissant nos pensées et en dénaturant nos sentiments, libre à eux. L'opinion publique les jugerait et, tôt ou tard, la vérité se ferait jour." "You then invoke the false and lying interpretation which might be made of our vote by foreign Grand Orient, and which might have the consequence of isolating French Freemasonry in the bosom of universal Masonry. Your suppositions hardly touch me, because they are purely gratuitous, and rest on no foundation. Not one word, not one act of the foreign G. Orient authorise you in lending to them so generous like sentiments of excommunication or ostracism. After the debates to which we devote ourselves at this moment, no intelligent and honest man can seriously say, that the Grand Orient of France has wished to banish from its lodges belief in God, and the immortality of the Soul, because, on the contrary, in the name of absolute liberty of belief of conscience, it declares solemnly that it wishes to respect the conviction, the doctrine, and the belief of its members. We do not intend to deny or affirm any dogma, in order to remain faithful to our principle and practice of human solidarity. If it should please foreign Grand Orient to calumniate us by travestying our thoughts, and giving a non-natural meaning to our opinions, let them do so. The public opinion will judge them, and sooner or later truth will prevail." Despite Bro. Rousselle's words, we fancy that there will be but one opinion among Anglo-Saxon Masons of the extreme folly and grave impropriety of the course which the French and Belgian Masons are now pursuing, and of the inevitable isolation which they are preparing for themselves. We are heartily sorry for them and for Freemasonry in these countries.

MORBID TASTES.

We published in the last "Freemason" a most sensible letter from Mr. Sheriff East to the "Times," because we are of opinion that we all ought to be greatly obliged to any one who so courageously sets himself, "pro bono publico," against the "morbidity" of the hour. We thank him very much for his announcement, and we think that he has set an example worthy of universal imitation. With a deep sense of his own personal responsibility with respect to a most melancholy act of stern but needed justice, Mr. Sheriff East most truly and clearly points out that the desire to be present at such a mournful sight as an execution in prison by any one who has no call to be there, is a proof of a morbid mind. We trust that other authorities will with equal wisdom and good sense discourage the attendance on such occasions of those whom neither duty nor necessity have compelled to be present, as the desire to witness all the details of an execution within the walls of the prison is, in our opinion, almost as vitiated a taste as one can well picture to one's mind. There was a famous wit and bon vivant in former days—George Selwyn—who had a peculiar taste for all such scenes of pain and shame, and it has been said that in the dress of one of the executioner's attendants he stood by and witnessed a wretched individual broken on the wheel at Paris. But then, as Horace Walpole seems to intimate, despite his undoubted wit and remarkable "bon mots," his conduct was flighty and his habits eccentric. There have been many persons since George Selwyn to whom the execution of a fellow creature has appeared a sight to be sought after, and their presence at such unwholesome gatherings a matter of becoming pride to themselves. And the taste still lingers amongst us, the same morbid tendency still prevails in the age in which we live; and yet we never ourselves could realize, nor do we profess to understand now, why such abnormal conditions of humanity are to be dwelt upon or gloated over by any one with average sensibilities or the normal amount of common sense. There is nothing ever very heroic, either in criminals or in criminality. The criminals for the most part with whom the law has to deal, have in them little to redeem and nothing to elevate them above the level of their venal sympathies or their worthless lives. They are really very common-place scoundrels indeed, whom a round of continued criminality has either hardened into iniquity, or has rendered them impervious to every dictate of honour and humanity. For them there is nothing but the proper surveillance and detection of the police, the stern grasp of the law, the just sentence of the Court of Judicature. They ought to inspire no sympathy, and can claim no admiration on any ground of known ethics or reasonable opinion. No doubt, every now and then, the career of society is startled, and the annals of crime are darkened, by some special case of malignity, by some awful exhibition of wickedness, by some appalling and even some heart-sickening brutality, yet in such a case, though the tendency of the hour may be to dwell upon the needless details of the reporters' manipulations, and people often profess an excitement on such topics which they do not really feel, yet there surely should be no morbid desire to hear of the last words or to note the last agonies of the dying criminal. To suppose that any such exceptional literature can do any of us good, psychologically or morally, can either improve, or warn, or edify, or instruct, is one of the greatest fallacies of an unreasoning sensationalism. When the last stern sentence of the law has been passed, and society exacts its needful Nemesis, the criminal should be left to the solitude of the prison, and the solemn if painful routine of the execution morn. It may be needful and wise that representatives of the press, and those whom the law properly appoints as the jury, should be present, to witness the fulfilment of the sad requirements of justice, but for some careless idler or man about town to go to such a scene as a matter of amusement or excitement is about as great a solecism on all that is befitting and all that is becoming, as can, we venture to think, be possibly conceived by the human mind. There are some vitiated constitutions which require the constant "stimulant" to nerve them to action daily; there are some palled tastes which demand some hurtful excitement to enable them to "kill time" probably, but for any one desiring to make it part of his day's business to attend (without any call so to do), an execution in the morning, to pass away some idle moments, is a reflexion, (we say nothing of the individual himself) alike on the reason and the philanthropy of society and the age. We, therefore, are glad to chronicle this most sensible resolution of Mr. Sheriff East, and we feel that the thanks of all are due to him, who deprecate and detest a hateful and harmful morbidity. The belief in criminals and criminality is happily on the wane amongst us, and no more forms the staple of a vivacious literature, except for reprehension and moral warning. As any detective officer will tell you, if you throw off the veil which sometimes hangs over the deeds of the daring, and the artifices of the astute, if you reduce the burglar, the "cracksman," the fence, the murderer to his true character, when the varnish is peeled off, and the petty mystery of accident has vanished, you have to deal with a most uninteresting personage indeed. Crime, as we know, begets crime, and few are criminal all at once. But whether it be for the hardened malefactor righteously suffering the well-merited meed of his prosperous criminality, or the evil doer whom passion, or drink, or revenge, or brutality has hurried to his crime and the gallows, on him, as our legislature now wisely provides, let the curtain, so to say, of oblivion drop once for all. Society can never be benefitted or edified by the tale of his often excited personal utterances, or the mournful spectacle of his last sufferings. We thank Mr. Sheriff East once again for his very reasonable letter.

We shall call attention in our next number to two recent allocutions against Freemasonry, one addressed by the Pope to the Bishop of St. Paul of Brazil and the other an address of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Malta to his clergy.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Many thanks for the insertion of my letter, and I only hope that the "Freemason" is read in every lodge, and by every brother in Scotland. I am convinced that that letter will be approved of by almost every lodge in Scotland, while it may, at the same time, draw down upon my devoted head the denunciations of some who prefer the wrong to the right; but I have counted the cost, and am prepared to abide the decision of the Craft. I neither write from disappointment nor revenge. I have no Masonic or personal ambition to serve, nor have I any Masonic brother to sacrifice. I write because I have for years seen the Grand Lodge of Scotland going to ruin, and brethren either cannot, will not, or dare not interpose. To save life the surgeon has sometimes to cut off a limb, and to save the life of Grand Lodge of Scotland I have written that letter, but if I cannot save its existence, I will at least expose its defects, that the brethren may brace themselves up to the work of regeneration.

Allow me again to notice for a moment the financial condition of Grand Lodge. The financial affairs of any institution are the most easily managed. That is to say, they are matters of fact, and not of sentiment, and every penny, shilling, and pound ought to be accounted for at the end of the financial year, so that the brethren may see at once on which side the balance lies, and brings out the old adage that short accounts make long friends. But the most extraordinary thing is that we cannot get a statement of facts from anybody. When I say we, I mean Grand Lodge, apart from officials and Grand Committee. We have a Grand Secretary, but no report from him; a Grand Treasurer, but no report from him; a Finance Committee, but no report from them; a Property Committee, but no report from them; there are Trustees for the liquidation of debt fund, but no report from them; Trustees for the Fund of Benevolence, but no report from them. Everything is midnight darkness, and it is to be wondered at that the brethren are becoming impatient and disheartened?

If we turn to the Masonic aspect of Grand Lodge things are no better. The Craft know actually nothing about itself. No report is printed to show whether we are increasing or decreasing, progressing or retrogressing. We know nothing about how many initiates are annually enrolled, how many diplomas have been issued, how many new charters have been granted, or how many lodges have become dormant. No Provincial Grand Master ever gives in a report, either written or verbal, of the condition of Freemasonry in his province. No question is ever asked whether the laws of Grand Lodge, Cap. 12, Section 4, has been carried out, and every lodge in the province visited. Grand Lodge Laws, Cap. 12, Section 14, enacts that if a Provincial Grand Lodge becomes dormant the lodges in the district come under the immediate superintendence of Grand Lodge and Grand Committee. The Provincial Grand Lodge of Berwickshire has been dormant for four or five years by the death of the Provincial Grand Master, and was practically dormant for four years before his death in consequence of bad health, and with these facts before them Grand Lodge and Grand Committee pay no more attention to Berwickshire than if it were a province in Timbuctoo. In fact, Grand Lodge laws are no more attended to than if they were an old song, and they appear to be obeyed only when they cannot be broken.

In conclusion, if I have made any mistake in consequence of the darkness in which everybody and everything is kept, I shall be happy to acknowledge and apologise to any one who may feel aggrieved, but I must have facts, and not mere assertions.

I am, yours fraternally,

ADAM THOMSON,
S.P.G.M. Peebles and Selkirkshire, and Proxy
Master for and R.W.M. of St. John's Lodge, Galashiels.

ADMISSION OF CANDIDATES.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your correspondent, "West York," simply refers to a custom which has been in operation in many parts of England for years, but which cannot claim to be even a check upon the evils complained of.

For instance, a gentleman applies to be admitted in West Yorkshire, and gives his address near Manchester. In order to have any effect, the circular referred to by "West York" would have to be sent to each of the thirty lodges in Manchester and suburbs, whereas, if a central committee were established, and copies of all the circulars calling the meetings of the lodges in the district sent to them, they would be able to afford the information required at once, i.e., supposing the would-be candidate had been rejected in any of these lodges. What we want, is some system to prevent such occurrences as the one referred to by "Somerset" in your issue of a fortnight since. Until there is some remedy "black sheep" will no doubt creep in amongst us, and by their nefarious practices bring the Order into disrepute.

Yours fraternally,

EAST LANCASHIRE.

THE ROYAL INSTALLATION ENGRAVING.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As many are aware I have taken a special interest in the forthcoming "historical steel engraving of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., as M.W.G.M.," believing that in Bro. Edward James Hart, S.W. 1201, we have an artist who will do justice to the subject, and who will produce a picture of the greatest Masonic event of this century in connection with Freemasonry in Great Britain.

I have had the pleasure of sending many subscribers to the artist, at least, pleasure until lately. Within the last few weeks many are becoming most solicitous to see the engraving, and have been in communication with me as to its advent, a great many times, so much so that I felt it desirable to write to Bro. Hart for an explanation of the delay in its issue, and as doubtless the same anxiety is felt by many more of your readers I herewith give a few extracts from his reply of the 1st December:—"I assure you that nothing that I could compass to insure it being brought out sooner has been left undone by me. Even as it is, no engraving that has ever yet been produced will have been accomplished anything like so quick as this will have been. . . . When I know that popular engravings with not one half the amount of labour will have taken a year longer than this will have done, I feel that I shall be absolved when it is published, as I am now positive it will be before the second anniversary."

Shortly a letter from the engraver and a communication from the artist will be sent to every subscriber, explanatory of the matter, which will be a step in the right direction, for evidently it is considered by many that an engraving of this character does not take the time it really does to insure perfection. Bro. Hart has all to lose by the delay, and the subscribers all to gain, as nothing short of real portraits of the hundreds of brethren who attended the grand and Royal installation will satisfy the artist and engraver, no matter at what cost.

I find there are still some twenty-five spaces open for portraits, and those in parts of the picture of consequence, so that it is desirable brethren who have not yet subscribed should lose no time in communicating with the artist, or, at all events, sending their cartes, as it really rests with the Craft whether all the faces shall represent brethren, or purely imaginative pictures. After April of next year the prices will be increased one third. Let this be noted.

Yours fraternally,

W. J. HUGHAN, P.G.D.

THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me to call the attention of my brother Knights Templar to the interesting and valuable address of the Great Prior of Canada, Colonel McLeod Moore, which appears in this month's "Masonic Magazine." Colonel Moore is one of our greatest authorities on Templar history (albeit we may not entirely agree with his views as to the Protestant Knights of Malta), and as convent general meets on Friday next, the 8th inst., specially to discuss certain matters treated of in his address, I venture to think it should be widely read by those who propose to go back to the beaten paths.

Yours fraternally,

THE MASONIC BROTHERHOOD.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the "Rock" of November 25th, there appeared from a writer styling himself "A Mason" the subjoined letter attacking Freemasonry. I enclose the letter and a copy of my reply to it, which I sent to the "Rock."

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

M. KEITH FRITH.

THE MASONIC BROTHERHOOD.

Sir,—I notice an enquiry in your columns in reference to some of the rules of the above society. I have belonged to that brotherhood for a quarter of a century, and I have no hesitation in saying that its tenets and its practices have a very deleterious influence upon society at large, and that it exerts a very bad influence over the Christian character; and indeed I have come long since to the conclusion that it is very antagonistic to the spread of religion. I have observed that in many localities where Freemasonry rapidly advances spiritual religion invariably declines. I know of many instances where it has ruined individuals, and I cannot see how a thoroughly religious man can remain in the society. Its practices are in many instances a mere travesty of the doctrines of Christianity, whilst in others it is a caricature. The only man who seems to understand Masonry appears to be the Pope, and this is the only thing in which I agree with him. He anathematizes them annually I believe. It has long been a marvel to me why clergymen can associate in such gatherings, characterized as they are by feasting and revelry. It is one of the things which are a great hindrance to the advancement of true spiritual religion, and needs showing up in its true character. Its show and finery attract young men of the world, as the coats of many colours do the young clerics—but both are a delusion and a snare.

A MASON.

To the Editor of the "Rock."

Sir,—May I so far trespass on your courtesy as to ask for the insertion of this letter in reply to your correspondent of Nov. 25th, and in answer to your own enquiries respecting Freemasonry? I hope and believe that your readers will not accept the unsupported assertions and wild charges of your correspondent against an ancient and illustrious Order. Freemasonry, I say, in answer to your enquiries, is an institution founded upon and teaching the purest principles of morality, and has well been said to be "great in the eyes of the generous, good, and honest, nothing to the narrowminded, the wicked, the faithless, everything to the wise and virtuous, nothing to the ambitious, covetous, and false." "Love as brethren," irrespective of the narrowing distinctions of race, nation, or creed, is a cardinal point of Masonic doctrine. And it is well known that no other institution in the world can boast with truth, as Freemasonry can, and does, of affording a common basis—a neutral ground—where the Christian of all sects, the Jew, the Mahomedan, the Buddhist, the Brahmin, and the Parsee—in fact, all creeds, all nations, which acknowledge the existence of a Supreme Being—meet in love, brotherhood, and harmony.

Freemasonry is not opposed to Christianity in any sense; on the contrary, all the moral doctrines of the Order are in unison with that creed.

This world-wide fraternity, however, professes universality, and having men of all creeds and climes under its banner, cannot, without causing dissension, teach any distinctive form of religion, and therefore in no way identifies itself with any religious sect. Whilst individual Freemasons hold their own religious views, the Order as a whole, professing no preference for any one creed, desires toleration for all. If your correspondent has ever been at a Masonic lodge of instruction he certainly did not hear any doctrine taught there which (to use his own words) would have "a deleterious influence upon society at large." On the contrary, Freemasons are taught to be regular and just in the performance of their civil, moral, and religious duties. Your correspondent either knows nothing of Masonic teaching, which he so boldly condemns, "in which case he writes about that of which he knows nothing, and consequently writes nonsense;" or, knowing the glorious tenets of Masonry, he has deliberately and wilfully chosen to misrepresent them. I wish he had a small share even of a great virtue prominently and earnestly taught by the Craft to all its members—I mean charity—for if he had, I think he would have displayed his "Christian character" and "spiritual religion" in a more truly Christian manner than by "unchristianising thousands of his fellow men, simply because they are Freemasons, forgetting that men of the most undoubted piety, and most faithful members of the church, have gladly joined, and still belong to our maligned Order" (See "Defence of Freemasonry," by the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., Past Grand Chaplain). Is it likely such men would remain amongst us if Freemasonry were really the pernicious institution your correspondent alleges it to be? And if they are present at Masonic banquets, can it be supposed that they would continue to attend those social gatherings if they deemed them unworthy of their sacred calling, and derogatory to their holy profession? I admit that Pecksniff, Mawworm, Stiggins, et id genus omne, are not likely to view with favour Masonic breadth of thought, and hatred of hypocrisy. Good men in all ages, however, have found Freemasonry walking hand in hand with "pure religion and undefiled." I conclude, I challenge your correspondent to prove that Freemasonry has ever ruined any individual, as he asserts, and that spiritual religion has declined as a consequence of the rapid advance of Freemasonry in any locality. That he may have known cases of men who have perverted and misused the great opportunities for good afforded them by Freemasonry I am prepared to admit, but the logic, or the fairness, of condemning all Freemasons on that account I most strenuously deny. Because your correspondent writes in no very Christian spirit of his fellow men I might just as well denounce Christianity. And it is strange (your correspondent's charges for a moment being assumed to be true) that he should have been, before making this discovery of the character of Masonry, a Mason! (save the mark!) for a quarter of a century.

I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

A MASTER MASON.

THE "MASONIC MAGAZINE."

Dear Bro. Kenning,

As I think that the following words from my valued friend, and kind "collaborateur" Bro. W. J. Hughan, will be acceptable to yourself and many of our readers, I think well to transcribe them from a letter of his of date December 4th.

Yours very fraternally,

THE EDITOR "MASONIC MAGAZINE."

"I am delighted with the 'Masonic Magazine' for December, as it is the most readable and interesting 'Christmas number' we have had. Surely the contents must please all the subscribers, and incite them to increase its circulation, for the paper will practically be what they determine, the character and extent being mainly regulated by the list of subscribers. Success to your efforts for 1877, and I shall be ready to assist, as I have been from the beginning."

THE LATE BRO. GEORGE DAWSON.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It will add perhaps to the general regret which will be felt by all Masons at the sudden and premature death of our Bro. George Dawson that he was Senior Warden designate of the Alma Mater Lodge, just about to be consecrated in Birmingham, of which I am the first W.M. I had the pleasure of initiating him into Freemasonry in the Warden Lodge some sixteen years ago, and though, as far as I know, the present office was the first to which he had aspired, he always preserved his interest in and appreciation for the grand Masonic system. The warrant of the Alma Mater Lodge will have a permanent though a melancholy interest for a wide circle in and out of Masonry.

I am, dear Sir and Bro., fraternally yours,

W. K. R. BEDFORD, P.G.C.

MARK GRAND LODGE.

The half-yearly communication of Grand Lodge of Mark Masters of England and Wales and the colonies and dependencies of the British Crown, was held on Tuesday evening at Freemasons' Tavern. The Most Worshipful the Grand Master of the degree, the Right Hon. the Earl of Limerick, presided, and the Grand Lodge was formed in the following manner:—Col. J. T. Davy, D.G.M.; Genl. Brownrigg, S.W.; Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, J.W.; Rev. Dr. Brett, Chaplain; Magnus Ohren, G.M.O.; Major Barlow, G.S.O.; Charles Lacey, G.J.O.; T. W. Coffin, S.D.; T. W. Faulkner, Std. B.; Austin, I.G.; F. Davison, Treas.; H. C. Levander, Reg.; S. Rosenthal, D.C.; F. H. Cozens, G. Org.

The following brethren were also present: V.W. Bro. Fred. Binckes, P.G.J.W., G. Sec.; W. Bros. Josiah Austin, G.S.D.; J. E. Curteis, G.J.D.; Robert W. Edis, G. Supt. of Wks.; T. W. Coffin, P.G. Swd. Br., as G. Swd. Br.; J. J. Fast, G.I.G.; H. W. Binckes, G. Asst. Sec.; G. T. Speight, G. Tyler; C. Pulman, G.S.; W. Watkins, P.G.S.W. Monmouthshire; George Kenning, P.M. No. 1; Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O.; Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chap.; Rev. A. Bruce Frazer, P.G. Chap.; Rev. D. J. Drakeford, P.G. Chap.; Rev. C. W. Spencer Stanhope, P.G. Chap.; Thos. Hargreaves, P.G.D.; George Neall, P.G. Ins. Wks.; Thos. Cubitt, P.G. D.C.; J. H. Spencer, P.G.I.G.; T. S. Mortlock, P.G. Std. Br.; G. Glover, Henry Massey ("Freemason"), G. Yaxley, P.G. Std.; Thos. Platt, P. Prov. G. Treas. Cheshire and North Wales; and a large attendance of brethren representing the Old Kent, Bon Accord, Minerva, 12; St. Mark's, 1; St. Andrew's, 63; Keystone, 109; St. Cuthbert's, 132; Panmure, 139.

Bro. Binckes, Grand Secretary, first read the minutes of last Grand Lodge, which were put and confirmed, and after this the minutes of the movable Grand Lodge, held at Leicester on the 25th Oct., were read and confirmed.

The next business on the paper being the nomination of Grand Masters for the ensuing year,

General Brownrigg rose and said: I have the honour of proposing that the Right Hon. the Earl of Limerick, Grand Mark Master, accept the position he now holds for the ensuing year. This proposition requires no comment from me, and I, therefore, simply propose "That the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Limerick be Grand Mark Master Mason for the next year."

The M.W.G.M.M. enquired if any brother had any one else to put in nomination for the Grand Master's chair. No response being offered, he added—The next business before the lodge is the report of the General Board.

Bro. Binckes, Grand Secretary, then read the report of the General Board:—

The number of certificates issued in the six months ending 30th September last is 318.

During the same period warrants for new lodges were granted to

- No. 193, "Worthy Apprentice," Bengal.
- " 194, "Simon de Montfort," Leicester.
- " 195, "Kent Dale," Kendal.

The increasing interest evinced in the spread and prosperity of the Mark Degree has often been the subject of gratifying comment; it is most satisfactory to be able to announce that that interest continues unabated.

On Monday, 23rd October last, the M.W.G.M.M. visited Manchester, and in the presence of one of the most numerous and influential assemblies of Mark Master Masons ever known, assisted by his Grand Officers, installed, as successor to the late much lamented Bro. William Romaine Callender, the Right Hon. Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M.M.M., as Provincial Grand Mark Master Mason of Lancashire.

On Tuesday, 24th October, the M.W.G.M.M. and his Grand Officers constituted at Birmingham a new Mark Province of the united counties of Warwickshire and Staffordshire, installing as the first R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M. the Rev. Bro. W. K. Riland Bedford, under whose rule the best results may be anticipated.

On Wednesday, 25th Oct., a movable Grand Lodge was once more held at Leicester, in which province the Order, under the able and experienced guidance of its R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M., Bro. Wm. Kelly, has made great progress. On this occasion a new lodge was consecrated, the Mayor of Leicester, Bro. William Barfoot, having been installed as the first W.M. The heartiness of the welcome given on the occasion of the last visit of Grand Lodge to Leicester was on this occasion, if possible, exceeded, the new Town Hall (by express permission of the Mayor) having been placed at the disposal of the brethren, and the arrangements in every respect having been most admirable. The same remarks are equally applicable to the gatherings at Manchester and Birmingham, and it may be questioned if these meetings in connection with any degree in Freemasonry held on consecutive days were ever more entirely successful or attended with results more calculated to promote the interests of the degree with which they were associated.

It is gratifying to report a continued increase in the work of those charged with official duties, and it has been found necessary to employ a boy in the office at a remuneration of 10s. per week.

The Board, in connection with this subject, recommends to Grand Lodge for its favourable reception the proposition, deferred for consideration at the last half-yearly communication, for an increase of £50 per annum to be divided in equal proportions between the G. Sec. and Assist. G. Sec., such increase to date from the 1st of July last.

The Board are also happy to report that on the 28th ult. the adhesion of the old time immemorial Mark Lodge of York was formally received, and the W.M. installed by the G.S., Bro. F. Binckes.

The Board regret to inform G.L. that a fire has occurred at the offices of G.L., No. 2, Red Lion Square. No damage has been sustained by the books or documents of G.L., and the property injured is covered by insurance.

(Signed) G. R. PORTAL, Past G.M.M.,
President.

Bro. Curteis moved, and Bro. Edis seconded, its reception and adoption, which was put and carried unanimously.

The M.W.G.M.M. having enquired whether there would be any discussion on the recommendations of the report,

Bro. Davison, G.T., said that, in the absence of Bro. Portal, P.G.M., he rose to move that the recommendation of the Board that the office salaries be increased £50 per annum, dated from the 1st July, 1876, be confirmed. The prosperity of Mark Masonry they all knew of, and they could not be prosperous without a necessary entailing of a great deal of extra work on those who held official positions, the Grand Secretary and the Assistant Grand Secretary. Since the last increase of salaries in June, 1872, there had been eight new Provincial Grand Lodges constituted—Kent, Cumberland and Westmoreland, North Wales and Cheshire, Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, Sussex, Lancashire, Bristol, and South Africa; lately Warwickshire and Staffordshire had been constituted. The increase in the number of registered members of the Order had been very great. There were now no less than 3647 members, and the number of lodges had increased from 150 to 207. He did not think he need say more in this Grand Lodge to recommend this vote to the favourable consideration of the brethren, and he trusted, in the few observations he had made, it would not lose its importance by the absence of Bro. Portal, who was to have made the motion.

Bro. Thos. Meggy, P.G.M.O., seconded the motion, thinking that the extra work in Grand Secretary's office fully justified the salaries being put up as proposed.

Bro. S. Rosenthal, P.G.D.C., supported the recommendation, and it was then put and carried without a dissentient voice.

The Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., proposed, and Bro. R. W. Edis seconded, the adoption of the report in extenso.

The brethren adopted the report nem. con.

Charity jewels were then presented by the Grand Master to Bros. Dr. Brette, G. W. Verry and Thos. Mortlock.

Bro. F. Davison, Grand Treasurer, afterwards read the Grand Treasurer's account as follows:—

Auditor.

Bro. R. W. Edis proposed, and Genl. Brownrigg seconded, the reception and adoption of this account.

Carried unanimously.

Bro. Binckes then said, that in accordance with the resolution come to at last Grand Lodge, moved by Bro. Frank Richardson, he had written to those brethren who had placed their names for subscriptions on the Benevolent Fund festival lists, and on the first application he had met with no success. The second application, however, was so successful, that he would prefer that no action be taken on the motion, as he had no doubt from the numerous payments that had since been made, that before next Grand Lodge all the amounts would be paid.

Bro. Davison moved, and Bro. Levander seconded, that no action be taken, and it was carried unanimously.

With reference to the case of a brother who has before complained, Bro. Binckes said he had the night before received from that brother a further statement, which contained no new matter, but was an attack upon brethren of distinguished position. He would not read it to the lodge, but thought it was right that it should be considered, and for that purpose should be referred to the General Board.

Bro. Magnus Ohren moved, and Bro. Curteis seconded, the reference of the matter to the General Board.

Carried nem. con.

Bro. Binckes then read a letter from Bro. W. J. Hughan as to a new reading of the letters on the Mark jewel.

Bro. Binckes reported that he had received letters of apology from R.W. Bros. W. Kelly, Prov. G.M.M. Leicestershire; Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, Prov. G.M.M. Cheshire and North Wales; Col. Francis Burdett, Prov. G.M.M. Middlesex and Surrey; Dr. H. Hopkins, P.G.W.; W. J. Hughan, P.G.W., representative of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania; V.W. Rev. T. T. Ravenshaw, P.G.C.; Rev. C. R. Davy, P.G.C.; W. S. Webster, P.S.O.; I. J. Hooper Wilkins, P.G.M.O.; W. H. M. Green, G.D.C.; Thos. Trollope, P.G.D.C.; Henry Bagot, G. Swd. Br.; Frank Richardson, P.G.S.B.; W. H. Scott, P.G.S.B.; Robert Butterworth, G.S.; J. Cattle Mason, G.S.; Alfred Williams, P.G.S.; Augustus Great Rex, P.G.S.; Bros. C. W. Duke, 166; L. Augustus Homfray, P.M. 109; and Capt. S. George Homfray, P.M. 109.

Bro. Binckes said he did not know whether he would be doing right in mentioning the next subject in Grand Lodge, but at the last Grand Lodge an exactly similar thing was done by another brother, and perhaps he would not be considered out of order in taking the same course. He had been charged by the brethren of Cumberland and Westmoreland to ask that the next movable Grand Lodge should be held under his lordship's sanction, in the lake district, at a date to be fixed by his lordship. If his lordship agreed to the proposition, the brethren of the province of Cumberland and Westmoreland would insure the Grand Lodge a hearty welcome.

The M.W.G.M.M. said he was sure that the Grand Lodge felt the compliment of the brethren of that province; but at the same time he thought it was rather early to make the appointment. It might be well not to fix it definitely at present; but another meeting of Grand Lodge would be held in the summer of next year, when it would be fixed. At present it might be rather premature to fix it, but the Grand Lodge thanked the brethren of the province for the invitation, and would allow the matter to stand over.

Grand Lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Dawkins, the manager of the Freemasons' Tavern.

When the cloth was cleared the usual toasts were proposed, and after the loyal and Mark Masonic toasts had been disposed of,

Bro. F. Davison, G.T., proposed "The Health of the M.W.G.M." The brethren all knew that his lordship's heart was in his work, and that he wished well for the success of the Mark Degree. During the past two or three months he had taken the trouble to go to the meetings at Manchester, Birmingham, and Leicester, on which occasions there was a vast assemblage of Mark Masons. It was perhaps a good thing for this degree that it changed its Grand Master every three years; but there was also in it much to be regretted, for when they got the right men in the right place, as was the case with the present Grand Master, they had to part with him at the end of his term. It would be to the regret of everyone when the Earl of Limerick's term of office expired.

The M.W.G.M., in reply, said I assure you I value most highly the kind manner in which you have received this toast, as I value the confidence which the brethren have placed in me in raising me to the chair which I occupy, and who have kept me in that chair for the last two years. I assure you, brethren, that I shall only be too thankful, and shall have felt that I have no cause to be disappointed with the success of my labours in the chair if I am able to hand over the degree to my successor in no way falling short of the condition in which it was when I was placed in the chair which I occupy. I believe, brethren, I have every reason to trust that that will be the case since by the labours of several very excellent brethren whom I could name, as you heard in Grand Lodge, subsequent to our last meeting not less than four new lodges have been constituted. I have signed the warrants for two more, which in a very short time will be constituted. That speaks well for the progress of the degree. Our brother has alluded to our visit to various important centres of Masonry. As far as I am concerned, and I know as far as those who accompanied me were concerned, those visits were visits of the very greatest pleasure. It was a great pleasure to see how our Order has flourished in those important places; and it was the greatest pleasure to have the kind reception which we had at every one of them. I don't know anything that could have been more gratifying to any one holding the position I do, than to see that most magnificent meeting which we had at Manchester; and although, of course, the other two meetings were to a certain extent inferior in numbers they were by no means inferior in energy and promise. As I said it was a very great pleasure to pay those visits, and I only trust that I, as long as I continue in office, and afterwards my successor may have a continuance of that friendship which we experienced on those occasions.

All the other toasts were then given and responded to, and the brethren separated after spending a very pleasant evening.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of the subscribers to this Institution held their December meeting on Saturday last, in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. W. Hyde Pullen presided, and there were also present Bros. John W. Dennison, H. Browne, S. Rawson, H. Massey ("Freemason"), George Free, W. Paas, Thomas Meggy, F. Adlard, W. F. C. Moutrie, George J. Palmer, J. J. Hooper Wilkins, Jesse Turner, H. G. Warren, Walter Hopekirk, Robert B. Webster, John Boyd, Dr. Ramsay, J. W. Dosell, Charles Horsley, and F. Binckes, Secretary.

The reading of the minutes of different committee meetings occupied a considerable time, after which Bro. I. J. Hooper Wilkins gave notice of motion for next committee meeting: "That in consideration of the past services of Bro. Edward Harris, as collector to the institution for a period of 20 years, who has now tendered his resignation, he be granted a pension of £120 per annum from 1st of January, 1877."

On this Bro. Henry G. Warren enquired what would be about the amount of Bro. Harris's returns, when he was informed that Bro. Harris's commission on subscriptions he collected varied from £150 to £160, £170, and £180. It was also stated that Bro. Muggidge, the Collector to the Girls' School, on his resignation, was awarded a pension of £150.

The report of the Special Committee on the office duties and emoluments of the Collector was then read. It was very short, and it stated that as Bro. F. Binckes, the Secretary, had expressed his readiness to undertake the collection of all subscriptions, the Committee recommended that the office of Collector be abolished, and that the Secretary be allowed an additional clerk in his office at a certain salary.

Bro. H. Browne, P.G.D., moved, and Bro. Dr. Ramsay seconded, that the report of the Special Committee be received, approved, and adopted.

Bro. Jesse Turner asked whether it was not a part of the plan of the Masonic Institution that the rules of the Boys' and Girls' School should be on all fours, unless a grave and proper reason existed why the rules of one Institution should vary from the other.

Bro. Binckes said that that was the rule, but the fixing of the salary of the clerk would not interfere with the general uniformity of the laws of the two Institutions.

Bro. H. G. Warren, P.G.S., said it had been held at the General Committee of the Girls' School that an additional clerk could not be appointed without going to the Quarterly Court, and this question was raised by Bro. Thomas W. White, the chairman of the last meeting of that General Committee.

Bro. Browne remarked that that was overruled afterwards.

Some further discussions on the point having been had, Dr. Ramsay thought that it was quite beside the question. The subject before the committee was the approval or rejection of the Special Committee's report.

Bro. Warren said he had brought before the General Committee of the Girls' School the advisability of increasing the amount of security to be given by the Secretary, as that officer was to receive all the subscriptions. He thought it should be at least as much as the Secretary and Collector combined gave, viz., £300 and £200.

Bro. H. Browne observed that this was a question for the House Committee. All the present meeting had to do was to confirm the report of the Special Committee. Upon the report of the House Committee the subject of the securities would come to the General Committee.

Bro. Warren having suggested that the clerks who were to be employed in collecting should give security, Bro. Binckes said that whatever clerks were employed, they would not be Collectors; the Secretary would be the Collector.

Dr. Ramsay mentioned that it ought not to go forth to the world that the clerks were to be the Collectors, for Bro. Binckes, if the report of the Special Committee were adopted, would be the Collector, only he would have what aid he wanted in the duties of Collector.

Bro. Binckes said it was distinctly laid down in the report that the Secretary was to be the Collector.

Bro. Warren again contended that the present amount of security given was too low, and he should propose at next meeting that it be increased.

The report was then adopted.

In reply to a question, Bro. Binckes said that the subscriptions for the present year already received amounted to £14,400, and of this sum the Collector had got in about £3300.

Four petitions of widows for their boys to be placed on the list of candidates for next election in April were then read and received.

Bro. Binckes read a letter from Bro. John Symonds, P.G.D., enquiring whether Bro. Binckes's notice of motion before Grand Lodge on the 6th inst. emanated from any of the committees of the Boys' School, or whether it emanated from himself as an individual. The letter was written to Bro. Binckes, but as it contained a request that it should be read to the General Committee, Bro. Binckes complied with Bro. Symonds' request.

Bro. Binckes said that when he gave the notice of motion at the Board of Masters he was unaware that a meeting of the Special Committee on the subject of the commemoration had been held at Lord Carnarvon's house the day before. It had been kept entirely from him, but if he had known of the meeting, and that Lord Carnarvon had said he would call a Special Grand Lodge to consider the report of the committee when made, he should not have given his notice. He had given his notice in order to be in time; had he deferred it he would have been too late; and it was only after he had given notice that he was told of Lord Carnarvon's intention. When Grand Lodge met he should under the circumstances withdraw or postpone his motion. He added that his notice was given solely by himself as an individual member of Grand Lodge, and not at all as coming from any committee, or authorised or suggested by them. He did not say one word in his notice as to how the money proposed to be given should be applied, but left it to be arranged by the committees of the institutions between which he suggested that it should be equally divided.

No discussion of this subject was entered upon.

Bro. Binckes then read the draft of a circular for proposing Stewards to send to brethren from whom they desired subscriptions for the festivals of the Institutions. In the circular reference was made to Bro. Binckes's new scheme for establishing a preparatory school for 100 little boys, the sons of Freemasons. Bro. Binckes said £10,000 would be required to build this preparatory school, and if this sum was not found it could not be built. He had no doubt it would be found.

The following letter in reference to the last election was read by Bro. Binckes:—

"11, Old Jewry Chambers, E.C., London, 15th Nov., 1876.

"To the Chairman and brethren of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

Worshipful Sir and Brethren,—On the 16th October last, the day of the election of candidates into the school, I attended with several friends interested in the case of Herbert Pattison Wisby, for the purpose of promoting his success. At the close of the poll I calculated that 1220 votes (including some sent to the office) had been put into the box on his behalf.

"When the result of the poll was declared by the chairman of the meeting, I heard with astonishment that only 1124 votes had been recorded in his favour, being 96 below what I considered he was entitled to. I immediately demanded a scrutiny, which has resulted in three errors having been discovered, viz., a bundle of 28 found on the floor not entered at all; a bundle of 45 found inside a packet belonging to another case, and a split proxy included in another bundle, of which one was for the case, making a total of 74 votes to be added to the 1124 recorded, and thereby bringing up the total to 1198.

"There still remain 22 votes unaccounted for.

"It was ascertained that the box in which the greater part of the votes polled by me were placed burst open on its way upstairs, thus accounting for some of the votes having been found in other bundles, and also shewing a possibility of others being missing.

"The total of 1220 votes would have placed Herbert Pattison Wisby on the list of successful candidates, as the last elected, viz., Beck, only polled 1217 votes. And I now venture to ask you to take into consideration the fact of such mistakes having been made, and the possibility of the other votes having been put into the box; and to allow him to be received into the school should a vacancy occur before the next election.

"His widowed mother has been left in most disastrous circumstances, and the utmost commiseration and sympathy has been expressed for her, which was evidenced by the number of votes polled on this first application, and it is the opinion of many who know the foregoing circumstances, and it is my duty to call your attention to this case and to ask your committee to relieve the widow of the expense and anxiety which must attend a further candidature.

"I remain, Worshipful Sir and Brethren, yours fraternally,

(Signed) "THOS. MEGGY."

Bro. Meggy then rose and said that the facts having been very fully set out in this letter, he would not detain the brethren by recapitulating them. He could not claim that the case should be taken as an elected one; still his friends advised him to ask the Committee to take the matter into their favourable consideration, and should a vacancy occur before next election, to admit the boy into the school instead of letting him go to another election. This Committee had the power of recommending this course to the Quarterly Court in January.

Bro. S. Rawson, P. Dist. G.M. for China, as one of the scrutineers, could not agree with the statement in Bro. Meggy's letter, that because three mistakes had occurred there might have been more, and that if these additional mistakes had not been committed the boy would have been successful.

Bro. Jesse Turner thought that to adopt the course proposed by Bro. Meggy would be to open the door to fresh applications of the same sort, and it was not unlikely that after next election it would be used as a sort of precedent. The best way would be for Bro. Meggy, with the large influence he had in the Craft, to use it at next election for the same candidate, and with the 1220 votes brought forward he would be certain to carry the boy in. The course proposed by Bro. Meggy seemed so very irregular that it would be unwise to adopt it.

The Chairman said the question was whether the Committee had the power or right to do it. Bro. Meggy could give notice of motion for the Quarterly Court to the effect he proposed.

Bro. Meggy then gave notice of motion embodying his views.

A letter from Dr. Jabez Hogg, P.G.D., was read by the Secretary, stating that the boy Packwood's sight would soon be restored, and that he would soon be able to enter upon the active duties of life.

The proceedings, which had lasted over an hour and a half, were then brought to a close by a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

Obituary.

THE LATE BRO. T. WYLIE, P.P.G. REGISTRAR.

The brethren in the Province of West Lancashire will bear with deepest regret that Bro. Thomas Wylie, P.M. 86, &c., P.P.G. Registrar, died at his residence, The Hermitage, Peter-street, Southport, near Liverpool, on Tuesday, the 28th ult. Our deceased brother was closely identified with Masonry in nearly all its leading branches, and was a keen and active worker, especially in the sacred cause of charity. His name will long be remembered as being prominently identified with the erection of the Masonic Hall in Liverpool, of which he was one of the trustees, and his hand was ever ready to give help to a brother or lodge when occasion required. His loss in connection with lodge consecrations will be specially felt, as on these occasions no one gave more ready and more valuable help. While holding the office of P.G. Registrar he invariably showed talents of the highest order, and he elicited the admiration of every one by the sterling honesty and uprightness of his character and dealings. Almost his last Masonic appearance was at the recent meeting of the West Lancashire Provincial Grand Lodge, where his voice was heard pleading strenuously, wisely, and to good purpose for the liberality of the brethren in connection with the gift of a sedilia to Chester Cathedral. His counsel and help on many occasions were greatly prized, and therefore his loss will be universally felt throughout the province. It may be interesting to many to know something of the career of our deceased brother. Nearly a century ago Bro. Wylie's father came from Scotland and settled in Liverpool, where he carried on a good business as a stonemason and contractor. On his decease, Bro. Thomas Wylie succeeded to the business, but it proving uncongenial to his tastes, he turned his attention to the profession of a surveyor. Nearly a quarter of a century ago he was elected a member of the select vestry, and continued for many years to take a very prominent part in the administration of parochial affairs. When the extension of the parochial offices of Liverpool took place, and the parish assessment rendered it necessary to appoint a surveyor, Bro. Wylie resigned his seat at the select vestry, and was chosen as the parish surveyor. He continued to hold this office until about ten years ago, when he resigned and resumed his old occupation as an estate agent and surveyor. It was, however, in the last-mentioned capacity that he became most signally successful, and in nearly all cases of arbitration, whether enforced or voluntary, his extensive experience and sound judgment rendered him a valuable ally, and his services were much sought after. He took a great interest whilst residing in Liverpool in all that related to the progress of Congregationalism, and up to the close of a useful and active life was in religion, politics, and educational matters one of the advanced thinkers and workers.

We are compelled, through the great press of matter, to hold over the Report of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and of many other reports of Scotch lodges.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter (No. 41).—The first meeting of the season was held at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, Nov. 21st, when the attendance was very limited, probably because there was no ceremony of exaltation on the agenda. After the opening of the chapter and the confirmation of previous minutes, nominations to office for next year were made, each of the above being advanced one step, for whom the ballot will take place at the next convocation. Comps. Keene, Dr. Hopkins, Hill, and Brown were chosen to form the Audit committee, and Ex. Comp. Dr. Hopkins was requested to conduct the ceremony of installation of the Principals. The Treasurer gave notice of a proposition to grant £10 from the funds to the Masonic Benevolent Institutions. No other business offering, the chapter was closed at 9 o'clock.

SHEERNESS.—Adam's Chapter (No. 158).—The installation meeting of this ancient chapter was held at the Masonic Rooms, Victoria Hall, Sheerness-on-Sea, on Tuesday, the 28th ult. Present, E. Comps. N. The Installing Officer having been chosen H., was duly installed by E. Comp. Bagshaw, P.Z., after which E. Comp. Spears installed E. Comp. J. Woodley, J., and duly invested the following officers of the chapter: Comps. Bagshaw (third year), S.E.; Mitchell, S.N.; Spears, Treas.; Penney, P.S.; Garrett, 1st A.S., and Akhurst, Janitor. The remaining routine business of the evening having been completed, and the chapter duly and solemnly closed, the companions partook of a most excellent repast, provided by Mrs. Green, of the Britannia Hotel, widow of the late E. Comp. John Green, P.Z. The banquet was presided over by the M.E.Z., Comp. Pannell, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and drank with enthusiasm.

CAVEAC CHAPTER (No. 176).—On Saturday, the 24th November, at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, City, the regular convocation was held. There were present Comps. W. S. Wyman, M.E.Z.; J. B. Sorrell, J.; G. K. Lemann, H.; and other officers. Bro. Charles Graham, 1326 and 1540 lodges, was exalted. The elections resulted in Comps. G. K. Lemann being elected Z.; J. B. Sorrell, H.; Wike Goss, J.; F. Walters, P.Z. Treas.; R. P. Hooton, S.E.; S. Pownceby, S.N.; R. P. Tebb, P.S.; and C. T. Speight, Janitor. G. K. Lemann, P.Z., was inducted into the M.E.Z.'s chair. He installed Comps. J. B. Sorrell, H.; W. M. Goss, J. He invested with the robe, collar, and jewel of office, as his officers, Comps. F. Walters, P.Z., Treas. (reinvested for the 10th time); R. P. Hooton, S.E.; S. Pownceby, S.N.; R. P. Tebb, P.S., who appointed and invested Comps. A. Williams, 1st A.S.; C. Browne, and A.S. The M.E.Z. appointed H. Faija, D.C.; A. Middlemass, W.S.; C. T. Speight, Janitor (re-invested 10th time). A splendid P.Z.'s jewel was presented to Comp. W. S. Wyman, P.Z., for his exertions in doing the work of the past year, which had been unanimously voted to him from the chapter funds at a previous meeting. Comp. R. P. Hooton, S.E., was unanimously elected as Steward to represent this chapter at the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Male and Female Annuitants. The work rendered by every officer was done in an admirable manner. Comp. G. K. Lemann particularly distinguished himself in doing the installations in a careful correct style. Business ended, the lodge was closed. There were present Comps. C. T. Dorey, P.Z.; P. A. Nairne, P.Z.; M. Scott, P.Z.; R. S. Foreman, P.Z.; W. T. Lover, R. Griggs, W. Jameson, J. H. Dodson, J. B. Sorrell, jun., F. Pertwee, and others. Visitors: Comps. H. Garrod, P.Z. 507; Vockins, J. 1329; Stacey, P.Z.; and others. Banquet and dessert. The new furniture, used for the first time, was very much admired. It was complete in every detail. The chapter was closed, and adjourned to February, 1877.

WHITTINGTON CHAPTER (No. 86a).—The first meeting of the season of this prosperous chapter was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Friday, 1st inst. The convocation was opened by Comp. W. Stephens, P.Z. 1365, and H. of this Chapter, in the absence of the M.E.Z., Comps. J. Weaver, P.Z., acting as H., and T. Kingston, J. In the course of the meeting Comp. W. J. Hargrave Jones, M.E.Z., was also present. The auditors' report was received and adopted, showing a balance, though small, on the right side. Comp. W. Stephens then installed Comp. J. Kingston, J., as H. for the next year. Comp. Tinney, the J. elect, having telegraphed from Reading that he had missed the train, and was unable to attend in time for installation, it was therefore deferred until the February convocation. Comp. W. Stephens was then inducted to the 1st P.'s chair by Comp. Jas. Weaver, P.Z. The following officers were then invested:—Comps. Weaver, Scribe E.; Moore, Scribe N.; W. J. Murlis, P. Soj.; John High, 1st Asst.; W. H. Norman, 2nd Asst.; Gilbert, Janitor. Bro. S. B. Wilmot, S.W. No. 874, Tunbridge Wells, was then exalted to the Supreme Degree of Royal Arch Masonry, the lecture being most ably rendered. Comp. Ch. Walker, W.M. of the Whittington Lodge, was then balloted for and admitted a member of the chapter. A letter was read from Comp. Hurlstone, P.Z. (who had been attacked with paralysis), resigning his membership. He being nearly 90 years of age, for his former valuable services it was resolved to continue his name as an honorary member. There being no other business before the chapter, it was closed in ancient form. Amongst the visitors were Comps. E. C. Woodward, of the Hermes Chapter; Levi, Joppa Chapter; and H. Mayes, Constitutional Chapter. An excellent banquet followed the working of the chapter. The usual loyal and R.A. toasts were given from the chair, and "The Health of the M.E.Z." proposed by Comp. Hargrave Jones, P.Z. The M.E.Z. returned thanks, and acknowledged the honour conferred in placing him in the position of 1st Principal of the Chapter. "The Newly-Exalted Companion" followed, and that companion expressed his admiration of the ceremony, which had left a profound impression on his mind not readily forgotten. "The Visitors" were proposed and warmly received, each of whom responded. "The Health of the Past Principals" was then proposed by the M.E.Z., and was followed by the presentation of a superb jewel to Bro. H. Jones, the retiring M.E.Z. Comp. Stephens remarked that he would have been pleased had it been possible for some companion of more influence to have performed this duty, but, being in the chair, he would concede to no one that privilege. Those who had the pleasure of knowing Comp. Jones in the lodge, as well as the chapter, knew his worth, and recognised his services, and he trusted (and felt sure the companions reciprocated these feelings) that he might be spared for very many years to enjoy their good opinions. Comp. Jones returned suitable thanks for this recognition of his services, and trusted to enjoy the good wishes expressed, and that the chapter might continue in its present prosperity. Comp. Walker returned thanks for admitting him a member. "The Officers" followed, and each responded. Some excellent vocal music enlivened the proceedings of the evening.

OXFORD.—Alfred Chapter (No. 340).—The senior chapter in the province held its first convocation of the season at the Masonic Hall, Alfred-street, on Tuesday, 21st ult., the three Principals, Comps. G. T. Prior, M.E.Z.; J. T. Morland, H.; Walter Thompson, J., presiding, there being a good attendance of companions. The interesting ritual was ably rendered by the 1st Principal, Comp. G. T. Prior, M.E.Z., who then withdrew from the chapter. During his absence a jewel of the value of ten guineas was voted to him for his many valuable services to the chapter. On his return he was informed of it, and having given a suitable reply the chapter was closed in due form, after several candidates had been proposed for the next meeting.

WELLS.—Avalon Chapter (No. 446).—On Tuesday, 21st Nov., this chapter met at Wells, under the guidance of E. Comp. R. C. Else, as M.E.Z.; Comp. Capt. A. T. Perkins, as H.; and Comp. E. Bath, as J.; when Bros. John Arney, Chas. W. Sayer, P. Clarke, and J. Woodward were exalted by the M.E.Z. The following companions were then duly installed as Principals for the ensuing year:—Comps. Capt. A. T. Perkins, as M.E.Z.; E. Bath, as H.; C. L. F. Edwards, as J. The ceremony was performed by E. Comp. Capt. S. G. Homfray, P. Standard Bearer of S.G.C., and P. G. H. of Monmouthshire, one of the founders of the chapter. The chapter was closed in harmony.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL SECTION OF THE FALCON LODGE, THIRSK.

On Wednesday, the 29th ult., the members visited Kirkby Knowle, and were courteously and hospitably received by the rector, the Rev. L. S. Kenny, M.A., who conducted them through the church and read an interesting paper on its history and objects of interest. This was possibly one of the primitive buildings of the Northumbrian Church, and was dedicated to St. Wilfrid of York, but nothing remains of the original structure except the chancel arch, lancet pointed early English, which has been built into the north wall of the chancel; and a few relics which were found when the foundations were cleared for building the church, the second time, in 1873. A rude holy-water stoup, a piscina, some ancient grave stones, a stone coffin, two curious stone crosses, and some sculptured Runic characters were pointed out and examined. Rubbings were taken from several brass plates which are fixed in the floor in front of the altar rails, and which bear crests and inscriptions relating to the families of Danby, Rokeby and Buxton, who formerly were the possessors of the new building, and which was originally known as Kirkby Knowle Castle.

Review.

"THE GRAPHIC."

We all of us now know the "Graphic," and know it some of us well. Though comparatively a young literary aspirant, it has already come to the front rank, and has obtained a large circulation at home and abroad. And we do not wonder at it, as it is a most interesting, amusing, well edited, happily illustrated journal, and commends itself weekly to the tastes and good opinion of thousands of readers. Its editorial articles are marked by plain English common sense, and are often striking, by reason of their quiet sarcasm, but patriotic sympathies. We may say that we read it regularly ourselves, and are always pleased and improved and edified by the perusal. We have seen the Christmas number, and most heartily do we commend it to the notice of our readers. They will enjoy it as much as we did, we feel sure, and put it down with pleasurable emotions and a hearty laugh. The stories are all excellent in their way. Many of us will feel deeply for poor little "Mim," a very affecting tale, prettily told. Mr. Anthony Trollope's "Mrs. Brown" will create some hearty merriment, and Mr. Speight's "Grass Widow," let us hope, will serve as a warning to spooney young men. The engravings are first class, and My Grandfather's Sketches are very effective indeed. From first to last the Christmas "Graphic" is a great success, and we congratulate the publisher on its appropriate character and seasonable appearance. We feel sure that it will be a popular addition to our Christmas serial literature, and we venture to predict for it (though we do not profess to set up for prophets) a very large circle of interested and gratified readers, both old and young.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. WILLIAM WORRELL, P.M., &c.

A pleasing ceremony in connection with Freemasonry took place at the Salutation Tavern, Newgate-street, on Wednesday, the 29th November, Bro. William Worrell, P.M. of the William Preston Lodge, and P.Z. of the R.A. Chapter attached thereto, also Secretary to the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum, having recently become a Benedict. The occasion was considered an auspicious one to present that worthy brother with some token of the esteem in which he is held by all who have the pleasure of his acquaintance. Accordingly a movement was set on foot by the members of the lodge and chapter to present him with an address, and also with something more substantial. The proposition met with a ready response, a foreign nobleman, who is a member of the lodge, heading the list of subscribers with a handsome sum, others followed suit, and soon a goodly amount was raised and laid out in the purchase of a handsome tea and coffee service, spoons, knives and forks; and other table requisites, which, with the address beautifully illuminated, was presented at a dinner, which took place on the day and at the place above referred to. The chair was occupied by Bro. Capt. Kain, also a P.M. and P.Z. of the same lodge and chapter, the vice-chair being occupied by Bro. John Pringle, the I.P.M. Among those present we noticed Bros. J. R. Williams, F. G. Barns, W. T. Rickwood, Dr. Cutmore, Manfield Newton, A. Le Grand, R. Sutcliffe, H. F. Partridge, J. Collens, W. Drake, G. Castle, E. B. Broomhill, &c. On the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were proposed and drank with acclamation, Bro. Rickwood responding for the Reserve Forces. At length the chairman and vice-chairman rose to do honour to the toast of the evening, "Health and Happiness to Bro. Worrell and his accomplished Bride." The chairman spoke in warm and feeling terms of the combination of good qualities possessed by their guest, in whose honour they had that evening assembled. "I have seldom in my long career," said the chairman, "met with a man so young who in so short a time has attained such high honours in Masonry. I was present at his initiation when just of age, and well remember his eloquent speech in which he endeavoured to express his delight at being brought to the light of Freemasonry, and in which speech he registered a vow to do his best to become a good man and a good Mason. Brethren, he has kept that vow. He was and is a good and true man, and having worked through all the offices with marked ability, has, as you well know, become a good Mason, and has attained, as I have said, high honours. I have now the great pleasure, sir (addressing Bro. Worrell), to present you with the following address, signed by the subscribers to the fund:—

"To the Worshipful Bro. William Worrell, Past Master of the William Preston Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, and Past First Principal of the Royal Arch Chapter attached thereto. We, the undersigned members, being desirous of bearing testimony to your Masonic ability and to your personal worth, and to the great esteem in which you are held, accept the opportunity afforded by your auspicious marriage to present you with this address, which is accompanied by a tea and coffee service, and other requisites for your hospitable table. We offer our warm congratulations on the happy event, and desire to express our 'heartiest good wishes' that you and your accomplished bride may have a long life of happiness and prosperity."

I also have great pleasure, sir, in presenting you with a handsome box containing a tea and coffee service and other requisites for your table, and long may you and your bride live to use them.—Bro. Worrell, on rising to respond, was greeted with loud applause, the cheers being again and again renewed. It was with evident emotion he returned thanks, saying that he felt almost overpowered at such manifestations of great kindness. "It is true," said he, "I have worked hard at Freemasonry, and I have been amply rewarded by the high offices that have been conferred upon me; it is also true that I have endeavoured to do my duty as a citizen of the world, and I have been also amply rewarded by the esteem of my friends, as shown by the flattering address you have been so kind as to present to me, and as shown by the splendid present accompanying it. I shall ever look upon them with pride. They would serve, if I required it, as a further stimulus to do my duty, and I hope to hand them down, with their lustre untarnished, to my descendants. On behalf of my bride I also offer my sincere thanks. She desires me to say she feels proud that the husband of her choice has earned the esteem of his fellow men. Brethren, I can say no more—words fail me to express all I feel; I can but say, God bless you all!" Bro. Worrell then proposed the health of the chairman, which was very warmly responded to and as warmly replied to. The vice-chairman's health and other toasts followed in due succession, excellent songs were sang, and it may truly be said that on few occasions was a more enjoyable evening ever passed, the chairman saying as a parting advice to the bachelors present, "Go and do thou likewise."

INSTRUCTION.

VICTORIA METROPOLITAN LODGE

—On Friday evening, the 24th ult., a large meeting of this lodge of instruction was held. Bro. Annett, S.W. of the St. James's Union, worked the Third Degree. Bro. Stacey was P.M. and Preceptor. The work was done excellently well. The candidate was Bro. Daniel, of the Alexandra Palace Lodge, and the offices were filled in the following order:—Bros. Cowan, S.W.; Denison, J.W.; Larchin, S.D.; Gush, as J.D.; and Vincent, as I.G. In the evening the collective twopences having amounted to £5, and paid into the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for a life governorship, a ballot was taken for the name which should be placed on the governorship, the ballot being restricted to those who had attended at least twenty-five times. This lodge has done a great deal for the charities, for in connection with it the subscription life governorships have gone on to a large number.

UPPER NORWOOD LODGE (No. 1586).—This excellent lodge of instruction, which has only been in existence since the formation of the mother lodge in April last, now numbers over thirty members. It is presided over by a brother who is well known in the South London Masonic circle for his earnest zeal in the Craft and eminent qualifications and natural adaption to impart Masonic instruction. On the first Monday in each month the First Degree is rehearsed and lectures worked; on the second Monday, the Second Degree, &c.; on the third Monday, the Third Degree, &c.; and the fourth, the installation ceremony, or any of the former. On Monday (Bro. J. Pringle, I.P.M. William Preston Lodge, in the chair), in addition to the Third Degree, by special request of the lodge on the preceding meeting the Preceptor, Bro. H. E. Frances, gave, in true Masonic style, the explanation of the Tracing Board of the First Degree. So admirably was the lecture given that the lodge unanimously resolved to have recorded on the minutes a vote of thanks, not only for the fluent, pathetic, and correct rendering of the historical illustrations, but for the accurate and excellent production of a Tracing Board, which practically evidenced that he is as familiar with the professional use of the brush as he is acquainted with the rituals of Masonry.

HAVANT.—Carnarvon Lodge (No. 804).—For the benefit of this and the neighbouring lodges we are pleased to announce that a lodge of instruction has been formed under the banner of the above lodge, Bro. J. N. Hillman, P.M. 804, P. Prov. G. Swd. B. Hants, and J.W., being the Preceptor. The first meeting was held on Wednesday evening, the 22nd ult., when the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed and the First Section worked. The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 13th, at 7.30 p.m., when the ceremony of passing is the work decided on for the evening. The subscription, which has been fixed at the low sum of three shillings annually, will be an inducement, we hope, to brethren in the district to join its ranks, and make this long felt want of a lodge of instruction a success. Bro. Thomas Frances, P.M. 804, of Emsworth, the Secretary, will be pleased to receive the names of brethren desirous of becoming members.

UNITED PILGRIMS' LODGE (No. 507).—The members of this old established lodge met in goodly numbers on Friday evening, the 24th ult. It appears that some few months ago a subscription was started among the members, the object of which was to present to their esteemed and valued Preceptor, Bro. M. S. Larham, some slight token as an acknowledgment of the many services rendered by him to the lodge, and it was arranged that the presentation should take place on the above date at the Surrey Masonic Hall, at which place the lodge meets every Friday evening at 7.30. After the usual business of the lodge had been disposed of, Bro. Drysdale, in the name of the members of the United Pilgrims' Lodge of Instruction, presented to Bro. Mark S.

Larham, their Preceptor, a valuable gold watch, which bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. Mark S. Larham, P.M., by the members of the United Pilgrims' Lodge of Instruction, No. 507, as a mark of their respect and recognition of the valuable services rendered by him as their Preceptor." Also a handsome testimonial on vellum, as follows:—"United Pilgrims' Lodge of Instruction, No. 507. This testimonial, together with a gold watch, was presented to Bro. Mark S. Larham, P.M. 1539, W.M. 1216, by the undermentioned members of the above lodge, as a mark of their grateful recognition and cordial appreciation of the ability and zeal with which he has so willingly and faithfully discharged his duty as Preceptor." Then follow the names of the subscribers. Bro. Larham tendered his sincere thanks to the brethren for the beautiful acknowledgment of his humble endeavours to give them Masonic instruction. He hoped that the G.A.O.T.U. would spare him for a long time to come that he might continue to give and the brethren receive instruction. The lodge was then closed and the brethren repaired to the dining room, where a substantial supper was awaiting them, which was provided by Bro. Geider, and gave general satisfaction. The watch was made by Bro. Harvey, of the Camberwell-road, and was a fine specimen of workmanship. The testimonial was got up by Bro. Cackett, of Penton-place, Newington, and it reflected great credit on the artist.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Sheffield Masonic Ball Committee have decided to give a Masonic Ball in the Cutlers' Hall, Sheffield, on Friday, the 5th of January next. From the success of their former balls we anticipate a brilliant gathering at that of 1877.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO SIR F. M. WILLIAMS, M.P.—A serious gun accident happened near Barnstaple to Sir Frederick Martin Williams, M.P. for Truro, a few days back. He was shooting with a party over the preserves of Heanton Punchardon, when, as he was loading his rifle, the cartridge exploded. One of his eyes was so severely injured by the charge that it is feared he will lose the sight of it.

CHARITY ORGANISATION SOCIETY.—The thirty-seven district committees of the Charity Organisation Society have dealt with 1519 cases (exclusive of 508 vagrant and homeless persons) for the four weeks ending November 25. Of these 584 were dismissed for various reasons; 545 were recommended to legal and charitable agencies, and 392 were assisted by grants, loans, employment, and in other ways.

It is expected that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales will, in the second week of January, visit Craigydon, the seat of Colonel Owen Williams, which is picturesquely situated on the Menai Straits. Colonel Williams was with the Prince during his Indian tour.

Bro. E. Stevens, P.M., has been elected Preceptor of the Leopold Lodge of Instruction, 1571, in the room of Bro. David Rose, resigned. We learn with regret that Bro. Stevens has resigned the honorary Secretaryship of the Peckham Lodge of Instruction.

The first number of Yorick, a Humorous and Critical Weekly Paper, will be issued on Tuesday. The leading distinctive features will be a Political or Social Cartoon, printed on a tint, and humorous and picturesque rather than comic treatment of subjects.

The remains of the late Bro. George Dawson were interred on Monday, in the General Cemetery at Birmingham. The funeral was attended by a large number of public men; many thousands of persons, including the members of Bro. Dawson's congregation being present at the cemetery.

The Annual Festival of the Wentworth Lodge, No. 1239, Sheffield, was held on Monday, the 4th inst., when Bro. S. B. Ellis, Hon. Sec. Sheffield Masonic Library, &c., &c., was duly installed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, a report of which we shall publish in an early issue.

THE LOUGHBOROUGH LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 22).—Since the opening of the above (six weeks ago) there have been 53 attendances, the First Degree worked 6 times, the Second 4, the Third once, and 13 lodges represented. On Monday last, as on the previous occasions, Bro. Thomas White, P.M., with his well-known efficiency, filled the chair of K.S.; Bros. William Ashwell, S.W.; E. Towell, J.W.; J. Barton, S.D.; J. Warren, I.G.; G. Obey, Sec.; also Bros. Hooper, Brown, Tagg, and J. D. Morris. The lodge was closed with a vote of thanks to the W.M., and adjourned till Monday, December 4th, at 7.30, to meet at the Warrior Hotel, Coldharbour-lane, Brixton.

THE ROYAL GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.—The Prince of Wales is to preside at a meeting of this society, to be held next Tuesday evening, when papers will be read on "The North Circumpolar Sea," by Capt. Sir George Nares, R.N., and on a "Sledge Journey towards the Pole," by Captain A. H. Markham, R.N.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This purifying and regulating medicine should occasionally be had recourse to during foggy, cold, and wet weather. These pills are the best preventive of hoarseness, sore throat, diphtheria, pleurisy, and asthma, and are sure remedies for congestion, bronchitis, and inflammation. A moderate attention to the directions folded round each box, will enable every invalid to take the pills in a most advantageous manner; they will be taught the proper doses and the circumstances under which these must be increased or diminished. Holloway's Pills act as alteratives, aperients and tonics; a simple cold or catarrh, thoughtlessly neglected, too frequently creates a future of imminent danger, which these Pills, aided by persevering inunction of Holloway's Ointment on the surface, would avert.—Advt.

The "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, Diary and Pocket Book" for 1877 is now ready, price 2s., post free 2s. 1d., and may be obtained of any bookseller, or at the office of the "Freemason," 198, Fleet Street, London.

The Lords of the Admiralty have, in an official communication, conveyed their thanks to the Lord Mayor of London for the liberal entertainment which he provided for the crews of the "Alert" and "Discovery" at the Mansion House.

The rumour that the Queen did not intend to spend the Christmas season at Osborne this year, is contradicted on authority.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K. G.G., M.W.G.M., was on Tuesday unanimously elected President of the Smithfield Club for the ensuing year.

Wednesday was the anniversary of the terrible disaster at the Swaithe Main Colliery, near Barnsley, in which 145 miners perished, and the sad event was fittingly celebrated by special religious services at Worsbro' Dale. It is proposed to raise a monument to the memory of the victims by the accident.

Mr. Egerton Vernon Harcourt, registrar of the diocese of York, has recently given the sum of £10,000 for the augmentation of poor livings in the diocese. Mr. Harcourt is a son of Archbishop Vernon Harcourt.

The earnings of the London Shoeblack Brigade last year are reported to have been £11,000; one set of seventy-six boys earned together £3000.

A report of the meeting of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge of Lincolnshire, which took place on the 29th ult. is unavoidably crowded out.

Craft Masonry.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—A meeting of this old lodge was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Tuesday, the 28th ult. There were present at the opening of the lodge Bros. M. Davis, W.M.; E. Mallett, S.W.; E. Hopwood, P.M. 131, 1512, acting J.W.; Waygood, I.P.M.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Percor, P.M.; Themans, P.M.; Gumball, S.D.; Walls, A.D.C., acting I.G.; Longstaffe, Tyler. Later on the staff of officers were supplemented by Bros. Taylor, P.M.; Carter, Treas.; Dailey, J.W.; Bye, J.D.; Whitby, I.G.; Morrison, A.W.S.; Heaphy, D.C. The minutes of the installation meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. passed Bro. Travers, and raised Bro. Rotenberg. The ceremonies were exceedingly well performed. At the conclusion of the latter ceremony another candidate for passing arrived in the person of Bro. Stokes, who, notwithstanding his want of punctuality, had the good fortune to receive his degree. The W.M.'s labours were still further protracted by his having to initiate Mr. Allen into Craft mysteries, which "work" having been satisfactorily carried out, Bro. Taylor, P.M., brought forward a notice of motion given by him at the last meeting, that the initiation fee should be increased to ten guineas, and the joining fee to five guineas, and that the annual subscription should be raised to three guineas. In speaking upon his proposition, Bro. Taylor stated that as there appeared to be a divided opinion upon the latter motion he was willing to withdraw it, although he wished the lodge to understand that the increased subscription was only intended to affect members joining in and after January, 1877. He then went on to state that in the brief course of three or four years the lodge had drifted from a highly prosperous to a very precarious state, and concluded by saying that as the subject was so important it was necessary that it should be fully and freely discussed, and he should therefore reserve his other remarks in support of the motion until any brethren who desired to speak upon the matter had finished. Bro. Hopwood, P.M., in seconding the proposition, said that when he joined the lodge some nineteen years ago, at a low fee, there were only thirty or forty members belonging to it, but the funds were comparatively in good condition. At the present time, and with higher fees, they were three times as strong, but the balance, according to the last audit, was on the wrong side. In conclusion, Bro. Hopwood gave as his opinion that as Freemasonry had of late years made such gigantic strides by the influx of new members the Faith would find plenty of persons willing to pay ten guineas in order to have the honour of becoming members of so old and popular a lodge as No. 141. The proposition having been fully discussed pro and con by Bros. Carter, Walls, Pibrou, and others, Bro. Taylor, P.M., again addressed the brethren at length. He said he thought that 120 members, which number constituted, he believed, their present strength, was large enough for any lodge. If their numbers increased too rapidly there would not be sufficient room, either in the lodge or in the banquet hall, to accommodate them properly, and he further said that large lodges were not to be admired. Bro. Walls had said that "quality, not quantity," was the Masonic desideratum, and he (Bro. Taylor), quite agreed with him. If the fees were increased, and the house-bills economised, the lodge would be able to support the three great Craft charities to a larger extent than it had of late years done. They must also not forget that there was a very great difference in the value of money now than there was formerly, and in conclusion the speaker forcibly said that the members then present by supporting his motion, would be doing justice not only to the lodge, but to the fraternity at large. The motion having been formally put by the W.M., was carried by a very large majority. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to the last Tuesday in January next. The visitors were Bros. Pitt, 463, and Whelon, 1035. There was no banquet.

CAVEAC LODGE (No. 176).—This lodge met at the "Albion," Aldersgate-st., London, on Saturday, the 9th inst. Present:—Bros. W. Goss, W.M.; P. A. Nairne, P.M., as S.W.; J. B. Sorrell, J.W.; Stansfield, S.D.; Neumegen, J.D.; Thorpe, I.G.; C. Dovey, P.M. and Sec.; C. Browne, P.M. and D.C.; P. Browne, P.M. and Treas.; Sorrell, I.P.M.; Besley, P.M., and Lemann, P.M.; Lamb, Kirkness, Griffiths, Morrice, Jones, Akenhead, Payne, Moore, Boyson, and others. Visitors:—W. Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P. G. Chaplain; James Stevens, P.M. 1246;

A. H. Lilley, P.M. 12; John Constable, P.M. 185; Edward Clarke, P.M. 134, and Alfred Grubb, 73, I.C. Lodge was opened, passed into Second Degree, and Bro. Bayson most ably passed to the degree of F.C. Several matters of lodge business having been attended to, the brethren subsequently assembled at banquet, which was most excellently served and was admirably presided over by the W.M., whose brief but apt and forcible introduction of the several loyal and principal Masonic toasts evinced a more than exceptional ability for the position of chairman. For Grand Lodge Officers, the Past Grand Chaplain, Bro. Simpson, responded, congratulating the lodge on its progress and working, and, referring to the Special Grand Lodge about to be called for the purpose of considering the best means for commemorating the return of the M.W. Grand Master, hoped that all divergence of opinion might give way to an unanimous acceptance of whatever decision might then be arrived at, he being quite assured that the object of each and all who took interest in the matter was a full and perfect accord throughout the Craft that the honour proposed might be acceptable to the Chief of the Order. The W. Master's health having been drank with enthusiastic response to the fair laudation with which the toast had been given, the W.M. replied in appropriate terms of acknowledgment, and gave the toast of "The Visitors." Bros. Lilley and Clarke replied, and Bro. Stevens, in obedience to the general request, also responded. He stated that he had accompanied Bro. Simpson from "The Great City" Lodge, then holding its meeting at Cannon-street Hotel, for the purpose of representing that lodge, and conveying to the W.M. and brethren of the "Caveac" expressions of cordial greeting and hearty good wishes. The reception he had that evening experienced at their hands was not only gratifying to himself personally, but would be greatly appreciated by the lodge he represented; and he ventured to suggest the practicability as well as policy of lodges, whose dates of meeting were concurrent, being represented by one or more members from the respective lodges in session. It would serve to cement the bond of union and good fellowship which they as Freemasons desired to encourage, and would enable them to keep up that association, the one with the other, which the circumstance of their being in different places at the same moment at present rendered almost, and in any other way, impossible. He thought it probable he might yet again meet the members of "The Great City" Lodge before they separated on that evening, and, if so, he would through the W.M. of that lodge notify to them the cordial reception they had accorded to him as their representative on this occasion. "The Healths of Bros. Dovey, Sec.; and Brown, Treas., were drank, and the charity box circulated. A "whip round," in accordance with annual custom, was made for the purpose of affording a "Cheery Christmas" to the worthy Tyler, who, after the services of "The Officers" had been recognised, gave the "final toast," and so brought an agreeable and thoroughly practical Masonic meeting to a highly satisfactory termination.

LEWIS LODGE (No. 1185).—At an emergency meeting a large number of the members of this lodge assembled at the King's Arms Hotel, Wood Green, on Saturday, 2d inst., pursuant to summons, for the purpose of passing a vote of sympathy with the widow and family of their late Treasurer, W. Bro. S. May, who was also one of the founders of this lodge, and to elect a Treasurer in his stead. Bro. Turner, W.M. presided, supported by the following Past Masters of the lodge, viz., Bros. Cover, Leared (Sec.) Edwards, Row, and Durrant, together with the officers, Bros. Shipwright, S.W.; Sayer, J.W.; Bone, S.D.; Berlie, J.D.; and Hooper, I.G. The lodge having been opened in due form with solemn prayer, there were four passings and two initiations taken first, in order to give the brethren full time to assemble, after which Bro. Turner, W.M., addressed the brethren as follows:—Brethren, I have called this lodge of emergency together for a special purpose, one which I have not the slightest doubt will recommend itself to every member—that of sympathising with the widow and family of our late much respected and lamented Bro. May, who was one of the founders of this lodge, and who has been our Treasurer from the very first; and you, brethren, know how efficiently he discharged the duties of that office. Taking into account the very kind interest which Bro. May has always taken in the welfare and happiness of this lodge, the truly Masonic spirit displayed by him on all occasions, and the deep and sincere interest which he has always taken in our noble charities—of which we are all justly proud—I have not the slightest fear but that the resolution about to be proposed by Bro. Cover—one of the founders, and now senior Past Master of this lodge, will receive your entire approbation. Bro. May was with us at our last meeting, having left, I might almost say, his death bed on purpose to be present, but was too ill to remain long. For my own part I shall ever remember the kind and hearty manner in which on that occasion he congratulated me on my installation as Master of this lodge. I shall now without further comment ask Bro. Cover to read his proposed resolution. W. Bro. Cover having addressed a few well-chosen remarks as to the high esteem in which Bro. May was held—not only by this lodge, but generally, and pointing out that of the founders there are now but two, himself and Bro. Leared, P.M. (Sec.), left as subscribing members—proposed a vote of sympathy with the widow and family of their late Bro. May, for their great and irreparable loss. This having been seconded by Bro. Leared, met with the unanimous approbation of the lodge. W. Bro. Durrant, I.P.M., was elected as Treasurer in the room of Bro. May, deceased. This having concluded the business of the evening the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren separated, there being no banquet on this melancholy occasion.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1436).—The regular meeting of The Great City Lodge was held on Saturday evening, Dec. 9th, at the Cannon-street Hotel, and was well attended. Bro. John Seex, W.M., presided. There were also present Bros. R. Stanney, S.W.; J. Freeman, J.W.; R. J. Simpson, Chap.; N. B. Headon, Treas.; E. Moody, Sec.; Blockie, S.D.; Catchpole, J.D.; J. Jenkins, Org.; Hamer, I.G., and Kibble and Hook, Stewards. The lodge having been opened and the minutes read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Shaw and Cartwright were raised to the Sublime Degree. The next business was the passing of Bro. Libersart to the Second Degree. The lodge was then resumed to the First Degree, and after a ballot Mr. Louis Charles Brooks was introduced and impressively initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, the whole of the three ceremonies being well rendered by the W.M. The next business was the discussion of a notice of motion, given by Bro. Townend, I.P.M., for the alteration of one of the rules which pressed hardly upon any one wishing to resign the lodge, but the discussion terminated in the notice of motion being negatived. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. At its close the W.M. gave "The Queen and the Craft," which was duly honoured. The W.M. said the next toast was "The Health of the Most Worshipful Grand Master, the Prince of Wales," and remarked that there was no place where that toast was received more heartily, or shown a greater amount of honour than in The Great City Lodge. The toast was received with hearty enthusiasm and the Masonic honours. The W.M. said the next toast he had to propose he was sure would be received with the same welcome as the former ones, as it was "The Health of the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present." He was sure that they would give the toast a hearty welcome, as they were not merely ornamental but useful members of the Craft, which they had lately proved by the efficient manner in which they had done the work at the Lodge of Emulation, and he had no doubt but that it would stimulate every Mason to perform his duties to the Craft. The toast was well received. Bro. Townend, I.P.M., said he was authorised to introduce a toast to their notice, which he was sure would be received with acclamation by the brethren, as it was "The Health of the W.M." For himself he regretted that he was not present to hear him work the ritual that night, but he knew from experience what he could do, and the excellent manner in which that ritual was rendered by him, and he was kind and genial to all who came in contact with him, either as a Mason or an individual. He, therefore, asked them to drink The health of the W.M. in the usual cordial manner of The Great City Lodge. The W.M., in reply, said while the honour was conferred upon him of being the W.M. of The Great City Lodge he felt the great responsibility imposed upon him of carrying out the duties of the chair. The observations of their I.P.M. exceeded anything he deserved, and his desire was to perform his duties, which would be a sufficient reward to him without being overloaded with praise. He was glad to possess their good wishes, hoping to do his duty with some credit to himself, and he trusted to the satisfaction of the members of the lodge. The W.M. said he was sure the next toast would be received in a fraternal spirit, as it was one that mainly affected the vitality of the Craft. There had been no meeting of The Great City Lodge without the W.M. having with great pleasure to refer to the subject of instruction. The brother who had that night been initiated was well known to a brother in the lodge by whom he had been proposed, and they received him with a hearty welcome. They always received a new brother with honour, respect, and esteem, and above all with that friendship which one member of the Craft should bear to another. With those few remarks he asked them to drink "The Health of their Newly-Initiated Brother Brooks." Bro. Brooks said he was greatly pleased at the manner he had been received amongst them, and hoped to belong to them for many years. The W.M. said he had then to bring under their notice a toast, which was the health of those brethren who had already reaped the honours of the occupation of the chair in that young lodge. Their Immediate Past Master, Bro. Townend, had had a very successful year; he had been well received and worked heartily for the benefit of the lodge. As to their senior Past Master, Bro. Headon, the less that was said as to his position in the lodge the greater honour would it confer upon him. He gave "The Health of the Past Masters of the Lodge." Bro. Townend, I.P.M., said that he was obliged that the W.M. had spoken of him, as he had done his duty to the best of his ability, although he had learned another ritual different from that worked in the lodge. He knew Bro. Headon's abilities as a Mason, and he only wished that he was able to work the ceremonies as he was. He assured them that at all times he was ready and willing to advance the interests of The Great City Lodge, as he always had them at heart, and he should always be willing to impart any knowledge to the younger brethren who aspired to the chair. The W. Master next gave a toast which he said was more welcome than any other to the W. Master of The Great City Lodge, as it was "The Health of their Visiting Brethren," and having enumerated those present asked the brethren to do honour to the toast. Bro. Roberts, of Lodge No. 1594, returned thanks. The W. Master in giving "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary of the Lodge, Bros. Headon and Moody," said he looked upon that as the most important toast of the evening, for the services they rendered to the Lodge were most important and required great discrimination on their part. He was sure all the members were greatly indebted to Bro. Moody for the manner in which he carried out his duties as Secretary, for as it was a very large lodge he undoubtedly held a most responsible position, and he was sure that although he had only made a few remarks the toast itself would ensure its hearty reception. Bro. Headon said he rose with great pleasure to return thanks for the very kind manner in which they had received the toast of Treasurer, and hoped he might have a large sum at the banker's, which he had not at the present time, for it was then very small. The Secretary, thanked the brethren for the cordial feeling that they had shown towards him that evening, which was most gratifying to him. Any hard work he had to perform would be a pleasure so long as the brethren were satisfied with him. Some other toasts were given, and the Tyler's toast brought a very harmonious meeting to a close.

IVY LODGE (No. 1441).—The last regular meeting of this young and flourishing lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Tuesday, the 28th ult. Bro. J. J. Cantle, the P.M., presided, supported by P.M.'s Noke, Smith, Mattocks, Cottebrune, and Terry (the two latter being hon. members of the lodge), and numerous visitors, amongst whom we noticed Bros. Fabian, P.G.S.W. Hants; White, P.M. 22; Eames, P.M. 22; Frampton, P.M. 142; Hillhouse, P.M. 228; Parsons, P.M. 749, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting having been duly read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bros. Coldwells and Arnold to the Degree of M.M. Bro. Bowley was afterwards passed into Fellow Craft. Messrs. E. W. Catling and W. G. Reynolds were balloted for, and, being unanimously approved, admitted into the mysteries of our ancient Craft. It is almost needless to say that the whole of the ceremonies were rendered in a most effective and impressive manner. Bro. J. W. St. John Hunt, of the Grey Friars Lodge, No. 1101, having been duly balloted for, was admitted as a joining member. A very pleasant episode followed. The W.M., after passing a very high encomium upon Bro. C. S. Jolly, P.M. 87, the Hon. Sec., and one of the founders of the lodge, whom he stated had from the very first worked hard for its success, presented him with a very handsome emblem, combining a Past Master and Secretary's jewel, which had been unanimously voted at a previous meeting as a slight acknowledgment of his services, and bore a suitable inscription. Bro. Jolly, in responding, thanked the W.M. and brethren, and said the work had been with him "a labour of love," and that as long as he possessed health and strength Ivy Lodge should have such hearty services as he could give. After some minor business was concluded, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet presided over by the W.M., and a very enjoyable evening was spent, an interesting feature being the introduction of two talented young ladies, Misses Lucy Steward and Claremont, whose singing was generally admired. We must not omit to notice that the well-known trio, Calcott's "Red Cross Knight," was admirably rendered by these ladies in conjunction with the W.M. A recitation by one of the initiates, Bro. Reynolds, was excellently delivered and much admired. Bro. Knight Smith presided at the piano-forte with his usual ability. The usual toasts were duly honoured. Bro. Cottebrune, who paid a high compliment to the working of the W.M., whom he had the pleasure of introducing into Freemasonry, responded to "The Grand Officers" toast. In response to the toast of "The Initiates," both the newly-made brethren made excellent speeches. Bro. Terry replied to the toast of "The Masonic Charities" at length, giving the brethren considerable information as to each of the three great institutions, and the progress which had been made during the last few years, [closing with an eloquent appeal on behalf of the Aged Masons' Institution. We understand, by the bye, that the W.M. intends acting as Steward at the next festival, when it is hoped that H.R.H. Prince Leopold may be well enough to preside, and from what we know of the Ivy Lodge, we are convinced that the W.M. will be able to present a good list. The Charities first appears to be the maxim of this lodge—a tithe of all the receipts are put by for this purpose. To the toast of "The Visitors," coupled with the name of Bro. Fabian, that brother, as the hour was getting late, only responded in a short telling speech, concluded with the hope that the Ivy Lodge might long flourish in connection with the "grand old" oak, Freemasonry. The Tyler's toast closed a very pleasant evening's proceedings.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—This old lodge held a regular meeting on Thursday, Dec. 7th, and was opened by Bro. Brown, W.M., at 7.30. He was supported by the following: Bros. Clark, I.P.M.; Cooper, P.M.; Captain Floyd, P.M.; Carey, P.M.; Mitchell, P.M.; Wilton, P.M. and Dir. of Cers.; Ashley, P.M. and Treas.; Dr. Hopkins, P.M. 43 and 958; Hunt, as S.W.; Falkner, J.W.; C. Wilkinson, Sec.; Braham, S.D.; Robinson, as J.D.; Radway, Steward; Gummer, I.G.; Bigwood, Tyler, and many members. There were also present as visitors Bros. Moutrie, P.M. 906; Mundy, 906; Freeman, Fuller, and Reynolds. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge having been opened in the Third Degree, Bro. Dr. Hopkins took the chair by request of the W.M., and raised Bro. Yeomans to the degree of M.M., explaining the working tools, giving the charge and an elaborate lecture on the degree, which was listened to with great attention. The lodge was then brought down to the First Degree by Bro. Brown, W.M. In accordance with previous notice, on the proposition of Bro. Ashley, seconded by Bro. Dr. Hopkins, after some discussion, an alteration was made in the rate of subscription, reducing it by one half to members who reside at a greater distance from Bath than 50 miles, provided that they also belong to another lodge; but any such non-residents holding office in Lodge 41 must pay the full subscription. A donation of ten guineas was voted to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, to be placed on the list of Bro. General Doherty, who proposes to attend as Steward at the next annual festival. A letter from Bro. Davis was read in grateful acknowledgment of the kind sympathy expressed towards him by formal resolution during his recent long illness. Several candidates for initiation were proposed. The lodge was closed at 10 p.m.

PRESCOT.—Lodge of Loyalty (No. 86).—This fine old lodge, which has been considerably over 100 years in existence, celebrated its anniversary installation on Wednesday, the 29th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Prescott, near Liverpool. There was a larger muster than any seen at the meetings for a long time, and the admirable manner in which the day's proceedings were carried out must have given entire satisfaction. Bro. W. Tyrer, W.M., presided at the opening of the business, which commenced shortly after three o'clock, and amongst others present were Bros. J. T. Hall, P.M.; H. Scott, P.M.; J. W. Fowler, P.G.A.D.C., P.M.; Reginald Young, P.M.; J. W. R. Fowler, P.M.; Dr. S. Morris, P.M.; John Vaughan, S.W. (W.M. elect); H. Vaughan, J.W.; F. Smith, Sec.; A. Tebbutt, S.D.; R. Reynolds, J.D.; A. Fraser, Steward; R. G. Elstone, J.S.; R. C. Carter, R. Betley, J. Matthews, A. Robertson, A. Borthurst, W. Jameson, and W. H. Husband. The visitors present included Bros. Dr. Stephens, P.M. 32; P. M. Pankurst, 1384; J. B. Rumney, P. L. Fryer, 292; W. J. Dunn, 756; Calvert, C. Campion, and others. After the lodge had been duly opened, and the minutes of previous meeting confirmed, the chair was taken by Bro. J. W. J. Fowler, P.M., P.P.G.A.D.C., who installed Bro. John Vaughan as the W.M. of the "Loyalty" in a most satisfactory manner. The newly-installed W.M. afterwards invested the following as his officers:—Bros. Henry Vaughan, S.W.; A. Tebbutt, J.W.; W. Tyrer, I.P.M., Treas.; R. S. Reynolds, Sec.; N. B. Jackson, S.D.; A. Fraser, J.D.; R. G. Elstone, I.G.; and R. C. Carter and J. Matthews, Stewards. Attention was called to the death of Bro. T. Wylie, P.P.G. Registrar, one of the P.M.'s of the lodge, and it was unanimously agreed that a letter of condolence should be sent to his widow by the members of the lodge. At the conclusion of the business the brethren dined at the Crown Hotel, where an excellent banquet was provided. The W.M., Bro. J. Vaughan, presided, and he was supported by a very large number of excellent brethren. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been given by the W.M. in exceedingly pointed and pithy terms (Bros. Leather and Fowler responding for the P.G. Officers), Bro. W. Tyrer, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which was received most enthusiastically. Referring at some length to the history of some local lodges, Bro. Vaughan said that in 1807 there were 35 lodges in Lancashire, of which only four were in Liverpool, namely, The Sea Captains' Lodge, No. 115, which met at the Shakespeare Tavern, Sir Thomas's-buildings, every other Thursday; the Merchants, (then No. 344) meeting at the Star and Garter Tavern, on the first and third Thursday; the Mariners' Lodge (then 362, now 249), also meeting at the Shakespeare Tavern, Sir Thomas's-buildings, on the 1st and 3rd Thursday; and the Lodge of Sincerity (then 518, now 292) held at the York Hotel, Williamson-square, on the 1st and third Tuesday. In Manchester there were 9 lodges; Warrington, Wigan, Ormskirk, Oldham, Middleton, Prescott, Colne, Leigh, Haslingden, Ashton, and Staleybridge each had one, and Rochdale, Burnley, Preston, and Lancaster each had two. Of the Liverpool ones three out of the four then in existence still survive, but the Sea Captains' (then No. 115) has disappeared from the roll. Of the nine held in Manchester at the time six have become defunct, and in their case unity does not appear to have been strength, for three of the dead lodges were called Unity, Union, and Unanimity, and there are now in Liverpool and the immediate neighbourhood as many lodges as existed in the whole of the county of Lancaster, North, East, South, and West, at the time he spoke of. Of the thirty-five lodges in existence at the beginning of the century 15 have disappeared from the roll altogether; some very curious changes have taken place, too, in the numbers of several of the lodges. The Ormskirk Lodge of Harmony, now 580, was at the beginning of the century 403, and a Bury lodge which was then 37 is now 47. He merely mentioned these facts to show the progress the Order was making, and to prove that there was a considerable amount of interesting matter for inquiry. Various other toasts followed, and during the evening Bro. J. T. Hall, P.M., in name of the members of the lodge, presented a most magnificent Past Master's jewel to Bro. W. Tyrer, I.P.M., in recognition of his valuable services to the lodge, especially during his year of office.

DOVER.—Peace and Harmony Lodge (No. 199).—The December meeting took place on the 4th inst., Bro. J. Bordeaux, W.M., presided, and there was an extra large attendance of brethren. Mr. George Saville, of Buckland, near Dover, and Mr. H. Cromwell Marsh, of Dover, were very impressively initiated by the W.M. The latter is eldest son of Bro. Charles Marsh, a member of Holmesdale Lodge, No. 874, Tunbridge Wells, and one of its founders. He is one of the oldest Masons in England, having been initiated in the Royal Cumberland Lodge, Bath, 6th of August, 1819, and was P.M. of the lodge, and P.Z. of the Royal Arch Chapter, to both of which he was a subscribing member over twenty years. He is also an honorary member of the Zetland Royal Arch Chapter, Sydney, N.S.W., being present at its inauguration in 1855. He also held the office of P.S.D. of the Lodge of Somerset. We may add that he is 88 years of age, and has been totally blind over twenty years.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 209).—The second meeting of the session was held at the Masonic Hall, Windsor, on the 7th ult. Present: Bros. W. R. Denne, W.M.; Wilson, P.M., Treas., acting S.W.; Hume, J.W.; Carter, I.P.M., P.G.D.C., Sec.; Roberts, S.D.; Schiemann, J.D.; Nichols, I.G.; Strange, P.W., P.P.G.C.D., Dir. of Cers.; Dixon, P.M., P.P.G. D.C.; McIlwham, P.M.; Bryett, P.M.; Stedwell, P.M.;

Cousins, G. Woods, Mitchiner, Legg, Blizard, Prince, Day, Clay, Duffield, Evans, Spindler, Webster, and others. Visitors: Bros. ROCK FERRY.—Rock Lodge (No. 1289).—On Friday evening, 8th inst., the annual installation meeting of this lodge was held, a large number of visitors being present, amongst whom were Bros. Thos. Marwood, Prov. J.G.W. of Cheshire; J. P. Platt, P.P.J.G.W.; Jesse Banning, P.P.G. Org. Cumberland and Westmoreland, &c.; the W.M.'s of Warren and the Dee Lodges, Bros. Taylor and Chesworth; and P.M.'s of other neighbouring lodges. After some routine business, the ceremony of installation was proceeded with by Bro. E. Friend, P.M., P.P.J.G.D., the W.M. elect being Bro. John Wilson Paton, M.D., S.W., he being the first initiate of the lodge who has attained that position. The customary observances over, Bro. Paton invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Stanton, S.W.; Townsend, J.W.; Stevenson, P.P.G.S.B., Treas. (re-elected); P. J. Rarson, reappointed Sec.; Phillips, S.D.; Ross, J.D.; Fergusson, I.G.; Jones and Moffat, Stewards. Bro. Holloway was elected and re-invested as Tyler. One noteworthy feature at this meeting was the raising of the initiation fee from six to eight guineas, and the joining fee from one to two guineas, there being only one dissident among a full number of voters. Being a suburban lodge it is thus the wish of its promoters and subscribers to localise the membership as much as possible. The requisite sum was unanimously voted for the funds of the Cheshire Educational Masonic Institution, in the name of the I.P.M., Bro. Bolton to render him a life governor of that excellent institution, as an appreciation of his services during his year of office. This donation was handsomely supplemented by the brethren in the course of the evening. The brethren then adjourned to refreshment, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, and under the presidency of the newly installed W.M., Bro. Dr. Paton, the Tyler's toast brought a pleasant evening to an end, when the lodge was finally closed in peace and harmony.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Truth (No. 1458).—This lodge held its installation meeting on Saturday, December 2nd, at private rooms, Newton Heath; and was opened at 3.15 p.m. by Bro. Charles Joel Kent, W.M. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and the ballot was taken for Bro. S. H. Needham, 1210, as a joining member, and was declared favourable. The auditor's report and balance-sheet for year ending November 4th, 1876, were then submitted and accepted. Following the usual routine, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. James Batchelder, S.W., and W.M. elect, was inducted into the chair of King Solomon by the Installing Master, Bro. Robert Caldwell, who performed the ceremony with his usual ability. The Board of Installed Masters having been dissolved, Bro. Batchelder was duly proclaimed W.M., and received the customary salutations. The working tools in each degree were presented to the newly installed W.M. by Bro. C. J. Kent; after which the Installing Master requested the W.M. to appoint his officers; which done, they were invested in the following order, by the Installing Master, Bro. Caldwell, P.M., Bros. C. J. Kent, I.P.M.; W. J. Kinder, S.W.; G. H. Needle, J.W.; T. Tyers, P.M., Treasurer (4th year). By Bro. Taylor, P.M., Bros. J. E. Iliiff, Secretary; W. Cox, S.D.; J. Taylor, J.D.; R. Caldwell, P.M., D. of C.; J. Proctor, I.G.; A. Yardley, S.S.; M. Kleinmann, J.S.; C. Beswick, Tyler. The address to the W.M. was delivered by Bro. W. Dumville, P.M.; that to the Wardens by Bro. Taylor, P.M., and the general address by Bro. J. Beresford, P.P.G.D. Cheshire, 104. Each address was given with an impressive effect. "Hearty Good Wishes" were accorded from the Provincial Grand Lodge of East Lancashire, the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cheshire, and private lodges 219, 104, 290, 521, 581, 993, 999, 955, 1009, 1077, 1011, 1134, 1161, 1219, 1496, 1357. Bro. the Revd. Dr. Cranswick, P.P.G.C., having implored the aid of the G.A.O.T.U. on the future undertakings of the lodge, it was then closed in peace and harmony, and the brethren retired to celebrate the festival of St. John, and sat down to banquet, which was ably served under the superintendence of Bro. Johnson. The newly appointed Stewards were well up to their work, attending to it with a fervour that added greatly to the comfort of the brethren present. Grace having been sung, dessert followed, and the first toast of the evening was then given, one that is cherished by Masons scattered throughout the universe, viz., that of "The Queen." Then followed that of "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," coupled with that of "The Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family." The honour due to our Royal Chief and his Illustrious House having been justly accorded, other customary toasts followed, and in due course the toast of the evening was proposed, that of "The Newly Installed W.M." This toast received musical honours; Bro. W. Dumville, P.M., singing that heart-stirring melody, "Here's to his Health in a Song," the chorus being sung by the whole of the brethren. Bro. Jas. Batchelder, W.M., then responded in suitable terms, and remarked that the position he had been placed in that day was one he had long wished to attain, and hoped that he would be spared to bring his year of office to a successful termination. Bro. Batchelder then proposed "The health of the I.P.M. and P.M.'s of the Lodge of Truth," in a very neat and telling speech; and before concluding placed upon the breast of the I.P.M., Bro. C. J. Kent, a Past Master's jewel, in the name of the brethren of the lodge. The I.P.M. having thanked the brethren for their mark of appreciation of him, the P.M.'s then respectively replied to the toast. Other toasts followed in succession, bringing a successful day to a close—a day which at 1458 abounded both in labour and refreshment with true masonic bearing. May the Lodge of Truth have many repetitions of the kind, and may its members at all times harmonise with its title and be just and upright, true and truthful. Before concluding we must not omit to state that the evening was enlivened by a humorous recitation by Bro. R. Dottie, whose droll recitals have made more than one lodge abound with laughter. Vocal ability was well represented by a choir of well-trained voices, composed of Bros. Henry Miller, Wm. Dumville, P.M., W.

Nicholson, W. C. Jones, and Hudson Lister. Bro. Batchelder, W.M. during the evening vacated his chair for a short period, and gave a solo pianoforte, with that professional and magic touch which he at all times appears to be capable of producing.

In making the presentation the W.M. spoke in warm eulogy of Bro. Barber as a Mason, and especially of the manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of the W.M. during his year, and referred in warm terms of praise to the admirable manner in which he had rendered the ceremony of installation, he being the first Master of the lodge that had installed his successor, and expressed the hope of himself and the brethren that he would live long to enjoy the honours which had been conferred on him. Birkett's, Royal Clarence Hotel, where a recherche banquet was partaken of by them. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and most cordially received. Between the toasts several glee and songs were sung by the choir, Bros. Horspool, Gregory, Huxham, Hawker, and Barber, who received the well-earned thanks and applause of the brethren for the skilful manner in which they were rendered, especially the old Masonic glee of "Hail to the Craft," and after one of the most enjoyable of evenings the brethren separated, well-pleased with the ceremony and entertainment.

NEWQUAY.—Fort Lodge (No. 1528).—The brethren of this lodge celebrated their festival of St. John on Friday, 29th ult. A large number assembled from the neighbourhood and other parts, among whom were Bros. J. Paull, P.M. "Boscawen" Lodge, Chacewater, No. 699, P.P.S.G.D.; J. Niass, P.M. No. 699, P.P.G.Reg.; W. Prout, as W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being very ably and impressively performed by the I.P.M., Bro. W. E. Michell. The newly installed W.M. then appointed and invested his new officers:—S.W., B. Wellington; J.W., J. R. Bellamy; Sec., C. Bellingham; S.D., R. Martyn; J.D., W. R. White; I.G., T. Boyle; D.C., R. Kendall; Organist, A. Lawry; Stewards, W. L. Blee and W. H. Symons, Bro. W. C. Martyn was elected Treasurer, and C. Carivick Tyler. At the conclusion of the business of the lodge Bro. Wellington, on behalf of the brethren, presented Bro. W. E. Michell, I.P.M., with a handsome Past Master's collar and jewel, in appreciation of his conduct while in the chair and his zeal in the cause of Freemasonry. The brethren subsequently partook of a banquet. The usual Masonic toasts followed, and a very agreeable evening was spent.

ST. COLUMB.—Duke of Cornwall Lodge (No. 1529) held its first annual meeting on Wednesday, 29th ult., when the retiring W.M., Bro. T. Hawken, very ably and impressively installed Bro. Thomas Hicks, S.W., in the chair of the lodge, assisted by the following Board of Installed Masters:—W. Bros. Geach, Captain Colville, Pascoe, Sandoe, J. R. Rogers, Michell, and Collins. W. Bro. Rogers, Lodge Prudence, 1550, was presented with the thanks of the lodge for his assistance and kindness shewn in many ways during the past twelve months, and it was unanimously resolved to record the same on the minutes. The brethren then adjourned to the banquet, provided by Bro. Polkinghorne.

INSTRUCTION.

UNION WATERLOO LODGE (No. 13).—On Friday evening, the 1st inst., the weather was admirably adapted for sending brethren to the table with a keen and appreciative appetite, and many as there were who quarreled with the elements en route to the scene of action, disagreements were speedily squared when the joint became the centre of attraction, and the brethren, one and all, did their level best to obliterate the recollections of a wet night by a diligent attention to all that came within their compass. It was the "Fortune of War" that caused certain brethren to bend their steps towards the New Road, and it was the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction that was to answer for the heavy engagement with huge joints, and the brisk skirmishing against sundry puddings, custards, and tarts. The company mustered some score rank and file, Bro. S. Goddard, P.M. 700, being in command, having as his first luff G. A. Davies, P.M. 13, one of the Preceptors, or he might say à la militaire, Instructors, while conspicuous among the Stewards was Bro. T. E. Hassall, 13, who discharged his duties in such a masterly manner. As we paid our devoirs to the good things things in the neighbourhood of the Vice we are unable to say what came under the immediate attention of the President, but recollect that Bro. Davies devoted himself to the dispensing of that dish over which Bro. Keeble, P.M. 1275, presided in such splendid style at the banquet of the Star Lodge of Instruction. When the cloth had been withdrawn, and the Order passed "At Ease," a general charge ensued, following which the President gave "The Queen and the Craft." Next on the toast list was "Prosperity to the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction," which was received with rare fire. "The Visitors" were responded for by Bro. Lloyd, 913; "The Preceptors," in a modest speech by Bro. Davies, who spoke in terms of sincere regret of the enforced absence through illness of his confrère, Bro. Macdonald, W.M. 1158, and afterwards proposed "The Health of the President," which was received with "three brisk rounds." Bro. Goddard replied in an able and telling manner. Seldom have we heard at an instruction banquet such capital songs as those rendered by Bros. Harding, Morley, Motley, Davis, Butt, and Hassall. We noticed present Bros. S. Goddard, P.M. 700; G. B. Davies, P.M. 13; F. G. Powall, P.M. 1536, W.M. 13; Butt, W.M. 700; Weston, W.M. 1536; Hutton, S.D. 13; N. Brown, J.D. 13; H. S. Tyer, Sec. 13; T. E. Hassall, 13; T. J. Guest, 158; R. Pearson, 1536; G. H. Masters, 13; Price, 913; Burley, 1260; J. Dalling, 640 (Montreal, Canada); A. R. Smith, 13; Ernest Smith, 1559; W. Wilson, 166 (Constantinople); Crews, Morley, Walker, Schultze, Matley, Cleal, Martin, Percival, and Grinstead, all of 13; Joskey, 1107; Jonah Davis, 1437; Harris, 700; Harding, 1536; Beaser, 700; and McCarthy, all members of the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction; and the following visitors:—Lloyd, Letton, and Stabback, 913; Virgo, 700.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB LODGE (No. 58).—This lodge held its second meeting on Monday, the 27th ult., at 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Present: Bros. E. W. Habbuck, W.M.; N. Reed, S.W.; John Walker, J.W.; J. E. Shand, Sec.; C. J. Hogg, Treas.; C. Jardine, S.D.; Jas. Edell, J.D.; W. Stevens, I.G.; Bros. Mosley, Hawksley, Stevens, Tickle, and others. The lodge was opened and minutes of last meeting confirmed, and afterwards opened in Second Degree, and that ceremony rehearsed and the sections of lectures worked by Bro. Mander, Preceptor. By-laws were discussed and ordered to be printed. A vote of thanks was moved and carried to the Committee, Bros. Hogg, Reed, and Shand, for devoting time and attention and drawing the bye-laws and making general arrangements for the first meeting of the lodge. Bro. Reed was elected W.M. at next meeting. Lodge closed and adjourned till six o'clock on Monday, Dec. 11.

SOUTHERN STAR LODGE (No. 1158).—When you oblige a friend you may very naturally expect that should occasion require it he will return the compliment; so when you ask a favour of your friend you no doubt feel willing if not absolutely anxious to relieve yourself of the obligation at the earliest possible opportunity. We do not go so far as to say that should you lend your friend a five-pound note you ought at some future period to expect him to do the same by you, for experience has taught us that in the majority of instances the friend who borrows never courts your friendship more, and that, although it may be more blessed to give than to receive, it is as a rule "easier to borrow than to repay," and that if you press for a repayment of a debt, your debtor is more likely to "part friendship" than to part with the money. That we are driving at something by this prelude our readers no doubt have concluded, and we will at once state our case. Last Thursday week, the Fifteen Sections were worked in the above young lodge of instruction, and the attendance was the smallest we have seen for some time past on similar occasions, no matter where. At many lodges where the Sections have been recently worked invaluable assistance has been given by the "Southern Star" brethren, who are ever ready and cheerfully willing to afford help and assistance to contemporaneous lodges. It was, therefore, only natural that some support should have been expected from those lodges that had benefited by "Southern Star" help, but we regret to say that such was not forthcoming, and the S.S. Section workers had to do the best they could. Illness prevented the attendance of Bro. Pulsford, P.M. 1158, Preceptor, who was to have presided, and the same cause kept away Bro. Govan Macdonald, W.M. 1158, Secretary, who would otherwise have taken Bro. Pulsford's place. As it happened, a very excellent substitute was found in the person of Bro. Kent, P.M. 879, Preceptor of the Southwark Lodge, who ably discharged the onerous and responsible duties he at such short notice assumed. Bro. Beavis, 1158, Assist. Sec., was S.W., and Bro. Solway Smith, S.D. 1158, J.W., Star of the South. Somewhat later Bro. Kent took the chair, and formed his lodge as follows:—Bros. Beavis, 1158, Sec., S.W.; S. Smith, S.D. 1115, J.W.; Catterson, 548, I.G. There were likewise present Bros. Wise, I.P.M. 1158, acting as P.M.; T. Grammaat, 1559; Hutchings, 147; Field, 175; Parker and Taylor, 753; Ernest Smith, 1559; Holloway, Black, Beard, Davis, 1158; Peters, 1471; Arnold, 1319; Runacres, 212; Hutchings, 147; Sims, Harvey, and Walker. Lodge was opened up to the Third Degree, and resumed to the First, and the Sections worked as follows:—

FIRST LECTURE.

- 1st Section by Bro. Arnold, 1319.
2nd " " Catterson, 548.
3rd " " Ernest Smith, 1559.
4th " " Kent, P.M. 879.
5th " " Beavis, 1158.
6th " " Harvey.
7th " " Beavis, 1158.

SECOND LECTURE.

- 1st Section by Bro. Wise, I.P.M. 1158.
2nd " " Beavis, 1158.
3rd " " Harvey.
4th " " Parker, 753.
5th " " Taylor, 753.

THIRD LECTURE.

- 1st Section by Bro. Hutchings, 147.
2nd " " Arnold, 1319.

At the conclusion of the working, the customary votes of thanks were passed to the W.M. and the brethren assisting in working the Sections, and the following were elected joining members:—Bros. Hutchings, Peters, Runacres, and Arnold.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—This lodge of instruction held its first regular meeting under the sanction of the mother lodge, as arranged at the preliminary one presided over by Bro. Geo. Tribbel on Friday evening, the 1st inst., at the Feathers Tavern, Upper George-street, Edgware-road. The chair was taken at 8 o'clock by Bro. A. Braun, P.M. No. 766, who, after a few preliminary remarks, invested and placed Bro. Rudderforth into the chair of K.S. The W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. G. West, 1287, S.W.; G. Tribbel, 1287, J.W.; Bro. A. Braun, P.M. 766, as P.M. and Sec.; J. Kennard, 145, as Treasurer; J. Davison, 733, S.D.; Lucas, 192, as J.D.; S. Nicholls, 1287, as I.G. The ceremony of initiation was then rehearsed in Bro. Rudderforth's usual impressive manner, Bro. Hayes being candidate, after which the sections of the lecture were worked by the W.M., assisted by the brethren. A code of bye-laws was submitted, duly discussed, and adopted. Bro. Rudderforth was elected Preceptor, Bro. Braun, Sec., and Kennard, Treasurer, for the ensuing year. A cordial vote of thanks, to be recorded upon the minutes, was then passed to these brethren, who acknowledged the same in appropriate terms. Bro. G. West was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, who appointed officers in rotation. There were also present Bros. Dunham, 1287; Parsons, 325; Murch, 27; Golden, 262; Cooper; Frost, 145; Brook, 145; Webster; Chalfont; Sawyer, 145; and many other brethren. The lodge was then closed in due form. The room, which is a convenient size, presented a most happy appearance with the new furniture, and as a lodge of instruction is much needed in this locality, there is little doubt of its being a great success.

Royal Arch.

CHAPTER OF PRUDENT BRETHREN

(No. 145).—The installation meeting of this chapter was held on Tuesday evening, 5th inst., at Freemasons' Hall. There were present on the occasion above forty of the companions, among them being Comps. John Boyd, Thos. Bull, E. Moody, Joseph Last, Parkins, G. S. States, John Cox, Venn, Haslett, Walford, C. A. Long, Herbert Dicketts, Col. Creation, S. Rawson, H. G. Buss, Hyde Pullen, H. Massey (Freemason), John Constable, Scott, Martin, Murly, Levander, Headon, Barnes Amor, and Duke. After the election of principals and officers Comp. Thos. Bull was installed as Z. by Comp. C. A. Long, Z., and Comp. E. Moody was installed as H. by Comp. John Boyd, P.Z. Comp. E. H. Thiellay, who was elected as J., was not present. The other officers were Comp. Joseph Last, P.Z., Treas.; Parkins, N.; G. S. States, P.Z., S.E.; John Cox, P.S.; Venn, 1st. A.S.; Haslett, 2nd A.S.; and Grant, Janitor. After the installation and investment of officers had been completed Bros. John Jermyn Boyd, 23; Thomas Wro. Chard Leuty, 23; and Luke Bishop, 60, were exalted as Royal Arch Masons, Comp. J. Boyd taking the duties of Z., Comp. Thos. Bull the duties of H., and Comp. C. A. Long the duties of J. The work was most fluently and impressively performed, and fully sustained the high character which the Chapter of Prudent Brethren has secured as a first-class working chapter. This was still further manifested at a subsequent period by the lecture on the Royal Arch jewel, which was delivered by Comp. J. Boyd before the companions adjourned to their banquet. This intricate lecture was admirably delivered, there not being any hesitation at all on the part of the lecturer, who threaded his way through all the windings of the explanation with the ease of a most accomplished geometrician. After the chapter had been closed, the companions were reminded that though there was no banquet announced on the summons, refreshment would be provided at seven o'clock, and on repairing at that hour to Freemasons' Tavern the companions found themselves so far deceived by the announcement that a very elegant spread was provided by Bro. Dawkins, the able manager of that establishment. Most of the companions who had been in chapter assembled round the board, and, after having done ample justice to the good things provided, proceeded to honour the toasts which were proposed with agreeable brevity by the M.E.Z. Col. Creaton, who responded to the toast of "The Grand Officers," said there were many Grand Officers who had done good suit and service to Royal Arch Masonry, and to them all the members of the R.A. owed their gratitude; more especially did they owe their gratitude to the companions who had given such an excellent treat that evening by the performance of the exaltation and installation ceremonies. The Prudent Brethren Chapter was a chapter par excellence, for never in the whole course of his Masonic experience had he seen the work done so well. Comp. C. A. Long, I.P.Z., proposed "The M.E.Z.," who, they must all agree, had fulfilled his duties in the various offices he had held in the chapter in the most conscientious manner. He had been a hard-working Mason, and it was only the just reward of his exertions that he was placed in the proud position of M.E.Z. It was by having such officers as this chapter possessed that the chapter could go on to a successful issue. The companions could congratulate themselves that they fell under such happy influences. They were in the constellation "Taurus" at the present moment; while they had Aldebaran, with stars of hardly less magnitude, on each of his horns; and the talent round him might well be said to represent the splendid cluster of the Pleiades. In fact, they had a miniature representation of the grand constellation of the "Bull." (Laughter.) The M.E.Z., in replying, said, after thanking the companions for their expressions of good feeling and satisfaction towards him, he felt grateful to them for having placed him in his elevated and proud position. It was a position which at one time he never dreamt of occupying, but it had been their pleasure to give him office from year to year, and he had advanced step by step till he had obtained the highest honours. He trusted that he should go through the discharge of his duties during his year with satisfaction to the companions. (Hear, hear.) Comp. Hyde Pullen responded for "The Visitors," and reiterated the remarks of Col. Creaton as to the work in the chapter. He afterwards referred with pleasure to the circumstances of Comp. John Boyd's son being exalted into the R.A., and trusted he would emulate his father's exertions, his virtues, and his talents. To the toast of "The Exaltees," all those companions very briefly responded. Comp. C. A. Long, I.P.Z., responded for "The P.Z.'s." As far as he was concerned he had endeavoured to perform his duties as Z. properly and conscientiously. Several times the companions had expressed themselves pleased with his work, and he had been very much pleased to receive their congratulations. As to P.Z.'s generally they must always feel somewhat as Dr. Doran would say, "Monarchs retired from business," but with this difference, they were not like ordinary deposed princes; they carried with them in their retirement the affections of their former subjects, and certainly the affections of their present companions. (Cheers.) Comp. E. Moody responded for "H. and J.," and Comp. John Boyd replied to a special toast for himself. During his connection with the Prudent Brethren Chapter, which he hoped would continue as long as he lived, he had always met, as he trusted he always should meet, with the same hearty good feeling as he had that evening. With such working as they had in the chapter, and with such good feeling as was evinced amongst the companions, the success of the chapter must be established. What had been done that evening had met with the approbation of the chapter. It was his desire to give something of the pith and substance of Freemasonry beyond the mere ceremonies—an explanation of the ceremonies; to show the companions that there was not a word throughout the ceremonies that had not its meaning, both in Craft and Arch Masonry. He hoped they would be able to carry out the idea they had, and that they would succeed in putting the needle into the lay members, to make them feel a little more enthusiasm in Freemasonry than was generally exhibited by Masons. (Hear, hear.) Comp. Joseph Last and Comp. G. S. States responded for Treasurer and Scribe E., and Comps. Cox, P.S., replied for "The Officers." During the evening some pleasant singing was performed by Comps. G. T. Carter and Distin, and Miss Florence Levander, who made a most successful debut as a vocalist at Masonic banquets.

DOMATIC CHAPTER (No. 177).—The last meeting of this chapter was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet Street, on Thursday, the 23rd ultimo. There were present Comps. Heyward, M.E.Z.; Cubitt, P.Z., acting H.; Adams, P.Z.; acting J.; Bolton, I.P.Z.; Buss, P.Z., Treasurer; Palmer, S.E.; Hill, N.; Payne, P.Z.; Sutton, P.Z. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, several minor matters were discussed and the companions adjourned to the banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth the M.E.Z. gave the usual loyal and Royal Arch toasts, prefaced by a few remarks, in proposing "The Health of the M.E.Z." Comp. Buss said that he was pleased at having the opportunity of paying that duty of respect to their worthy M.E.Z. It was true that he (Comp. Heyward) was, in consequence of untoward circumstances, prevented from discharging the duties of the chair as well as many of their first Principals had done, but he hoped that the good feeling which had always prevailed in the "Domestic" would be extended to their M.E. to the conclusion of his year of office. The chair of their chapter had been filled by some of the very best Royal Arch Masons that had ever existed, and it had also been at times very indifferently occupied; but there had never been anything but kind feeling displayed towards all who had reached the proud position of M.E.Z. of No. 177, and he therefore charged them to drink most heartily the health of their old and esteemed companion the M.E. This toast having been duly honoured, the M.E. replied by expressing his sincere thanks to the companions for the warm manner that they had responded to his health, and assured them that he had the interests of the "Domestic" Chapter at heart. He was sorry that he could not, through inability, aspire to the high honours that some of the past Principals had achieved, but he hoped to win their good opinion. Ill-health and domestic afflictions had hitherto prevented him from paying that attention to the "working" which was so highly essential to those who desired to carry out the duties of the First Principal's chair effectively, but he hoped to be able to do better in the future. The M.E. then proposed, in very complimentary terms, "The Health of their sole Visitor, Comp. Walls, 185," who duly acknowledged the honor. "The Health of the Past Principals" immediately followed. Comp. Bolton, I.P.Z., briefly replied by stating that he would always do his best in conjunction with the other past Principals to assist in the "working." Comp. Buss, P.Z., also in response said he was sorry that the I.P.Z. had been so reticent in his reply, because it necessitated him, as one of the past Principals, to say a few words in acknowledgment for the very warm manner in which their health had been both proposed and drunk. He complimented the chapter upon having had so efficient a M.E. last year, in the person of their esteemed Comp. Bolton, who had carried out the onerous duties most admirably. He was personally pleased, not only for the manner his name had been received that evening in connection with the toast, but for the invariable courtesy and kindness he had always experienced from the companions. In conclusion he congratulated them upon the financial prosperity of the lodge, which happy state for some time past, he said, had been steadily progressing. Comps. Cubitt and Sutton, P.Z.'s, also replied. In proposing "The Health of the Officers," the M.E. said that he was very sorry that two of their important officials were most sorely in need of that great blessing, health, Comps. Scott, H., and Treadwell, P.S., who were both seriously unwell, but he hoped that the new year would see them sufficiently restored to take their proper places in the chapter. This toast having been duly honoured Comps. Hill, N.; Palmer, S.E.; Buss, Treas. and Harrison, and A.S.; replied by briefly stating that they would always do their best to further the "working" and enhance the interests of the old "Domestic" Chapter in every possible way. Between the numerous toasts and responses Comps. Palmer, Ambrose, Cubitt, Walls, Heyward, Brown and others entertained the companions. The Janitor's toast at ten o'clock terminated the proceedings, and the companions separated until the fourth Thursday in January next.

NORTHAMPTON.—Northampton Chapter (No. 360).—The companions of this chapter held their first convocation in the New Masonic Hall, Abington-street, on Thursday evening, Nov. 30. Present: Comps. S. Jacob, M.E.Z.; J. U. Stanton, H.; R. Howes, J.; M. A. Boeme, P.Z., acting N.; G. Robinson, P.Z.; E. J. T. Green, acting P.S.; B. Wilkins, P.Z., D.P.G.M. Norths. and Hunts.; M. W. Flewett, P.Z.; G. Cotton, P.Z.; E. E. Welchman, P.Z.; T. Davies, P.Z.; Revs. J. T. Drake, and Stimpson, E. Roberts, F. Gadsby, J. Cove, and others. Bros. John Henry Hale (Perseverance Lodge, 455) and Henry John Atkins (Pomfret Lodge, 360) were candidates for exaltation. Being duly balloted for and elected, the ceremony was at once proceeded with, Comp. Wilkins officiating as M.E.Z. in his usual impressive manner, the other officers ably fulfilling their various duties. The whole ceremony was conducted in a manner that gained the highest encomiums from all present. The election of officers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with. Comp. Stanton was elected M.E.Z.; Howes, H.; Green, J.; Roberts, N.; Robinson, E.; Gadsby, P.S.; Hewitt, and Wilkins, Treas. The companions then adjourned to refreshment, to which ample justice was done, an unusually agreeable evening terminating with the toasts usual amongst R.A.M.'s. Although the Masonic gatherings now take place in the new buildings, the premises are not yet quite completed, so that those who attend have hardly got settled in their new home, but a bright prospect appears looming in the future for the Northampton Chapter, 360, and the Pomfret Lodge 360.

PREMIER CONCLAVE (No. 1).—The December meeting of the Premier Conclave, No. 1, was held on Monday 11th inst. at the Café Royal. Present: Sir Knts. H.; A. Dubois, M.P.S.; Dr. Brette, E.; P. M. Several Sir Knights were advanced to the degree of Sovereign. This mere routine business being ended the Sir Knights adjourned to dinner.

PORTSMOUTH.—Naval and Military Conclave (No. 35).—The anniversary of this old and prosperous conclave was held in the Masonic Hall, Portsmouth, on Tuesday, December 5th. Dr. Knott, the Int. Gen. Hants, was the presiding officer, assisted by his Deputy, Sir Knt. Jn. Clark; C. Groom, Vy. Eus.; Jn. Harrison, Sen. Gen.; B. Simister, Jun. Gen.; G. A. Green, H.P.; J. Clay, P.S., Treas.; A. R. Copus, Sentinel. The conclave was opened in ample form at 6.15. The minutes of conclave held September 6th were adopted, together with a recommendation of the Per. Council that owing to the loss of some of the P. Sovs.

by removals from the town, and other causes, it was expedient that some of the deserving members should be promoted to that exalted position; and that the Int. Gen. be requested to confer the 2nd and 3rd Grades upon Sir Knts. Reynolds and Simister, and the 3rd upon Sir Knt. Groom, the Sov. elect; by these promotions, Sir Knt. Harrison, the Eus. elect, would become eligible for the Sovereignty of the conclave for the ensuing year. Also that the Per. Council do revise the bye-laws and present them for consideration at next meeting, if possible. The ballot was then taken separately for fourteen candidates for installation, which proved unanimous in every instance. All the Sir Knts, except the Int. Gen., Dep. Int. Gen., V. Eus., Treas. and the Rec. having retired, a College of Viceroy was opened, Sir Knts. Reynolds, Simister, Harrison, and Green were introduced and admitted to the 2nd Grade. All the Sir Knts, except the Int. Gen., Dep. Int. Gen., Treas., and the Rec. having retired, a Senate of Sovereigns was opened, when Sir Knts. Reynolds, Simister, Groom, and Harrison were introduced and admitted to the 3rd Grade. The Senate was closed; the college was closed; the Sir Knts. were admitted, and the newly enthroned M.P.S., Jn. Harrison, invested the officers as follows:—G. A. Green, Eus.; C. G. Adams, S. Gen. W. Tuck, J. Gen.; A. Nance, H.P.; J. Clay, P.S., Treas.; A. R. Robinson, P.S., Rec.; J. W. D. Pillow, Prefect; W. Copus, Sentinel. Bro. Jn. Lillywhite, P.M. 257; E. Groves, P.M. 903; R. Osborne, Prov. G.O.G. Reading, 487; J. W. Fisher, 175, and J. W. Stroud, 903, being present were installed and proclaimed. The M.P.S. then thanked the members for placing him in the proud position of their ruler, and after highly eulogising the energy displayed by the Int. Gen. since his promotion to the government of the division, proposed that a P.S. jewel with appropriate inscription be presented to Ill. Sir Knt. Dr. Knott in testimony of the appreciation of the members of his services. This was seconded by the Treasurer and carried by acclamation. Several names were submitted for the honour of installation and the conclave was closed. The Sir Knts. then adjourned to the refectory, where a banquet provided by Sir Knt. G. W. Smith awaited them; when we say the comestibles and wines were equally first-rate we only do the caterer scant justice. After the table was cleared, the M.P.S. proposed the usual toasts, which were all duly honoured, and much sympathy was expressed for the Most Ill. G. Sov., Sir F. Williams, Bart., under his present serious affliction, and sincere wishes for his speedy recovery. This most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the Sentinel's toast.

ROYAL ORDER OF SCOTLAND.

The Quarterly Communication of the Provincial Grand Chapter and Grand Lodge for Glasgow and the West of Scotland was held on Thursday, the 7th inst., at 4 p.m., in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow. The Provincial Grand Master, Bro. F. A. Barrow, having opened his Provincial Grand Chapter, the minutes of last meeting were read and passed. Applications from Bros. Wm. H. Bickerton, Master Mason of Lodge No. 972, of England, and companion of Chapter No. 79, of Scotland, and Wm. Harper, Master Mason of Lodge No. 408, of Scotland, and Companion of Chapter No. 69, of Scotland, were entertained, and, the ballot being clear, they were received and admitted to the Order of H.R.M. The P.G.L. being afterwards constituted, the above named brethren were promoted, and received the honour of K.T. of R.S.T. C.S. from the Right Worshipful P.G.M.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Mother Kilwinning (No. 0).—The sixth annual reunion of the brethren of the Kilwinning Mother Lodge resident in Glasgow and neighbourhood was held on Friday night, the 8th inst., in St. John's Hall, Buchanan-street. The chair was occupied by Bro. J. M. McCosh, Dalry, who was supported on the dais by Bro. D. M. Nelson, W.M. (No. 30), S.D., G.L. of Scotland; and Bro. Robert Wylie (Sec.), Mother Kilwinning. The Croupiers' chairs were filled by Bros. H. Taylor and Wm. Jamieson, and among other members of the mother lodge present were Bros. John Tweed, P.J.W.; John Whinton, Treas.; A. Macmillan, &c. There were also present Bros. A. M. Gregor, W.M. (No. 458); Wm. Nairn (No. 370); G. W. Wheeler, Chaplain (No. 73); Robert Nelson, P.M. (No. 3); J. A. Ferguson, S. Prox. Warden; Macdonald, Aberdeen; Col. Robertson, U.S.; Park (No. 34), A. Ritchie; (No. 360), &c. Letters of apology for absence were received from Bros. Colonel Mure, M.P., W.M. Mother Kilwinning; Roger Montgomerie, M.P., Prox. Master; Cochran Patrick, D.M.; Baird, P.M. (No. 34), &c. After supper, and the toasts of "The Queen" and "The Prince of Wales, G.M.M. of England and Patron of Scottish Freemasonry," had been proposed, the Chairman gave—"The Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland." He thought that in the past they had rather neglected their share of the work connected with the Grand Lodge. It was rather remarkable that the position of the Grand Masters of the three different countries—a position which was aimed at by the highest in the land—was worthily filled by those who had a certain connection with the neighbouring county of Renfrew. (Applause.) The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Nelson. Bro. Nelson, in reply, said he did not expect that he should have had the honour of responding to this toast, as his appointment as an officer of the Grand Lodge was only a thing of yesterday. For the same reason he could not give any details of the condition of the Grand Lodge. At the same time, he did not approve of what the worthy chairman had said with reference to their neglecting the work in connection with the Grand Lodge. During the last few years, while he had had the honour of attending meetings of the Grand Lodge as the representative of a Glasgow lodge, it had not been a period of lethargy in connection with its affairs. It was true that fifteen or twenty years ago there had been considerable stagnation, and lodges were allowed to do as they liked, while the Grand Lodge was pretty much in the same condition. Now, however, circumstances had arisen which called for more activity. They had increased in numbers, and now Masonic brethren were to be found in every profession and in every class of society. This meant that their numbers were very large, and their interests also were very large and of importance. They had at the head of the Grand Lodge of Scotland at the present time Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, and any brother who had seen him occupy the throne would acknowledge that he was not likely to descend into lethargy. He was a man of considerable force of character, and he was quite sure if the Grand Lodge ever occupied a position of eminence in times past it was more likely to attain a higher position now that Sir Michael had again accepted office. Colonel Campbell of Blythswood was also an office-bearer, and it was unnecessary to say a word in regard to the gallant colonel. He was a thorough practical man, who, whether in Masonry or anything connected with the interests of the country or country, made his influence felt. In the next few years he was sure the standard of Freemasonry would be raised more in accordance with their theories, as their practice in the past had not been quite equal to their precepts. He had every reason to believe that in time to come they would have a great deal more of the true practice of Masonry than in times past. Bro. William Jamieson then proposed "The Grand Lodges of America, with No. 4, Philadelphia." The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. W. F. Shaw, who in company with Bro. Robert Bell, had paid a visit to Philadelphia at the recent Centennial Exhibition, and been warmly received by the brethren there. "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces" were next given by the Croupier, and ably replied to by Bro. Robert Donaldson. The toast of the evening then followed, "Our Mother Lodge." Amongst the other toasts given in the course of the evening were "The Province of Glasgow," "Lodge St. John, No. 34," replied to by Bro. D. M. Nelson, W.M.; "The Visiting Brethren," replied to by Bro. McGregor, W.M. St. John's, Bushby, No. 458; "Bro. Robson, of the U.S. Consulate at Leith," and others.

In reply, Bro. Thomson thanked Bro. MASONIC BALL AT ELGIN.—The Trinity Lodge of Freemasons held a grand ball in the Assembly Rooms, in honour of St. Andrew's Day. The gathering in every respect was one of the most successful ever held in Elgin. The assemblage was an influential one, numbering about 200, and the spacious ball-room, brilliantly lighted up, presented a scene of magnificent ball-room splendour, formed by the tastefully executed decorations, the glittering of the Masonic insignia of the brethren of the mystic Order, and the varied hues of the ladies' dresses. Dancing began about 9 o'clock in the evening, and was kept up in the best of style till about midnight. The music, which was of a very high-class character, was supplied by an excellent band under the leadership of the popular conductor, Mr. Frank Sutherland, Forbes. Mr. Edgar, of the Gordon Arms Hotel, in a manner that did him substantial credit, purveyed the midnight supper, and Mr. Kemp provided the wines. Supper over, apropos toasts were given, after which dancing was resumed, and the flying feet did not desist from pursuing the glowing hours till about four or five o'clock on Friday morning.

PURE BRANDY.—The Pall Mall Gazette lately stated that little or no adulteration in brandy is practised at Cognac. This is satisfactory, but what the brandy distillers leave undone there, is supplied to an alarming extent here. Messrs. Pellisson and Co., of Cognac, and 18, Billiter-street, E.C., who were specially mentioned in the Pall Mall, bring under notice their brandy of which, the eminent analysts, Dr. Bartlett and Mr. E. R. Southby speak highly, as a pure grape spirit, unsweetened, uncoloured, rich in fragrant ethers, containing a large amount of tannin and invaluable for its medical qualities. It is an advantage at this festive time to know where to obtain a spirit which connoisseurs will appreciate and do credit to one's cellar. Messrs. Pellisson and Co. have numerous agents; for this brandy, which is shipped in only two qualities, seven and ten years old.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

The annual Festival of St. Andrew was celebrated on Friday, 30th ult., by the Grand Lodge of Scotland very much according to their usual custom. By command of the Most Worshipful Grand Master the brethren assembled in the Freemasons' Hall, George street, at five o'clock, for the purpose of installing into their respective offices the several brethren selected at the last quarterly communication. This formal duty being completed the brethren adjourned to the great hall to partake of a banquet. Sir Michael Robert Shaw Stewart Bart., M.W.G.M. Mason of Scotland, took the chair, and was supported by Henry Inglis, Esq., of Torsorce, Depute Grand Master; Colonel A. C. Campbell, of Blythwood, Substitute Grand Master; William Mann, Esq., P.S.G.W., Acting Senior Grand Warden; D. M. Nelson, Senior Grand Deacon, Acting Junior Grand Warden; Rev. Dr. Gray and Rev. A. Thomson Grant, Grand Chaplains; John Laurie, Grand Secretary; Wm. Hay, Grand Architect; John Coghill, Grand Director of Ceremonies; Alex. Hay, Grand Jeweller; Daniel Robertson, Grand Bible Bearer; Colonel Guthrie of Carlogie, Acting President of the Board of Grand Stewards; Captain C. F. R. Colt, of Gartsherrie, Grand Sword-Bearer; Dr. Loth, Representative of the Grand Orient of France; Wm. Officer, Representative of the Grand Orient of Egypt; Robert Davidson, Grand Organist; Captain Phipps, Deputy Assistant Adjutant General; R. Bruce Gardyne, of Middleton, &c.; &c.

Letters of apology for absence were received from the Earl of Rosslyn, P.G.M.; John Whyte Melville of Benochy, P.G.M.; Right Hon. Lord Rosehill, S.G.W.; Right Hon. Lord Ramsay, J.G.W.; Col. Wilson of Bannockburn, J.G.D.; Jas. Ballantine, Grand Bard; F. I. Melville, President of the Board of Grand Stewards; H. F. Maclean, Prov. Prov. G.M. Lanarkshire Upper Ward; Charles Dalrymple, M.P., Prov. G.M. Argyll and the Isles; Col. W. M. Neilson, Queenhill, Prov. G.M. City of Glasgow; Right Hon. Viscount Strathallan, Past Sub. G.M.; and others.

After dinner the Grand Lodge was opened in the First Degree, and immediately afterwards called from labour to refreshment.

The R.W.M. then proposed "The Holy Lodge of St. John," which was drunk in solemn silence. Immediately afterwards "The Queen" was given, which toast, he said, was not to be drunk in silence. This year they had the refreshing sight of Her Majesty's gracious presence amongst them on the occasion of the unveiling of the statue of the late Prince Consort. He was not present in Edinburgh on that occasion, but he felt quite sure that all the inhabitants rejoiced to see the Queen amongst them once more. (Cheers.)

The Chairman next proposed "The Prince of Wales, Grand Master Mason of England, the Great Steward of Scotland and Patron of the Grand Lodge." They had had an opportunity of showing their loyalty towards their Royal patron on the occasion of the laying of the foundation-stone of the Glasgow Post Office. (Applause.) He was highly gratified with the way in which the Masons availed themselves of the opportunity to do honour to his Royal Highness, and he was aware the Prince and Princess were well pleased with that demonstration. (Applause.) Their own Grand Master felt proud of the Masons of Scotland that day—(applause)—not only on account of the strength of numbers in which they turned out, but for the orderly and loyal manner in which they conducted themselves. (Cheers.) It was a matter of regret to him that so few, comparatively, of the Masons were unable to witness the ceremony at the stone, in consequence of the necessary arrangements; but he was sure that the members of the Grand Lodge could tell them of the grace, manliness, and kindness with which the Prince conducted himself in performing his double duty. (Cheers.) His Highness had the duty to discharge of receiving an address from the Lord Provost and Magistrates of Glasgow, and secondly that of laying the foundation-stone. (Cheers.) Long might he continue to be Prince of Wales; but when he did ascend the Throne, they could wish nothing better for him that he should perform his high duties with the same manliness, grace, ability, and quiet dignity which the Scotch Freemasons, on more than one occasion, had seen displayed by him. (Cheers.)

"The other members of the Royal Family" were next enthusiastically toasted.

The Chairman then gave "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces."

"The Craft, and Freemasonry over the World," and "The Grand Lodges of England and Ireland," were then proposed and duly honoured, the latter being replied to by Colonel Oswald of Dunnikier as representative of the Grand Lodge of Ireland.

Bro. Henry Inglis proposed "The Health of the Grand Master, Sir Michael Shaw-Stewart," who, he said, was the most dignified and courteous gentleman that had represented the Grand Lodge for many years. (Cheers.)

The toast was responded to with full Masonic honours.

Sir Michael Shaw-Stewart, in reply, said—I thank you sincerely for the high honour you have conferred upon me in responding as you have done to this toast. Bro. Inglis has only spoken in too flattering terms of my humble efforts. I feel very sure that you are all aware that I value very highly the honour which has again been conferred upon me in electing me Master of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. (Cheers.) I can only say that it has always been my earnest wish, and it will always be my earnest wish during the ensuing year, to act in such a manner as will conduce to the honour of the Grand Lodge and the prosperity of the Craft in general. (Cheers.) We meet to-night on a festive evening, and it is no part of my nature to fling a wet blanket over your enjoyment; but we cannot always paint everything "couleur de rose," and I feel it my duty to tell you the simple truth and that is, that I should now address you with a lighter heart, and I believe the office-bearers of the Grand Lodge would enjoy their festival more thoroughly, were it not for the strong shadow cast upon the Grand Lodge by certain irregularities which have taken. I am aware that steps have been taken in carrying out the wishes of the last quarterly communication, and I am glad to believe that everything now with regard to the finances of the Grand Lodge is being properly worked. (Hear, hear.) But I must add this, that certain information is necessary to the Financial Committee—information which can only come from a certain quarter—and I say deliberately that I am of opinion that it would be better for all parties in this most unpleasant matter that that information should be given freely, to enable the Grand Lodge to know how it stands. (Applause.) Do not let any brother here present think that I am hard upon any other brother also present, but there are times when a man acts a kinder part in speaking what is an unpleasant truth—and unpleasant to you to hear, no doubt—than in smoothing matters over. (Applause.) Moreover, this matter has to do with the response to the toast of my health, which has been so kindly proposed and so cordially received, because, let me tell you, these irregularities to which I have referred not only caused me great annoyance, but have given me a considerable amount of personal trouble; and when it was known to me that the Grand Lodge intended to do me the honour of again electing me to the throne for another year, one great inducement that I had in accepting the honour, which I highly value, was my wish and expectation that I should be able to leave to my successor a more satisfactory inheritance than that to which I myself succeeded. (Cheers.) I thank you again, and can truly say that the kindness and cordiality which I have always received from Scotch Masons will make me endeavour still to discharge to the best of my ability the duties of my high office. (Loud Cheers.)

Bro. W. H. Bickerton was present on behalf of the "Freemason," and the following Deputations from daughter lodges, viz.:—1, Mary's Chapel, B. F. Shaw Stewart; 2, Canongate, Kilwinning, Ebsworth; 3 bis, Glasgow St. John, Nelson; 5 Canongate and Leith, Hudson; 7, Hamilton, Kilwinning, Spalding; 8, Journeyman, Davidson; 36, St. David's, Tracey, 44, St. Luke's, Moncrieff; 112, St. John Fisherrow, Carse; 146, St. Stephen, Edinburgh; Linton; 851, Edinburgh Defensive Band, Beveridge; 160, Roman Eagle, Laing; 225, Trafalgar, Campbell; 291, Celtic, Edinburgh, Dundas Grant; 299, Panmure Arbroath, W. Smith; 334, St. John's, N. Cumnock, Mitchell; 349, St. Clair, Edinburgh, Greenaway; 392, Caledonian Edinburgh, Swanson; 405, Rifle, Edinburgh, Apthorpe; 548, St. Margaret, Queensferry, Glendinning; 580, St. Leonard, Loanhead.

"The Provincial Grand Lodges of Scotland," "The Grand Wardens and other Office-bearers" were proposed. The toast of "Lady Octavia Shaw Stewart" was received with great applause. The lists was concluded with the usual toasts of "The Memory of Deceased Members during the past year," and "The Memory of St. Clair Rosslyn." Grand Lodge was then called to labour, and closed in ample form.

CEREMONIAL AT WAKEFIELD.

On Saturday, the 25th ult., there were great festivities over the laying of the foundation stone of the new hospital the total cost of which will be about £20,000. In order that justice might be done to the importance of the occasion, arrangements had been made for Colonel J. C. D. Charlesworth, M.A., D.L., J.P., the President, to lay the memorial-stone with full Masonic honours. A procession was formed, led off by the local Volunteers. Then came the Trades and Friendly Societies, the Fire Brigade, the Committee of the Hospital Saturday Fund, the Tradesmen's Association, the Board of Guardians and School Board, the Trustees and Governors of various Charities, Ministers of Religion, Justices of the Peace, Donors and Subscribers, members of the Medical Profession, the Borough Member, the Mayor and Corporation, the committee and officers of the Clayton Hospital, and the Freemasons. The Lodge Wakefield had previously been constituted with due formality, and Colonel Charlesworth invested pro. tem. with the office of Deputy Provincial Grand Master. When the head of the procession reached the entrance to the ground in Wentworth-street, the public societies, &c., divided to the right and left, facing inwards, thus forming an avenue through which the Masonic brethren passed to the enclosure. The proceedings commenced with the singing of the Hundredth Psalm, accompanied by the Rifle Band, after which a prayer was offered by the Rev. N. D. J. Stratton, vicar of Wakefield. Colonel Charlesworth was then presented with a silver trowel by Mr. John Binks, the popular Secretary of the Building Committee; and with this—after the inscribed memorial plate and bottle with newspapers had been deposited—the stone was laid in customary form. The cornucopia being handed to Colonel Charlesworth, he strewed the corn upon the stone with the usual Masonic ceremonies, adding a wish that the plenty of which it was an emblem might be showered down upon the building. The Masonic ewers being next handed to him, he poured the wine and oil over the stone—the first as a symbol of cheerfulness and joy; the second as a symbol of prosperity and happiness. An appropriate prayer was then offered by the Rev. J. S. Eastmead, Congregational minister, after which Colonel Charlesworth addressed the assemblage. Before the procession re-formed for the march back into the town Colonel Charlesworth announced that the Secretary would read a letter which would be most gratifying to every one around him. Mr. Binks accordingly read the following letter:—"Crofton Hall, Wakefield, 23rd Nov., 1876. My dear Sir,—I beg you will convey to the committee of the Clayton Hospital my grateful thanks for their vote of condolence on the death of my father. As a proof of the interest he took as one of the vice-presidents of that institution, I am desired by my co-executors under his will to forward the accompanying extract from that document, viz.:—'To the Treasurer for the time being of the Clayton Hospital, Wakefield, a legacy of £4000—(cheers)—for which such Treasurer's receipt is to be a discharge.' Under other circumstances, as Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the Province of West Yorkshire, I should have had great pleasure in being present at the laying of the foundation stone of the new Hospital and Dispensary, but at present, under the loss I have sustained by the death of my father, I am not taking part in any public ceremonial. Accept, however, my best wishes for the prosperity and usefulness of your institution; and believe me to remain, yours, &c., Thos. Wm. Tew, executor under the will of the late Edwd. Tew." Shortly after the procession and crowd of spectators had dispersed, a company of gentlemen interested in the new Hospital partook of luncheon together in the Music Saloon. The Mayor (Ald. Gill) presided.

A meeting of the Hospital Sunday Fund Committee was held at the Mansion House on Wednesday, the Lord Mayor presiding, at which a resolution was passed that Sunday, the 17th June next, should be the day for making the usual collections throughout the Metropolis.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Though it is impossible in this climate of changing temperature, to prevent ill-health altogether, yet its form and frequency may be much mitigated by the early adoption of remedial measures. When hoarseness, cough, thick breathing, and the attending slight fever indicate irritation of the throat or chest, Holloway's Ointment should be rubbed upon these parts without delay, and his Pills taken in appropriate doses, to promote its curative action. No catarrhs or sore throats can resist these remedies. Printed directions envelope every package of Holloway's medicaments, which are suited to all ages and conditions, and to every ordinary disease to which humanity is liable.—Advt.

THE LAST QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

The last meeting of Grand Lodge was neither very long, nor, to say the truth, very important, though a good deal of essential business was nevertheless transacted. Our Royal Grand Master was nominated for re-election, and the hearty applause of the brethren was a good index to the feelings of our entire Craft. Bro. Clabon was reappointed President of the Lodge of Benevolence, a matter of much gratification to all. Two appeals of some little intricacy, thanks to the lucid exposition of our esteemed Grand Registrar, were adjudicated upon easily by Grand Lodge. We are to have a special meeting of Grand Lodge to consider the report of the Special Committee. This is, in our opinion, a very wise decision; and until that report is in our hands, proposals are premature and discussion is out of place. We have delegated a special work to a special committee, and until we learn what that committee has to say on the subject, whatever our personal feelings or private notions may be, we must be content to sit still and to hold our tongues.

THE DEPARTURE OF OUR BRO. THE DUKE OF ABERCORN FROM IRELAND.

No one can read the interesting account in the Times of this recent event without being deeply pleased, and not a little moved. There is, and there ought to be, always amongst Englishmen and Freemasons a warm sympathy for Ireland and its warm-hearted people. No one can deny the impulsive nature of the Celt, or that there still lingers amid the population of the "Green Island," many aspirations and sympathies, which fall on our cold and more phlegmatic Anglo-Saxon temperament somewhat amazedly and coldly, so to say, at times. But his must be a callous heart, or an ungenerous disposition, who does not feel much of interest in a land which often seems to us to have a very great deal to commend it alike to the careful consideration of the publicist, the ardent longings of the politician, the dream of the poet, and the admiration of the genial hearted. The good government of that important portion of her Majesty's Dominions is indeed a subject of vital importance to us all alike, and every one who has any pretence either to the character of a patriot or a statesman, much less that of a Masonic philosopher, will always rejoice to hear of the inward prosperity and onward progress of Ireland. In Bro. the Duke of Abercorn, Ireland has recently parted with an able ruler and a sagacious administrator. No more popular Lord Lieutenant has ever presided over the graceful hospitality of Dublin Castle, and the pleasant rule of his kindly administration will long be preserved green and fresh in the warm memories of the Irish people. As an Irish landlord, as a prudent and polished, and fair and courteous representative of Her Majesty the Queen, his name will long be associated, and most favourably too, with those who make up the long list of leading men, who have from time to time, swayed the Viceregal power in Ireland, and the amenities and graces of his family circle will always be remembered with sincere feelings of pride and admiration. But, as Freemasons, we owe to our brother, the Duke of Abercorn, a warm tribute of grateful acknowledgement, as well as a friendly recognition of his many excellencies, social, political, and personal. In an hour of great trial for Freemasonry he was not ashamed to own us as his brethren. When the Craft in Ireland was mourning their venerable head of many years, the kind and conciliatory "Geraldine," the Irish Grand Lodge happily offered the throne of Irish Masonry to Her Majesty's representative in that country, their eminent Bro. the Duke of Abercorn. He at once gallantly accepted the high honour, even though it exposed him to the virulence of Ultramontane insult and the turgid utterances of "Cardinal Paul." Despite the assertions of the ignorant and the criticisms of the malevolent, he openly declared before all men, that he found Freemasonry to be (as otherwise, he could in his official position have nothing to do with it) a loyal, peaceable, benevolent order. There is a good deal more in this his act of high courage and straightforward sincerity, (in keeping with his entire career), than appears at first sight, and as Freemasons, we are bound to remember gratefully that we number him among the rulers of our Craft, and can look on him as a faithful and tried brother of our Order. In common with all classes of the Irish people, we regret his departure from a country which he has ruled so well, and while his worth and capacity are alike universally acknowledged, and his resignation of his high office truly deplored, may all of good go with him and his family, and in the clime of the sunny South may he find health and strength, for other duties to his Queen and country. We rejoice to think that his successor, the Duke of Marlborough, is a member of our fraternity, having been originally initiated, we are informed, in the famous Apollo Lodge at Oxford. We doubt not, that in his hands the prestige of the Lord Lieutenancy will be well maintained, and that under the Regime of his amiable Duchess, the hospitality of Dublin Castle will be dispensed to the cordial satisfaction of all Her Majesty's loyal subjects in Ireland.

THE PROGRESS OF THE CONTROVERSY RAISED BY THE FRENCH GRAND ORIENT.

It is somewhat amusing, though not a little serious, to note how quickly fulfilment has followed prediction, in this "vexata quæstio." We have already said, that the effect of the French agitation, and the unwise decision of the Grand Orient would be to produce isolation, and that isolation has already commenced. Indeed, it is not too much to say that the effect of the action of the Grand Orient of France has been to produce pain and stupefaction in other Masonic bodies. Bro. André Rousselle seemed to fancy that all such fears were chimerical and groundless, he will we suspect be ready to admit ere very long, that Bro. Behr and others were perfectly right in their apprehensions and prognostications. The Grand Orient of Egypt has already manifested its entire disapproval of the step. By a resolution and decree of Nov. 1, unless this motion for removing the belief in God and the Immortality of the Soul be withdrawn, it declines to acknowledge the Grand Orient of France as a lawful Masonic power, and withdraws any request for recognition, and refuses any representative on its own behalf, at the Grand Orient of France, or any representative of the Grand Orient of France in the Grand Orient of Egypt. The arguments on which the decrees are based seem to be these:—1. That the belief in God is an universal and unchangeable law of Freemasons; and 2ndly, that the suppression of belief in God, as a necessary condition of admission, must not only lead to other consequences, but must inevitably drive out of Freemasonry all believers in God. To the Grand Orient of Egypt, such a step appears, as to us, a REVOLUTION. We have never concealed our opinion of the mistaken and worse than mistaken policy which has resulted in such a dead-lock for the Grand Orient of France, as this resolution will prove to be if carried out. We conceive it to be an act of childish folly, only equalled by its mischievous perversity. Despite the eloquence and ability by which this measure has been defended, eloquence and ability deserving of a better cause to support, we, from the first, have pointed out in language nearly similar to that of the Grand Orient of Egypt, what the effect would be on other bodies, and how seriously the whole Masonic edifice was shaken by such a breach in its constitutional foundation. We still trust that there is time for the Grand Orient of France to retrace its steps. For of one thing we feel sure—of course we speak with no authority beyond our own opinion—that if by any official act, the belief in the existence of God and the Immortality of the Soul is openly repudiated by French Freemasonry, it will be impossible for the Grand Lodge of England on its principles to acknowledge the existence or authority of the Grand Orient of France, as an integral portion of pure and ancient Masonry. We write as "Amici Curie," and in the trust that the French Grand Orient will by a special Assembly, at once put a stop to a baneful and perilous agitation.

SOME FRESH ROMAN CATHOLIC ATTACKS ON FREEMASONRY.

Two recent "mandemens" or allocutions have been submitted to our notice, which we think deserve our attention, though we are heartily sick of the subject ourselves and some of our readers may, we think, be still sicker. When they have read what follows, we trust they will say "is there not a cause," probably whether for praise or blame, whether for note or comment, for warning or animadversion. The one is a brief from the Pope to the Bishop of St. Paul in Brazil, published in the Univers of October 25th, and a portion of which is contained in the Chaine d'Union for December. We wish that our good Bro. Hubert would always give us the whole document, as "excerpts" are liable to the charge of incompleteness and inaccuracy, and in all such quotations it is better to see the text and context in their entirety. The following is a translation of the brief in French (taken from the Latin):—

"To our venerable Brother—Health and Apostolic Benediction.—If your arrival has been very agreeable to us, venerable Brother, it has become the more so by the good accounts we have received of your diocese. In truth at the moment when not only common report but the public journals by their impetuosity, their anger, their calumny, their violence, and their invectives openly show how greatly the Masonic Sect is spread in Brazil, how numerous are the persons of all ranks whom it has inveigled or altogether or partly deceived, with what tenacity it applies itself to ruin the authority of the holy bishops, and to dissolve the Catholic Unity and the Constitution of the Church at this time. We could not but rejoice to learn that the Holy Spirit, which "bloweth where it listeth," had inspired many of the priests of the diocese desirous of marching in the vocation whereto they are called to form among them an association under the name of the Prince of the Apostles, and under the tutelage of the Holy Heart of Jesus, in order that uniting themselves in this conference, called the conference of St. Peter, they could, by associating their thoughts and joining their forces, labour with an unanimous effort, with all the devotion and zeal of which they are capable, to remove the evils of religion and all that is for the souls (sic) [of the faithful?] a detriment and a peril." We find no fault with this document, as it is moderate "per se," but we could wish that the Roman Curia was a little more attentive to punctuation and lucidity of expression. "Les Maux de la Religion" may mean anything or nothing, though we presume, that the chief of these evils is the "Masonic sect" alluded to. So far from blaming the Brazilian Roman Catholic clergy, however, for forming themselves into an union, if they deem that they have cause of complaint, or apprehension, we think that they are quite right in so acting, for that at any rate is better than foolish anathemata and childish excommunications. The last Papal brief is an agreeable contrast to many preceding similar publications, and we have perused it, we confess, with no little satisfaction, as in the present state of Roman Catholic excitement we could not expect much less, nor need we ever find fault with the pious fervour of earnest religionists, acting within their own lines, and defending manfully what they believe, (if ever erroneously), to be in any way menaced from without. We wish we could say the same of the next address, which is that of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Malta, "Carmulus Comes Siciluna," and which seems to be taken from an English paper, the Public Opinion, of 13th November, and translated. If some brethren will kindly procure us the Latin original of these two documents, we will publish them in the "Historical Document" portion of the Masonic Magazine, "for information." There is at Malta a paper called La Fenice, which has been set up by some liberal-minded Roman Catholics, in opposition to the Jesuitical and Ultramontane party, and of this paper the Archbishop of Malta thus speaks:—"The evil being great, we declare that from the date of the present publication, any one who writes in that journal, or contributes to its publication, whether as printer, seller, writer, or reader, will not only commit a mortal sin, but will incur "ipso facto" the punishment of the "greater excommunication" reserved to ourselves, from which without our special permission, no confession can absolve him." Surely this is coming it rather strong? A man has committed a "mortal sin" who prints, or reads, or sells, or writes for the Fenice. This is liberty of the press and individual freedom, at Malta, with a vengeance. Can anything be more absurd or more mischievous, or a greater reflexion on common sense, or more, a lasting injury to religion? The angry prelate then goes on piously to say: "We hope that these measures will end not only in restraining the true 'fideles' far from this poisoned pasture, but will also cause the editors of the said paper to repent, as well as their fellow labourers, for whom we wish nothing better, and desire nothing more than their amendment and eternal salvation." Does a faint memory of the great "Pecksniff" float before any of our minds, as we peruse these words? But do not let us judge "Carmulus Archbishop, Bishop of Malta," too severely, and let us make allowance for that peculiar state of sensational morbidity into which as regards the Freemasons, the whole Roman Catholic Church seems just now to have fallen. And now we leave the subject, which we shall not return to willingly, and not at all, if the Roman Catholic Church will leave us alone, but we should be something worse than cowards, if we did not notice in the pages of the Freemason attacks, and a system of persecution, which though utterly worthless and harmless to our Order, are yet an insult to reason, liberty of conscience, and above all, to true religion.

FREEMASONRY IN SCOTLAND.

Dear Sir and Brother,—We have recently heard much of the degeneracy of our noble Craft amongst our countrymen to the north of the Tweed. As an evidence of this, and as a striking proof of the urgent need existing for improvement in the supervision of private lodges as now exercised by the Grand Lodge of Scotland, I would ask you to make known the following facts:—

A lodge at Arbroath has recently built a hall to meet in, and there is a debt upon the building, which the lodge is anxious to clear off (I gather these facts from the documents I enclose), and to do this, they have got up a lottery upon the principle of the Art Union of England, offering prizes of from £30 to 15s. in value, to be drawn for on the 14th of February next, and they have issued six-penny tickets, which they are offering for sale to English lodges.

The documents I enclose came to me by post, and were directed to "The W.M. of Lodge No.—&c., &c.," from which I think it is fair to presume that similar communications have been addressed to other lodges in England, and perhaps elsewhere.

Begging from strangers is at all times unseemly, no matter for how worthy an object, and is it not still more unseemly for the Worshipful Master of a lodge to send begging letters in print to the Worshipful Masters of stranger lodges, not even under the same jurisdiction, asking them to assist in selling lottery tickets "amongst brethren and the public," to help to clear off a debt which his lodge ought never to have incurred, if they were going to live in order to pay it off?

This appears to me to be a more objectionable proceeding even than the louting for members by new lodges, which has very recently called for the severe censure of the Pro Grand Master and the Board of General Purposes, and I most sincerely hope no other instance will ever call for condemnation.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
S.M.M.C.O.
P.M., P. Prov. G. Sec., 31*.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—I have read with deep regret the two letters of Brother Thomson, of Galashiels. If I may be allowed to say so, I think it is better for all communities "to wash their dirty linen at home." The majority of your readers are brethren residing in England, and not in Scotland; our English brethren can only take a fraternal interest in our concerns; they can give us no help, only their sympathy.

Bro. Thomson may have just cause for complaint, but I would suggest to him to consider whether the more Masonic course would not have been to have sought to lop off the excrescences and reduce rude matter to its proper form at home.

This, I may say, is my idea of the case.

I know Bro. Thomson to be a zealous and earnest Mason; I know that he, in common with others, have grievances—and just ones too. Let us, then, one and all unite and endeavour to reduce this rude matter to its proper form.

Bro. Thomson, I am afraid, has not considered this matter in its full and general light. While he condemns the system, he offers nothing in its place. I can assure him that I have for a long time been seeking to accomplish his aim Masonically and constitutionally; but to set the Grand Lodge of Scotland on a firm basis demands many things—first, no isolated motions will or can succeed of themselves; secondly, you may change your executive office-bearers as often as you like ("but the general system requires partial, if not entire, reconstruction"); thirdly, the best system that can be conceived cannot succeed, the best officers available cannot carry out our wishes, if the lodges in general and every individual Mason in Scotland be not prompt to execute the design.

The ideas that I propose through your columns to bring before my Scottish brethren may be considered by many crude in the extreme, but after long thought and anxious enquiry, I feel they may at any rate guide our brethren in the re-arrangement required.

I have now a motion before Grand Lodge of Scotland, which I trust (if duly supported and carried) may lead to a better state of affairs than we have at present; but I should add, that if the "surgeon's knife" be put in (and no doubt rightly) to the root and the stem, the branches also must feel the incision. Our Grand Lodge can, and may, be made good by patient care and the application of good remedies; our Provincial Grand Lodges should be made to bear their portion of the work, but the daughter lodges themselves must also feel the "surgeon's knife."

If one and all will join in the restoration of Masonry in Scotland, no one will be more delighted than

Yours fraternally,

GEORGE HARRIOTT, of Killinore,
Prov. G.M. Wigtown and Kirkcudbright.

TRADING ON FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Will the editor of the Freemason accept this modest criticism of a still more modest "bid for trade?"

"Higglesbury Independent Office, 54, Church-street, Higglesbury, November 17th, 1876.

"Dear Sir and Brother,—The growth, both in numbers and importance, of this ancient Order during the last few years, and notably so since the Installation of our future Sovereign as the Most Worshipful Grand Master, has been so rapid, that it has become an object of primary importance for the weal and successful advancement of the Order, that a public means of communication between the various lodges in this and the adjoining provinces should be available."

"The Craft has not yet discovered this object of such primary importance."

"With a view to afford some facilities to the Craft for this purpose, we have decided, after due consideration and consultation, to appropriate a limited space in our columns for the special purpose of Freemasonry, commencing Saturday, December 2nd, 1876."

Very appropriate indeed! Probably to come in at the end amongst riddles, extracts from comic papers, &c.

"It is our intention to avoid, as far as possible, giving details of any circumstances which may not be of general interest to the surrounding provinces. We do not propose to report the meetings of the various lodges at full length, nor the after dinner speeches, but to give a brief record of the business done."

Masonry ceases to be a secret institution when names, &c., are put in print in a local paper.

"It is also our purpose to open a list of meetings, to be held during the week after publication, with notices of adjournments, and other information necessary to avoid the disappointment and annoyance so frequently experienced by brethren who happen to attend at the usual hour and place of meeting, and find that the lodges have adjourned for vacation."

Calendars at 1d. each, compiled by authority, give date, time, and place of meeting of every lodge, chapter, etc., in the province.

"We intend also to notify the meetings of Provincial Grand Lodges, and to report the proceedings as far as admissible, giving the names of the newly appointed officers; and we hope in doing so to avoid the errors so frequently committed by our local contemporaries in giving the initial titles to each."

This is sufficiently well done at present. Initial titles are surely understood by the Craft!

"In order that all our reports may be strictly correct and in accordance with the constitutions of the Order, and that nothing unmasonic or disadvantageous to the Craft may be inserted, and that the ancient tenets of the Order—Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth—may be ever maintained amongst the brethren, we shall place the editorial supervision of this department in the hands of a brother, who is fully conversant with the details of every branch of Freemasonry."

Name? Where is the guarantee? It follows, that there will be correspondence and bickering over petty details, and members being personally known will be "spotted."

"We solicit your co-operation, and request that you will kindly send us a copy of the circulars convening the meetings of your lodge, and a short report of the proceedings of such meeting, together with notices of any changes, or other matters which may interest our Masonic readers."

Masonic readers have journals of their own, deserving of their support, without encouraging a local newspaper, of whatever political colour, to take them in hand at present.

Possibly not one per cent. of the craft was aware that a newspaper called the Higglesbury Independent was in existence.

"The Independent is published every Saturday morning. Subscriptions 6s. 6d. per annum, post free, payable in advance.

"Yours, faithfully and fraternally,

"THE EDITOR."

[We give this paper at the request of our correspondent. If any of our brethren cannot find "Higglesbury" in "Bradshaw" it is no fault of ours.—ED.]

THE BURNS STATUE AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Glasgow News.

Sir,—In the report you give in Monday's paper, of the proceedings at the meeting of the committee and the representatives of the various trades held on Saturday afternoon last, Mr. Gordon Smith mentioned that the poet's mother lodge is dormant. Now, for the information of the Craft, permit me to state that eight years ago a body of Masons here met, and made all the preliminary arrangements to have the poet's mother lodge—Saint David's, Tarbolton, No. 125—resuscitated, and a petition with that object was in due form presented to the Grand Lodge, and a sum of money deposited with the petition. Beyond sending a receipt for the cash, the Grand Lodge has taken no further notice of the application, and still retains the deposited money. The dormancy, which in itself is not creditable to true Masons, your readers will thus see rests entirely with the Grand Lodge, whose officials will, sooner or later, have to give an explanation.

I enclose my card, and am, &c.,
Mauchline, 29th November, 1876.

THE PAST MASTER'S JEWEL.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can any among your readers tell me whether a Past Master of a Craft lodge, not being the I.P.M., has a right to wear the P.M.'s jewel otherwise than on a collar? It is most frequently worn as a medal. I do not want a mere expression of opinion, which is worthless, unless backed by authority.

Yours fraternally,

TEMPLAR HISTORY.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I see from No. 3 of the Rosierucian that the A.D. 1778 Laws of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the so-called "Modern" Masons, led to those of the Bristol Templar confederation of 1780, which are an adapted copy, and both Orders base their powers upon a "Charter of Compact." (Query,—Granted by, to themselves?) I see also that Joshua Springer, who aided the Bath and Bristol Templar confederation of 1780 was a "Modern" Mason, belonging to Lodge No. 138, No. 167 at the Union. Prior to these two dates I suppose these degrees amongst the "Moderns" had no separate Grand Governing body. I should be pleased to see the writer of "Records of the Craft" follow these clues further. Now the Templars have dissolved the "Tripartite Treaty" there is a respectable and independent future again for that Order.

JOHN YARKER.

Manchester, Dec. 9th, 1876.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

A National Great Priory of England and Wales was held in the Cannon-street Hotel, Cannon-street, on Friday, 8th inst., the Right Hon. the Earl of Limerick, Great Prior, presiding. There was a very large and unusual attendance, nearly 200 Knights being present. This large assemblage was doubtless due to the vote to be taken on the motions regarding the restoration of Past rank &c., to be made by the Provincial Prior of Lancashire, and in support of which much interest has for a long period been excited in the Provinces of Lancashire, Dorset, and Devon. The Provinces of Stafford and Warwick were also well represented by a goodly number of Sir Knights, who loyally assembled to do honour to their late chief, the new Great Prior, and in consequence they were allowed the privilege of forming the Arch of Steel nearest the throne.

After the minutes of the last Great Priory had been read and confirmed, the installation of the Right Hon. the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, vice the Earl of Limerick resigned, was duly proceeded with.

In presenting the Earl for Installation, Sir Patrick Colquhoun, the Great Chancellor, delivered an eloquent address on his ancient and noble lineage, in the course of which he recited the following passage from Shakespeare's play of Henry VI. (Part I, Act iv., Scene vii.), in which Sir William Lucy rehearses the titles of the great and celebrated Lord Talbot, an ancestor of the Earl, describing him as,—

"The great Alcides of the field,
"Valiant Lord Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury,
"Created for his rare success in arms,
"Great Earl of Washford, Waterford, and Valence;
"Lord Talbot of Goodrig and Urchingfield,
"Lord Strange of Blackmere, Lord Verdun of Alton,
"Lord Cromwell of Wingfield, Lord Furnival of Sheffield,
"The thrice victorious Lord of Falconbridge;
"Knight of the noble Order of St. George,
"Worthy Saint Michael, and the Golden Fleece,
"Great Mareschal to Henry the Sixth,
"Of all his wars within the realm of France."

After the presentation, the installation was concluded, and the Earl was duly proclaimed by the Great Marshal, who rehearsed all the noble Knight's titles, foremost of which is that of Premier Earl of England.

Having assumed his seat under the customary honours, the noble Knight returned thanks for the honour conferred upon him by H.R.H. the Grand Master, and for the cordial approval of his appointment by the Sir Knights present. It would be his earnest endeavour to rule the Order with firmness and good sense, and he hoped to succeed in restoring it to a state of quietness by his resolve to allow full and free, but temperate discussion of every point. He paid a high tribute to the abilities of his predecessor, the Earl of Limerick, and he trusted he might always count upon his valuable aid and support, and also upon that of all the officers of Great Priory, who he begged would favour him by continuing in office until he had time to make his selections after a closer acquaintance with the members of the Order.

The noble Knight having resumed his seat amidst loud and protracted applause, the business of Great Priory was proceeded with.

The following report of the Council was read by the Great Chancellor, Sir Patrick Colquhoun, Q.C., &c., &c.

Very High and Eminent Great Prior,

Your Council has the honour to report that it has graciously pleased His Royal Highness the Grand Master to appoint the Right Honourable the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Great Prior of England and Wales, in succession to yourself, and to express its regret at your resignation of that office.

Your Council has further to report the lamented death, on the 18th of June last, of Theodore Mansel Talbot, the Provincial Prior of South Wales.

The Warrant for raising the Dominion of Canada to a Great Priory has been sealed and transmitted to its destination. Letters Patent have also been passed, under the Seal of the Order, appointing Colonel W. J. Bury McLeod Moore, Great Prior of Canada, and he was on the 10th of August last installed into his office by the delegates of the Grand Master.

Your Council begs to report that a letter has been received by the Chancellor from the Arch-Chancellor of the Order, stating that a resolution was passed by the Convent General, held in Dublin, on 27th of October last, to the effect that the Report of the Ritual Committee had been received by that Convent General, which had thereupon resolved that copies of the Ritual be distributed to the Order by the Great Priors, through their respective Chanceries, and on such terms and conditions as shall be determined by their respective Councils.

Your Council recommends grants from the Benevolent Fund of 50 guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and £50 to the Male Fund of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, in the name of the Order, to be represented by the Great Prior for the time being, and that the Sub-Prior be requested to place these sums on his list.

The following balances are in the Treasurer's hands—

General Account	£197	17	5
Benevolent Fund	247	5	7
Total	£445	3	0

By order of the Council,

P. MAC C. DE COLQUHOUN.

28th November, 1876.

Chancellor.

On the motion that the above report be received and adopted, opposition was raised to the fourth paragraph relating to the report of the Ritual Committee, but it was withdrawn, and the motion carried, after a long discussion, on the understanding that the proposed "distribution" of the report of the Ritual Committee was only for the purpose of its being further considered by the Order at large through the various great Priors.

The Grants of Fifty Guineas from the Benevolent Fund to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and £50 to the Male Fund of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, recommended by the Council, were unanimously confirmed.

The following motions proposed by Sir Knt. J. E. Curteis were discussed.

1. That Statute No. 4, page 8, be altered by striking out the words "31st day of March," and substituting in lieu thereof, "last day of February."

2. That Statute 7, pages 9 and 10, be altered by striking out the words "appointed and,"—"The Great Prior shall appoint four members and" on the first and second lines of page 10.

3. That Statute 50, pages 22 and 23, be altered by striking out the words "the Prelate," "the Constable," "the Marshall," "four members of the Great Priory to be appointed by the Great Prior," and to insert after the word "five," in the fourth line of page 23, "Members of the Great Priory."

4. That Statute 56 be altered by striking out the words "31st day of March," and substituting in lieu thereof "last day of February."

After a long and animated discussion, Nos. 1 and 4 were carried, and Nos. 2 and 3 rejected.

The Great Prior then declared National Great Priory closed, and the Special Convent General open, which had been convoked by order of His Royal Highness, the Grand Master, "for the consideration of such notices of motion as were not proceeded with at the Convent General holden at Dublin on the 27th October last."

The following amendments to Convent General statutes were proposed by Sir Knight the Earl of Limerick, seconded by Major S. H. Clerke.

AMENDMENTS TO CONVENT GENERAL STATUTES.

Page 10—Cap.—The Convent General.—Omit "in England and Ireland on such day as the Grand Master in Council may determine, of which day not less than four weeks' notice shall be given"; and insert, "in England on the second Friday in May, and in Ireland on the —day of—."

Page 11—Cap.—Qualification to attend, speak, and vote in Convent General.—Amend that it may read, "all Past Grand Masters, Great Priors, Past Great Priors, Great Officers, Past Great Officers, Sub-Priors, Provincial Priors, National Great Officers, Grand Crosses, Commanders, Past Vice-Chancellors who have held that office for two years, Past Sub-Masters who have held that office for two years, and Preceptors," shall be, &c. (as before).

Page 14—Cap.—Honours.—After Ireland 10, insert Canada 10; after Ireland 20, insert Canada 20. At end of section insert, "The Grand Master may also appoint knights of foreign jurisdictions to the honours of Knights Grand Cross and Knights Commander, and such appointments shall not be included in the numbers as limited above."

Page 18—Cap.—Constitution of Great Priors.—After "in the Convent General," insert "of the Past Provincial Priors and Past Great Officers of the Nationality, and of the Past Vice-Chancellors and Sub-Masters who have been two years in office as such in the Nationality."

Page 19—Cap.—Rank and Precedence.—Omit the whole.—Insert, "In consideration of the introduction of the dignities of Knights Grand Cross and Knights Commander, no person in future shall receive any rank or precedence analogous to Past Rank except in virtue of some qualifying office which he has held for twelve months at the least."

Page 23—Cap.—Precedence.—After "The Grand Master," amend the paragraph to run—

"Past Grand Masters, the Great Priors, the Great Officers, the Sub-Priors, Past Great Priors and Great Officers, the Provincial Priors, the National Great Officers, Past Sub-Priors, Provincial Priors, and National Great Officers, the Knight Grand Crosses, the Commanders, the Officers of the Order, Past Vice-Chancellors and Sub-Masters who have held those offices for two years, the National Officers, Past National Vice-Chancellors and Sub-Masters who have held those offices for two years, Preceptors, Chaplains, Knights."

Exception having been taken to the discussion of these amendments, on the ground that the Earl, having failed to move them himself at the last Convent General, or to secure their being moved by some other Knight, they had fallen to the ground, and could not be re-discussed without the usual notice of motion, the Great Prior allowed the exception, and ruled the Earl of Limerick's motion out of order.

It was proposed by Sir Knight A. H. Royds, Prov. Prior Lancashire, and seconded by Sir Knight Thomas Birchall, Constable of that Province,

"1st. That in the Clause entitled 'Title of the Order' the word 'Masonic' be inserted between the words 'United' and 'Religious.'"

"2. That the Statutes headed 'Rank and Precedence' (pages 19 and 20, Statutes of the Convent General) be expunged in order that the Past Rank of the various officers and their right to bear the insignia thereof may be restored and recognized as formerly.

"3rd. That wherever throughout the said Statutes the words 'Preceptory' or 'Preceptories' shall occur, such words be expunged, and the words Encampment' or 'Encampments' be inserted in lieu thereof, and in like manner, wherever the word 'Preceptor' or 'Preceptors' shall occur, the same be expunged, and the words 'Eminent Commander,' or 'Eminent Commanders' (as the case may be) be inserted in lieu thereof, so that the changes in the designations of the meetings of the Order may be abolished, and the previous titles restored."

After a lengthened and stormy debate, in which several amendments, suggestions, and emendations were moved and rejected, the whole motion was, after a division on each separate paragraph, declared duly carried. Sir Knight the Earl of Limerick gave notice that he would at next Convent General, move the resolutions which he had not been able to introduce that evening, subject to the verbal emendations necessary on the passing of Sir Knight Royd's motions. The Arch Treasurer Sir Knight Curteis also gave notice of a motion, the wording of which we could not gather. The Convent General was then closed, and the Great Prior and his officers retired under the Arch of Steel about nine p.m., the proceedings having lasted for nearly six hours.

CONSECRATION OF THE STUDHOLME MARK LODGE, No. 197.

On Thursday, the 7th inst., the Right Hon. the Earl of Limerick, M.W.G.M.M.M., consecrated this new Mark Lodge at No. 197, Golden Square. He was assisted in the ceremony by the Rev. J. S. Brownrigg; General Brownrigg, C.B.; Capt. N. G. Philips; Bros. Hugh D. Sandeman, Dr. Hamilton, Major Barlow, S. Rawson, Major Shadwell H. Clerke, F. Binckes, Hyde Pullen, Col. H. Somerville Burney, Capt. Dadson, the Earl of Donoughmore, the Rev. A. B. Frazer, and the Rev. — Morse. Bro. Massey was present on behalf of the Freemason.

After the ceremony of consecration was completed, Bro. the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg ascended the chair, and in splendid form advanced to the Mark Degree the following brethren:—Capt. R. R. Leeson, Capt. Gilbert, Kenneth Robert Murchison, Col. C. W. Randolph, Capt. Palliser, Capt. M. S. Brownrigg, and E. C. Willing.

The installation of the W.M. designate was then proceeded with, and Bro. the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg installed Bro. General Brownrigg as Master of the lodge. At the same time, Dr. Hamilton having been appointed as Grand Master of Jamaica, that brother was obligated in due form for the discharge of the duties of that office. Bro. Capt. Philips was appointed the P.M. of the lodge, Bros. the Earl of Donoughmore, S.W.; Major Shadwell Clerke, J.W.; Dr. Hamilton, M.O.; S. Rawson, S.O.; Major Barlow, J.O.; Rev. — Morse, Chap.; Hyde Pullen, Registrar of Marks; Col. Somerville Burney, Sec.; Capt. C. W. Randolph, S.D.; Capt. Brownrigg, J.D.; E. C. Willing, Org.; Capt. Portlock Dadson, D.C.; Capt. Palliser, I.G.; and Austin, Tyler.

At the conclusion of the lodge-work the W.M. rose and proposed a vote of thanks to the Earl of Limerick for consecrating the lodge, and then moved that his lordship be elected an honorary member, as well as Bros. the Rev. G. R. Portal, Past Grand Master; Lord Skelmersdale, Binckes, the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, Hyde Pullen, and Col. Burdett. He also stated that the brethren were very much indebted to Lord Limerick for coming and discharging the important office of Consecrating Master, and to the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, for the fluent and efficient way in which he had advanced the candidates for Mark Masonry.

The Earl of Limerick in acknowledging the compliment said: W.M., I thank you very much for electing me an honorary member of the Studholme Lodge. It has given me great pleasure to be here to consecrate your lodge, which from what I have seen promises so well. I think from the performances of this evening the most favourable expectations may be entertained of a lodge the working of which commences under the rule of such a good old Mark Mason as our Bro. General Brownrigg. It may not be known to all the brethren present that although he, for the first time, takes the chair of a lodge, he has been a Mark Master Mason three-and-thirty years. From that he must certainly be the father in Mark Masonry of those present; and there are not, I venture to think, very many working members of Mark Masonry who can exceed him in that number of years as members of the Order. We all know, brethren, how well he discharges all the duties that he takes upon him, and that he never undertook a duty without the fullest intention of doing it to the utmost of his ability, and we know how great that ability is. I therefore form the greatest expectations of the work of the Studholme Lodge. Perhaps you will allow me as a remembrance of the pleasure I have had in consecrating the lodge, to present the lodge with two Deacons' jewels. They are not of the present pattern; they are old jewels which were made in the year 1780; but I think anyhow you will keep them as a memento, and if you and your successors in your discretion should allow them to be worn by the Deacons, by the authority of my office I would excuse their not being according to the present pattern of Mark Masonry. It would be possible, I think, to adopt them to modern Mark Masonry by hanging the Mark at the bottom of them instead of placing them on the Mark as is generally the custom. I thank you, W.M. and brethren, for making me an honorary member of the lodge, for which I wish every prosperity in its future career. (hear, hear).

General Brownrigg then proposed, the Earl of Donoughmore seconded, and Captain N. G. Philips supported a vote of thanks to the Earl of Limerick for this handsome present, and the vote was put and carried unanimously. The W.M. said to Lord Limerick, we accept them very gratefully, and will have them adopted for the Deacons' collars.

Bro. F. Binckes, the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, and Bro. Hyde Pullen also returned thanks for being elected honorary members of the lodge, and the days of meeting were fixed for the first Thursday in April, June and December, every year.

The lodge was afterwards closed in ample form, and the brethren adjourned to a splendid banquet at Willis's Rooms, where they subsequently honoured the usual Mark Masonic toasts.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

A Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of the Province of Lincolnshire was held in the Old Hall at Gainsboro' on November 29th, by command of the Right Worshipful Grand Mark Master, Bro. John Sutcliffe.

Peacock, Remigius, 117.

The large gathering is mainly attributable to the convenient and liberal train arrangements effected with the various railway companies by Provincial Grand Mark Master Bro. Sutcliffe, and to the liberality with which the Right Worshipful Master distributed his invitations to the banquet which followed the business of the lodge, and which were accompanied by a programme giving in detail all the information that was necessary to be known in reference to accomplishing the journey from distant provinces, the special railway tickets—issued at a first class single fare for the double journey—being available for three days.

After the ordinary duties of the lodge had been gone through, the R.W. Prov. Grand Mark Master Mason appointed and invested the following brethren as Prov. Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

A further matter of special interest and attraction in the day's proceedings was the presentation to the Right Worshipful Prov. Grand Mark Master of a picture containing portraits of himself and his first Provincial Grand officers, who were photographed in a group whilst being entertained at Stallingsboro' House. The photograph was subsequently enlarged, finished in oil, and handsomely framed. The Mark Masons represented in it are—Bros. John Sutcliffe, Chas. Harrison, F. Watson, H. Watson, T. H. Oldman, J. Bellamy, Wm. Watkins, Jack Sutcliffe, R. Cotton Carline, R. Gough, W. J. Bland, F. S. Judd, C. J. Hayward, T. E. Jacobson, Geo. Robinson, E. J. Cullen, Chas. Scorer, R. Goodman, Rev. D. Ace, D.D., W. G. Moore, Capt. Lowcock, Chas. Mann, F. Binckes, and Wm. Roberts. The frame is enriched with Masonic emblems, and the inscription engraved on a brass plate is as follows:—"First Prov. G.M. Officers for Lincolnshire; Presented to the R.W. Bro. John Sutcliffe, Prov. G.M.M.M., 29th November, 1876." The formal presentation of the picture was made during the after-dinner proceedings, and the terms in which it was offered and accepted will be found reported below in the "post prandial" speeches.

The banquet to which about 160 sat down, was of a magnificent description. The "menu" was in harmony with the high character of the occasion, comprising every available delicacy, and the dinner was served "à la Russe." Great credit is due to the provider of the dinner.

The Right Worshipful Prov. Grand Mark Master, Bro. Sutcliffe, occupied the chair, and, in commencing the toast list, gave "The Queen and Mark Masonry" in terms, glowing with loyalty. The Right Worshipful brother also gave "H.R.H. Albert Edward Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the members of the Royal Family," observing how little need be urged in recommending the toast, and that the more they said about it the greater damage they might do it. They all admired the lovely Princess of Wales; all England were ready to lay down their lives for her. He might add that at the moment they were sitting here their brother Prince Leopold was being installed in office as Master of a Mark lodge at Oxford. They would therefore add his health to the toast, and if he were present he would respond to it in a way they would all be pleased to hear. (The National Anthem was sung after the first toast, led by Bro. Copeland.)

Bro. P. P. Dickenson, Mayor of Lincoln, in rising to propose "The Bishop and Clergy," said he had pleasure in serving the chairman in any position he might call him to. He asked the company as Mark Masons to join him in drinking the health of those men who by their piety showed them the way of life and invited them to walk therein.

Bro. the Rev. A. A. Bagshawe responded, remarking that although he did not belong to this diocese he was a member of the Mark in Lancashire, and as such he had been honoured by being made the Provincial Grand Chaplain, and also the Chaplain of his lodge, of which he was very proud. He felt a very deep gratitude to the Provincial Grand Master of Lincolnshire for inviting him and the lodge to which he belonged. They came with a right hearty and especial pleasure, because they knew what a large-hearted man Bro. Sutcliffe was, whose heart was in Mark Masonry, and he rejoiced that he was to be the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Mark Master of Lincolnshire for the second period of three years.

The Chairman proposed "The Most Worshipful the Grand Mark Master Mason, the Right Honourable the Earl of Limerick, and all other Grand Officers, Present and Past," calling upon Bro. Roebuck, the Grand Master Overseer, to respond.

Bro. Roebuck, in acknowledging the toast on behalf of the Earl of Limerick, observed that it would be his special privilege to report to Grand Lodge the reappointment of the Provincial Grand Mark Master of Lincolnshire for another three years. It had been gratifying to him to find the reception that had been given to the name of the Most Worshipful Grand Mark Master, not only by Lincolnshire, but by the provinces around. He was aware the Earl was well known in this and other counties; he was also known in London as a good Mark and Craft Mason, and as a supporter of the Charities. (Applause.)

The Chairman next proposed "The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Mark Master Masons of other Provinces, and all Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers." In doing so he said he need not occupy their time long in urging the claims of this toast. The characters of the Provincial Mark Masters were all so well known that they required no recommendation from him to insure them a hearty and cordial reception. They ought to feel highly honoured that a brother came here to-day from Newcastle to visit their provincial lodge. He himself (the Chairman) felt highly complimented by Bro. Strachan, D.P.G.M. for Northumberland and Durham, coming amongst them. They also had Bro. Tom Perkinson, P.G. M.M.M., from West Yorkshire. He must not forget to say that he had not the opportunity in lodge of reading a number of letters of apology from brethren not present, and he might inform the brethren from Lancashire that he had received a very polite note from Bro. Le Gendre Starkie, D.P.G.M. for Lancashire, saying that previous engagements prevented him coming. He wished to say that for the information of the brethren from Lancashire.

Bro. Strachan said he felt highly honoured in having the opportunity of thanking the Most Worshipful chairman for inviting him and the other Northumberland and Durham brethren, and must say how honoured he also was by the way he had received them, by the way he had proposed their healths, and by the way they were received in the province.

Bro. Perkinson acknowledged the pleasure he felt in having his name connected with the toast. He had been a Provincial Mark Master 3½ years, and now his time was nearly ended. ("No, no.") He had been very much cheered with what he had seen to-day. He was very much attached to Mark Masonry, and it would ever live in his heart.

Bro. Prince was also proud to respond for his province, whose Grand Master, like the Lincolnshire Grand Master, was a man with a large heart. Addressing the chairman the speaker said—I thank you, Right Worshipful Sir, for the kind support you give to Mark Masonry. You are a most honoured man in this district, and if others can be found like you when your time is run out we shall have cause to be hopeful for the future of Freemasonry. I trust you will accept through me the thanks of our Provincial Grand Mark Master for what you have done to-day. (Applause.)

Bro. Perkinson again rose, and said he would give without much preface, "The Health of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Mark Master Mason for Lincolnshire, Bro. Sutcliffe." (Great cheering.) Nothing he could say would add to the esteem of those present, by whom he was so well known.

The toast was drunk with Masonic honours.

The Chairman, who was received with prolonged cheers, said he felt very much obliged to his brethren for the proposal of his health and the kind reception it had met with. He knew not what he could say more. He valued their opinion, and allowed them to be the best judges. He could only say he thanked them—thanked them most heartily—for the generous reception they had given to the toast. He would not sit down without taking the opportunity of proposing the toast of the evening, that was,

"The Health of the Visiting Brethren," and he would call upon them to open their lungs and open their shoulders (laughter), and to receive the toast in a way that would be heard through Lancashire, Yorkshire, Northumberland, Cheshire, and North Wales. It was not often they had representatives from so many provinces, and he thanked them for the honour they had done the Province of Lincolnshire in coming from all corners of those counties to the old port of Gainsboro'. The Old Hall in which they were assembled would be interesting to archaeologists, and he thought they would like to visit him in that fine old hall, where they were all on a par—all on an equality, which did not exist in any other kind of assembly. (Hear, hear.) Having thanked them again most heartily and sincerely, he coupled with the toast the name of an "old friend" of his—Bro. C. F. Matier.

Bro. Matier, in returning thanks, said that all the compliments bestowed upon the Right Worshipful Bro. Sutcliffe had been justly made, and he could only say ditto to all that had been said in his honour. He narrated what he called a "little incident" that occurred on the journey to Gainsboro'. When about three miles on this side of Worksop, and when they were going about 50 miles an hour, the driving axle of the engine broke, but he was happy to say—thanks to the Great Architect of the Universe—no fatality had occurred. He was only too pleased in coming to visit the Provincial Grand Mark Master for the first time, and he sincerely trusted it would not be the last. He hoped he would see him again elected for the third, fourth, or twentieth time. (Applause.)

Bro. Roebuck also responded, saying he would be second to none in giving his adhesion to the Right Worshipful Master. It had been said he was a large-hearted man: so he was, but he was also a large-headed man, and so all would say if they knew him as well as they did in West Yorkshire, where they had proved him before he came into Lincolnshire. No better man was ever put into shoes than Worshipful Master Sutcliffe. He said it freely, and without fear of contradiction—with all respect and without flattery—that there never was a man who worked himself up to the position Bro. Sutcliffe now held more rapidly and more successfully than he had done. It was only the week before last that he (Bro. Roebuck) was at a meeting of Royal Arch Masons, and if this gathering had only heard the remarks which were then passed by the brethren of the provincial chapter with reference to their brother who now presided at this meeting, there was no one but would have been proud, and deeply proud, to have had those feelings expressed towards himself. There was no worthier man than the present Worshipful Master of their Mark lodge. The speaker then referred to the Masonic schools, mentioning the desire that Bro. Sutcliffe had evinced to have them placed on a proper footing. They were all, he said, actuated by one feeling, and they wished to place those schools in a right position. They didn't want to have "fish for one and flesh for another," and he for one wished to find out the feeling that existed in the province of West Yorkshire, and he was determined to do so. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Kemp proposed the toast of "The Deputy Provincial Grand Mark Master Mason, Bro. Harrison, and all other Present and Past Grand Officers of Lincolnshire," and reverted to Bro. Sutcliffe, saying he had made them feel that Mark Masonry was no simple thing, and had made them feel proud that they were Mark Masons, and whether they were recognised by Grand Craft Lodge or not it was a fact, and might she mark well.

Bro. Harrison, in responding, said: I assure you, Worshipful Sir, we feel the honour of being here under your presidency, and hope for many years' to see you at the head of the province. I have a very pleasing duty to perform. At the last Provincial Grand Mark Lodge the Provincial Grand Mark Master was kind enough to invite the officers to breakfast to Stallingboro' House. When we arrived an artist was there from Grimsby, and we were photographed in a group. We felt that we would like, as a memorial of our visit, to have it enlarged and painted, and ask our Worshipful Master to accept it. I have now, on behalf of the Past Provincial Grand Mark Officers, to request you to accept this picture as a mark of the esteem and respect of those who had the honour of acting as your first Provincial Grand Mark Officers. (Applause.)

The Chairman gave some account of the first production of the photographic group. He called on the artist to order a copy for each provincial officer, but was informed that several brethren had requested him to finish it, and he was about to do so. Therefore it was taken out of his—the Chairman's—hands altogether. It was his intention to present that group to his officers, but he was told in a sense to mind his own business, and he saw no more of it. He thought it had taken the wrong turn, but still he thought they would all agree with him that he could not be so ungrateful as to refuse the honour of accepting that handsome picture. It would not belong to him; it would belong to Masonry—Mark Masonry—and he felt bound to accept it; and some day they would see it hung up in the province of Lincolnshire as a mark of respect to the Worshipful Master. I accept it (concluded Bro. Sutcliffe) at your hands, and thank you on behalf of the family to whom you have paid this high honour. (Cheers.)

The brethren then separated to return to their homes by their respective trains.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The Committee of this Institution met on Wednesday last in the library, Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Colonel Creaton, presided; and there were also present Bros. S. Rawson, Griffiths Smith, W. Levy, Thomas Cubitt, William Stephens, Hyde Pullen, A. H. Tattershall, Joshua Nunn, James Brett, Thomas W. White, J. Newton, J. M. Case, Richard Hervé Giraud, Henry G. Warren, Charles F. Hogard, John Constable, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, J. G. Hill, W. F. Nettle-ship, W. Lane, H. Massey (Freemason); and James Terry, Secretary.

After reading the minutes Bro. James Terry informed the Committee that he had read a letter from Bro. R. H. Collins, on the part of His Royal Highness, Prince Leopold, P.G.M. for Oxfordshire, announcing that H.R.H. would take the chair at the annual festival on the 14th February. This letter was dated 18th November, but he had subsequently received another letter from Bro. Collins, dated the 30th November, altering the date for the festival to Monday, the 12th February.

Bro. Terry then read the Warden's report in which that brother informed the Committee that Dr. Strong had presented to the Asylum at Croydon a number of flowers and shrubs for the garden.

The petitions of seven men and six women were received, examined, and passed, and as some of these came from the Province of Devon, Bro. John Constable, P.M. 185, asked how many male and female annuitants there were at the present time on the funds of the Institution from the Province of Devon.

Bro. James Terry said there were ten men receiving £40 each, or £400 a year, four widows at £32 each, or £128 a year, and one widow receiving half her late husband's annuity, or £18 a year; making in all £546 a year from this Institution for the Province of Devon.

Bro. Constable asked whether Devon was not the largest province in this respect on the Institution.

Bro. Terry said he thought East Lancashire was receiving over £600.

Bro. Constable thought that as the festival of the Institution was approaching, it would be but fair to the Institution to solicit the Province of Devon and its Grand Master for its support on that occasion.

The Chairman said the number of Devonshire cases in the Institution was certainly an argument in favour of that province being asked to support the institution as much as possible on that occasion.

Bro. James Bell asked Bro. Constable how he was going to do it.

Bro. Constable said by letter.

Bro. Terry obtained leave for the use of the hall of the asylum for the Christmas entertainment to the aged inmates on the 3rd of January.

Bro. S. Rawson gave notice that he would at the next meeting move an alteration of one of the rules of the Institution to the effect "That in the event of a widow marrying again, and being again left a widow, she shall still be eligible as an annuitant." He said that he was induced to bring this forward in consequence of what took place at last meeting, when the existing bye-law would not allow the widow of a Mason who subsequently married a non-Mason and again became a widow, to be eligible. He thought that this was never the intention when the rules were framed.

Bro. J. W. Case said that believing, as was formerly stated, that the existing rule was inconsistent with general usage he had made enquiries and found that other funds were different to this fund. In the navy, while the widow was under coverture she lost her pension; but in the event of her losing her second husband her former status reverted to her. That was also the case in the Army; and on enquiring at the Indian Office found that the same rule with one exception, existed. He had also been many years connected with the Naval Benevolent Society, where the rule was that under coverture a widow was deprived of the benefit of the fund, but in the event of her becoming again a widow it revived. All the brethren felt that they should open the door of the Institution to worthy and deserving objects, rather than draw a line which would exclude them, and he had laid the above facts before them as additional information to guide them in coming to a conclusion.

Bro. R. H. Giraud mentioned a case in which a lady lost her pension for forty years and afterwards got it again.

The Committee then adjourned.

THE ACCIDENT TO MR. BARRY SULLIVAN.—Mr. Barry Sullivan was prevented from playing the part of Macbeth at Drury-lane Theatre on Wednesday night, owing to an accident which befel him the previous evening during the performance of Richard the Third. In the fight between Richard and Richmond, Mr. Sinclair, by some accident, injured Mr. Sullivan in the face. Last night Macbeth was to have been performed, but previous to the rising of the curtain the stage manager came forward and read a certificate from Dr. Mills, of Southampton-street, Strand, to the effect that owing to his accident Mr. Sullivan was "totally incapable" of appearing. Mr. James Bennett would, it was announced, take the character of the Scottish chief. The wound was received after Mr. Sullivan had fallen at the close of the combat with Richmond, and while the audience were loudly applauding. Drs. Mills and Canton were called in, and it was found that the left eyelid had been cut through, and the effect of the injury to the pupil was such as to occasion partial blindness, from which, we understand, Mr. Sullivan still suffered last night.

Bro. His Grace The Duke of Marlborough, having been formally sworn in as Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, left Kingstown Harbour, on Tuesday night for London. The departure was private. It is expected that the Duke will return to Ireland in state in January.

A REWARD FOR HEROISM.—The Duke of Manchester presided on Tuesday at a chapter of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, held at St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, when the bronze medal of the Order was voted to George Gates, a sewer flusher, who recently, with gallant disregard of personal danger, went back into the New-road sewer at Battersea, although himself in a half-stupified state, and rescued two men—Scott and Plester—who, but for Gates' courageous conduct, would probably have shared the fate of their comrade, Lomas, who was killed by the poisonous gases. This medal, which is also awarded in silver, is conferred by the Order for the reward of deeds of valour in saving life on land.

We are very pleased to learn that The Health of H.R.H. Prince Leopold R.W.P.G.M. has considerably improved.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

The interesting ceremony of installing Bro. Clayton, W.M. of the Prince of Wales Lodge, took place at the lodge-room, Star Hotel, Auckland, on Thursday, Sept. 28th. The ordinary business having been proceeded with, Bro. Clayton was presented to P. M. Leers, who acted as Installing Master for the occasion, and conducted the ceremony in a most impressive manner. Bro. Clayton having been duly installed according to the prescribed form, proceeded to appoint the following officers for the ensuing year:—

Bros. W. H. Skinner, I.P.M.; C. M. Nelson, S.W.; F. W. E. Dawson, J.W.; E. Browne, Chap.; W. H. Kissling, P.M., Treas.; M. S. Leers, P.M., Sec.; R. C. Dyer, S.D.; W. Rattray, J.D.; G. N. Brassey, P.M., Dir. of Cers.; C. T. Saxton, Org.; J. H. Gosset, I.G.; C. Burton and W. S. Collins, Stewards; C. Porter, Tyler.

The W.M. then closed the lodge, and the brethren, to the number of about forty, adjourned to the banquet room. After the many good and excellent things provided by mine host, Bro. Gorman, had been partaken of, the W.M., Bro. Clayton, as Chairman, proposed the following toasts:—"The Queen and the Craft." (Choir: "God Save the Queen.")—"H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England." (Song and chorus, "God Bless the Prince of Wales.")—"The M.W.G.M.'s of Scotland and Ireland, Sir Michael Stewart, and the Duke of Abercorn."

The Chairman next proposed "The Three District Grand Masters, English, Scotch, and Irish, Bro. Sir Donald McLean, K.C.M.G., Bro. John Hislop, and Bro. G. P. Pierce." The toast was drunk with full honours.

Bro. P. M. Leers then proposed the health of the W.M. of the Prince of Wales Lodge (drank with Macduff honours), who briefly acknowledged the toast.

Bro. P. M. Skinner proposed the health of the Installing Master, Bro. P. M. Leers.

Brother C. M. Nelson, S. W., who acted as vice-chairman, next proposed the health of the Past Masters of the Prince of Wales Lodge. This toast was drunk with Macduff honours, and responded to by Bros. P. M. Skinner and Leers.

The remaining toasts were then given: "The Visiting Brethren," responded to by Bro. P. M. Wade; "The Wardens, Chaplain, Treasurer, and Secretary," proposed by Brother Dyer, and responded to by Bro. Nelson; "The Honorary and Junior officers" proposed by Bro. Dyson, and responded to by Bro. Dyer; "The newly initiated brethren;" "The Choir;" "The Ladies;" "Host and Hostess." Immediately before the Tyler's toast Bro. Nelson proposed "The memory of the late P. M. Diethelm, first W.M. of the Prince of Wales Lodge." He spoke of him as a most active and enthusiastic Mason, and one whose loss would be severely felt by the Masons of Auckland. Both this and the Tyler's toast were drunk in solemn silence.

The evening's proceedings were enlivened by selections on the organ by Bro. Rees, and vocal pieces by Bros. Harker, Sexton, and Skinner. The brethren separated at about 12 o'clock, after spending a most enjoyable evening.

Obituary.

BRO. WYLIE, P.P.G.R. W. LANCASHIRE.

Bro. Wylie was initiated in 1840, in the Lodge of Sincerity, No. 368, now 292; continued a subscribing member till his death, and was twice W.M. of the lodge—the second time about 25 years after the first occasion, when he was installed by his son, Bro. Robert Wylie, P.P.G.S.D. The deceased also filled the office of P.G. Secretary for ten years; and, besides being P.G. Registrar, as we have stated, he was also appointed P.G.J.W. and H. in the Prov. G. Chapter. He especially distinguished himself as one of the original promoters of the Masonic Hall, in consequence of which he was appointed one of the trustees when the land and premises in Hope-street were brought. He took the warmest interest in everything appertaining to Freemasonry, especially in the Province of West Lancashire, and was presented with jewels by the brethren in the Furness district, and also by those in the neighbourhood of Southport for services rendered to the lodges and chapters. He was also presented with a splendid service of plate (subscribed for by the brethren) on his resignation of the Prov. Grand Secretaryship. Amongst his other honours it may also be mentioned that he was P.Z. of Chapter 36.
